There was quite a big discharge of mechanics from the department of construction at the navy yard, Saturday night, pretty much the whole department being cleared out.

The rush for bargains at Carr's for boots and shoes increases steadily, as the purchasers see what low prices are given for every style of foot-wear,—men's, women's and children's. The men's and boy's goods are shown at the former Downs & Co. store, No. 37 Market street, the store No. 26 Market street being too small for anything except the ladies' and children's boots and shoes. A large number of cases of fashionable spring goods, ordered before the fire and just received, were opened last week, and the contents are now on the counters of the two stores.

Mrs. Frank W. Hilton, widow of Col. Hilton, formerly landlard of the Rockingham house in this city, is visiting the family of Hon. Marcellus Eldredge, of Islington street.

Nearly all the contracting carpenters of the city having last week acceded to the request of their employes that nine hours be hereafter a day's work on Saturday, Mr. Charles H. Mendum without solicitation gave notice to the joiners in his employ that their Saturday's work would also cease at five o'clock. On hearing of this, the quite large number of laborers in Mr. Mendum's employ on Saturday preferred a request that they be put in the same list, and their request was promptly complied with.

The choir at St. John's church on Whitsunday consisted of Miss Hayes, soprano, Mrs. Bennett, contralto, Mr. Flanagan, tenor, and Mr. Montgomery, bass, with the Choir Chapter as chorus. The services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Hovey, the rector, who arrived home last week from a vacation trip of several weeks.

While Mr. Reuben Rand, one of the carpenters employed on the new Sagamore bridge, was sawing off the top of a pile one day last week, he sawed through the middle of a bullet embedded very near the centre of the pile, and which must have been lodged there many years ago, as there was no sign of any hole where it entered the tree, the wood having grown solid around it.

WHAT IS

SCROFULA

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which developes ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" which, fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, sores breaking out on them in various places. My little boy, three years old, has been a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. I was advised to use Hood's Sarsaparilla, and we have all taken it. The result is that all have been cured of the scrofula, my little boy being entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy." W. B. ATHERTON, Passaic City, N. J.

Best Newark Hydraulic Cement,

IT IS VERY EASY

TO restore painted walls and wood-work to their original freshness, if you will take a pailful of tepid water, two sponges, and a cake of IVORY SOAP. Apply the soap with one sponge, and remove the soap and dirt with the other, rinse the latter frequently, and change the water often. Ordinary soap is apt to be too highly chemicalled to use on paint. The IVORY SOAP is mild but very effective.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.

The cabinet organ was introduced in the present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of reed instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogue free.

PIANOS.

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all GRAND & UPRIGHT pianos, others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

STARTLING STATISTICS.

What a High Official Has to Say About the Condition of the People—Some Serious Facts and Figures.

[Herald.]

"It is wonderful what figures will show." Such was the remark of a high official in the State Department to a representative of this paper. "How many really rich men do you suppose there are in New England? Very few. But how many do you think there would be if people were physically and mentally sound and vigorous? New England people are active, restless and ambitious, and therefore neglect themselves. Not one man or woman in ten is in perfect health."

"Official figures show this, do they?"

"Precisely. There seems to be a New England disease. People do not seem to think that headaches, or tired feeling, or 'blues,' or loss of appetite, or nervousness mean anything. Then, the first thing they know they are in bed and on thereto it to death.

"Do many die of this disease?"

"Thousands. Henry Wilson, Charles Sumner, Wendell Phillips and Governor Bodwell are among the number. James G. Blaine is also on the road, and his trip abroad is in the hope of recovering health."

"But what do you find to counteract it?"

"Very little. The only reliable medicine so far discovered is Hunt's Remedy. The faculty of one of our leading medical colleges, knowing the composition of this medicine, have been recommending it for some time, and the results have been wonderful. I know three ladies and one gentleman (one of the latter a State officer), who have been entirely cured by its use. I wish everybody might know more about it and use it."

Such facts and figures, and from so high a source, should prove invaluable to thousands whose success in life would be much greater were they physically and mentally sound and vigorous.

BILIOUSNESS.

THIS very common complaint, which is caused by a dormant or inactive liver, can be cured in a short time by using Ingalls' Mandrake Compound, as can also the various diseases arising from inactive liver or kidneys. These organs, if inactive, will allow impure blood to enter the heart, causing tightness about that organ and palpitation.

She suffered thirty years.

MRS. DUDLEY CHANDLEY, of Melrose, Mass., says: "I had suffered with Palpitation of the Heart more than thirty years before I found anything to give me essential relief. But in 48 hours Ingalls' Mandrake Compound, and, remarkable as it was, this Compound relieved me in two days, so that for several months afterwards I felt not the slightest touch of it, and am perfectly free from it now. Sometimes, before I took this Compound, the pulsations of my heart were so violent as to shake my whole body with rapid agitations, and at times I fainted and became entirely unstable. Now I am perfectly free from all this suffering. Consequently I can most sincerely and earnestly recommend this Compound to all like sufferers, as pre-eminently the best medicine I ever knew for Palpitation of the Heart."

This Compound is purely Vegetable, and strengthens and builds up the system while it eradicates disease.

Ingalls' Mandrake Compound is sold by all Druggists. Price $1; six bottles for $5. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

ROUNDED UP BY COYOTES.

How the Jack Rabbits at Nevada are Gathered in by Wolves.

"You never saw the artistic way the Nevada wolves would round up the jack rabbits, I suppose," remarked Joseph Grandelmyer, the old time Nevadan. "It is the cleverest bit of strategy I ever heard of. There are several kinds of wolves all through the state, but the coyotes are by far the plentiest. In the Humboldt, Smoky, and other valleys the coyotes form in military line, oftentimes along some old road, as I have most frequently seen them, and thus systematically go on a regular drive.

"They stretch out over a great area of country, the coyotes being stationed somewhere near a mile apart. Once they get sight of a jack rabbit his name is Dennis. He may take to the sage brush and elude the coyotes for a time. Fifty or a hundred coyotes can thus in a short time rake in a terrible lot of rabbits. If the coyotes are hungry it is about the rarest sport one can witness. They go at the hunt with so much ardor and with such perfect system.

"A coyote on his own account can usually forage successfully for feed. He is sly, like a fox, and, always with an eye out for number one, he generally has his belly full and lots of fat sticking to his ribs; but if the weather has been bad and he gets separated from his fellows on a reconnoitring tour he may have a hard time of it. In the sagebrush a jack rabbit can generally manage to elude a coyote. He can get in and out quicker, while the coyote, being bigger, is delayed by the brush, and can't get in and out like a rabbit.

"But after a lot of hungry wolves have held a council of war and decided to go on a hunt, it is time for the rabbits to hunt their holes. There is always music in the air about that time, and the weird howls of the wolves sound like a distant reveille. The rabbits seem to understand the situation, too, and scamper hither and thither over the plains and rolling hills. It is not long, however, till the wolves marshal their forces. They begin by making a wide detour over the hills, lessening the size of the circle as they advance, and holding all the rabbits they get in as skillfully as a fisherman handles his seine.

"The jack rabbits are all of a tremble when they see how their enemies have them hedged about, and jump helplessly into the air, and utter pitiful cries. The wolves merely watch the sides warily, and look on vindictively, with tongues lolling out through their white teeth, and eyes sparkling, expressive of the knowledge that they will soon have some fine eating. As the wolves draw nearer together the quick snap, snap of their jaws is heard as they snip the throats of their victims, and they fall dead from loss of blood.

"When every rabbit is killed, the coyotes sit down on their haunches to a very comfortable banquet, and never let up until they have taken aboard so much rabbit meat that they can hardly stir. Then they slowly meander off to their homes, wherever they may be, and if there is a lot of rabbit meat left, as there may be, they put in an appearance again, at stated intervals, until the whole is consumed.

"After a lot of coyotes have had a talk, so to speak, and decided to go on a hunt, they will sometimes go to a rough region, where they know the rabbits abound, and lay siege for them in another way. Certain brigades will clamber upon the high rocks and hill tops surrounding a canyon, and drive the game down into the depths below, other relays of wolves having previously been placed at the entrance and at the weak places. They oftentimes get a great many into a canyon in this way, and thus speedily finish them. It is generally in the very early morning that the coyotes sound their reveille and go after the rabbits."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Overcrowding in Siberia.

The overcrowding of the Siberian prisons is appalling. "The Tomsk transportation prison," writes The Siberian Gazette of that city, "is overcrowded. To the 1,520 people we had here 700 new ones have been added, and so the prison which was built for 900 people contains 2,200. There are 207 persons on the sick list." The central prison, on Sackhalin island, which was built for 600 people, contained 1,103 in 1879. Michela, a Siberian official and ex-prison director, writes about two prisons which were under his control as follows: "The jailer brought me to the rooms. Everywhere dirt, overcrowding, wetness, want of air and light. After having visited the rooms I entered the hospital. As soon as I entered the first room I was involuntarily thrown back by the inconceivable smell. The water closets were luxurious apartments in comparison with the hospital. Everywhere the number of prisoners is thrice the number permitted by the law. At Verknendinsk, for instance, the jail is built for 240 inmates, and it usually contains 800."—Michael Malkoff in Chicago News.

How to Become Learned.

Any man of mature years who has enjoyed all the advantages of a free public primary, grammar and high school, a preparatory academy, a college, and a professional school, will testify that what he has learned by himself is of infinitely more value to him than all he ever acquired in all the institutions of learning he ever attended. Books on all subjects are now so cheap and plenty, public libraries are so large and numerous, instruction in special studies is so easily obtained that any person who can read, write and compute numbers may become as learned as the wisest. He can study what he knows or thinks will afford him the most pleasure or profit. He can cultivate his head, hands, or heels, his eye, tongue, or ear, his manners, morals and language to any extent he desires, at an expense not exceeding what a young man ordinarily spends for cigars or a girl for candy. If a person wishes to become learned there is little trouble in accomplishing what he wishes.—Chicago Times.

An Interesting Collection.

An interesting collection of commercial products made by Dr. Forbes Watson, has been acquired by University college, Dundee. It contains some 7,500 samples, embracing between 700 and 800 fibers, over 500 dye and dye stuffs, 500 oils and oil seeds, 600 or 700 gum, resins and guttas, nearly 2,000 medicinal substances and more than as many samples of food stuffs.—Arkansaw Traveler.

A syndicate of Boston and Maine capitalists have succeeded after prolonged negotiations in purchasing the well knew Whitman hill property at Harrison, Me., about thirty-seven miles from Portland and three miles from the Sebago landing in Harrison. It consists of 365 acres of land, and the farm buildings. Near the top of the highest land on this property is the famous Senumist mineral spring, which is one thousand feet above the sea level, and overlooks two thousand square miles of mountains, forest, field and lake. It is understood that a hotel is to be immediately erected on the property, having a capacity for seventy-five guests, while on the summit a grand hotel will be built, accommodating between 300 and 400 guests. The present owners are to immediately commence shipping the mineral water.

What a Mistake!

A careful examination would convince any one that two-thirds of all the people in New England have been or are now afflicted with the catarrh of the nose and throat.

No doubt more than half of these persons have tried every blood purifier they have seen, with the erroneous idea that catarrh is a constitutional disease and must be purged out of the blood.

Why a greater mistake was never made! Stop for a moment and think or ask any reputable physician what common catarrh is, and what causes it, and the answer can be only this. "It is an irritation or inflammation of the mucous membrane of the nose and throat, caused by neglected colds, damp piercing irritable winds, foreign matter in the air which is poisonous to some persons and not to others; just as the bites of certain insects is a poisoned nature to some and has no unpleasant effect upon others." The reason for this is found in the different structure of the outer skin and its counterpart which lines all the inner organs of our bodies. Some people have chapped hands and chilblains and others are never so afflicted because of the peculiar structure of the skin of different individuals.

Therefore stop dosing. It is not blood purifiers you want, but good wholesome food, the plaster the better, then "keep your feet dry and warm, your head cool and bowels open," and use an external application. (Johnson's Anodyne Liniment is the best we know.) to allay the inflammation, cleanse the surface, heal the sores, and your catarrh will disappear like magic. We do not say never to return, because you may cure a severe cold and in three months catch another equally bad, so with catarrh and bronchical troubles. Exposure may bring it on again. We learned more about treating catarrh from the wrapper around a bottle of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, than we ever knew. Certainly this good old medicine deserves to be called "A universal family remedy." No matter how well you know this medicine it will pay you to send to I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass., for a pamphlet free, just to learn how to use the liniment economically. A teaspoonful properly used will often do more good than a half bottle as some people use it.

The man that succeeds nowadays is the live man, who is up to the times; and no better evidence of this is needed than the fact that every go-ahead housekeeper is never without Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

Nine ex-governors of Maine are now living. Maine must be an easy state to govern, or else her statesmen are tough.

OH! MY HEAD.

The pain from Neuralgia and its companion disease Rheumatism is excruciating. Thousands who could be quickly cured are needlessly suffering. Athlophoros will do for others what it did for the following parties:

Williamsport, Ind., Oct. 8, 1887.

Having been afflicted with neuralgia for the past four years, and trying almost everything, but in vain, I finally heard of Athlophoros. After taking one bottle I found it to be helping me, and after taking four bottles of Athlophoros and one of Pills, I found that I was entirely well. I think the medicine is positively a sure cure.

Dr. Gage and Associate Physicians, and Their Great Work.

Probably no physician in New England is better and more favorably known, says a New Hampshire exchange, than is Dr. Gage, the gifted specialist, who has treated more than fifteen thousand patients in this state, the announcement of his visits each month being the signal for a grand rally of a multitude of invalids. His success is indeed phenomenal and the reports of marvellous cures would fill this entire paper, the like of which was never known in the history of medical practice. The following is a fair sample:

Mr. Editor: A few months ago my daughter was laying at the point of death. She had a complication of troubles, a terrible cough, raising an immense quantity, a discharging sore upon her hip which rendered her perfectly helpless. Our family physician gave us no hope, but with a mother's will and determination to save her perishing child if possible, I hastened to consult Dr. Gage. Although he did not see her he nevertheless understood the case and his remedies have wrought a miracle—almost—by restoring my child to perfect health. I thank God that I consulted Dr. Gage.

An Assurance of Health.

Among the assurances of health afforded us by the regular discharge of the bodily functions, none is more important and reliable than that which regularity of the bowels gives us. If there is any—even a temporary interruption of this—the liver and the stomach suffer conjointly with inactive organs, and still greater mischief ensues if relief is not speedily obtained. A laxative, above all cavil on the score of mineral composition or violent effect, is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, approved by the medical profession and a most important item of the family materia medica of American households. It is botanic, painless in action, and if persisted in, effectual. The stomach and liver, in no less degree and no less promptly and throughly than the bowels, are regulated and toned by it, and it is an admirable defense against malarial and rheumatic ailments, and a benign remedy for kidney complaints, nervousness and debility.

A Great Battle

Is continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. The Young Men's Christian Association.

Its Origin, Growth, Object and Methods.

The meeting held Sunday afternoon, May 13th, in the Baptist chapel, to make preliminary arrangements looking to the formation here of a Young Men's Christian Association, was from the interest manifested, very encouraging, and we are glad to state that in all probability we shall by next fall have an association in this city, in a flourishing condition. Work is to be commenced at once to canvass the city for members, and for the support of the citizens of Portsmouth, which we are sure will readily be given, both morally and financially. The need of such an organization here and the good that can be accomplished by it, can be plainly seen; and what the committee need most is the support of our young men, and we hope all will take interest in it and go to work individually looking to the successful carrying out of the enterprise. The Chronicle we believe was the first paper in this city to call attention to the need of this society some months since, and we shall always stand ready to assist the committee in any way we can. It would not seem out of place at this time to give a history of the association from the start, so that our citizens may see clearly its aims and objects, and when the committee call upon them, having fully considered the subjects, be ready to generously contribute it to its support.

ORIGIN.

The Young Men's Christian Association in London, generally known as "the parent association," was organized in 1844 through the efforts of George Williams, an earnest Christian young man, twenty-three years of ago, and at that time a junior clerk in a large dry goods establishment, of which he has since become the head.

GROWTH—IN THE WORLD.

There are 3,541 associations distributed throughout the world, in North America and Europe, in Turkey, Syria, India, Ceylon, China, Japan, South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, South America, etc.

GROWTH—IN AMERICA.

The first association in America was organized at Montreal, in 1851; the first in the United States, at Boston, a few months later. The year following, associations were established at New York, Washington, Buffalo and Baltimore.

There are now in the United States and Canada 1,176 associations with an aggregate membership of about 155,000. These associations own a total net property of $6,053,259; 116 of them own the buildings they occupy; 426 have libraries aggregating 295,000 volumes; 503 have reading rooms; 779 Bible classes, and over 1,500 prayer and gospel meetings, are held regularly.

282 associations report 587 educational classes, and 209 report gymnasiums and other means of physical culture; 124 literary societies, 2,347 lectures, and 2,287 sociables are reported; 158 associations are doing a special work, both religious and secular, for boys. Of the 1,176 associations 268 are in colleges, 70 are railroad branches, 10 are German branches, and 24 are among the colored people. The aggregate current expenses of 767 associations in 1886 were $957,-023. Of the 623 general secretaries, assistants, librarians and gymnasium instructors, 575 are employed by 415 associations and branches in 350 cities and towns, which vary in population from New York city, with over a million, to Clifton Springs, N. Y., with 1,000 inhabitants; 49 are secretaries of the International, State, and Provincial committees.

THE OBJECT.

The main object of the associations at the beginning and ever since has been the salvation of young men through faith in Christ. But in seeking first the political welfare through agencies consistent with Christian discipleship, such as have been already referred to.

THE MEMBERSHIP.

The membership of the associations is divided into two classes, active and associate; the former, young members in good standing of evangelical churches; the latter, young men of good moral character. Both classes enjoy the same privileges, except those of voting and holding office, which are confined to the active membership. At the Portland convention of the American Associations, in 1869, it was voted that associations formed after that date would be entitled to representation in conventions only when based on this basis.

While the association holds this close and intimate relation to the church of Christ, it loyally enjoins on its members to "hold their duties and obligations to their respective churches as having the prior claim upon their sympathy and efforts." This rule of conduct is carefully observed throughout the associations.

THE MANAGEMENT.

Each association is independent in the management of its affairs, while all are organized upon the same general plan, have the one specific plan, and adopt the same evangelical test.

THE GENERAL SECRETARY.

Each of the stronger associations has an officer known as the General Secretary, who devotes all his time to the work, and is the executive officer of the Board of Directors. Such an officer is indispensible to the highest development and progress of the work. There has recently been established at Springfield, Mass., a school for the training of young men for this responsible position.

Consecration, executive ability and love for young men are three of the absolutely necessary qualifications for this office.

THE SUPPORT.

The running expenses of an Association are met by membership dues (varying from two to fifteen dollars a year, according to the privileges that the Association has to offer,) and by contributions from friends who are familiar with and realize the importance of a definite Christian work for young men.

CONVENTIONS.

As the local Young Men's Christian Association from the beginning has been undenominational, so the united action of the associations has been international. The first general meeting of representatives of the associations was held at Buffalo, N. Y., in 1854; and it was international—delegates being present from both Canada and the United States.

One year later, the first World's Conference was held at Paris. Nine similar Conferences have since been held—the last at Berlin, in 1884. Seven countries were represented at Paris, and fifteen at Berlin. America sent eight representatives to the former and forty-six to the latter Conference.

The twenty-seventh American International Convention was held at San Francisco, in 1887. The eleventh of these conventions, held at Albany, N. Y., in 1866, marks an epoch in association history. From that meeting dates the beginning of the International work as since carried on, the appointment of the Day and Week of Prayer for Young Men, an awakening of the associations to a more definite work for young men by young men (in place of the more general religious and benevolent work into which many of them had been drifting) and the holding of annual conventions in many states of the union, and in the provinces of Canada.

In 1886 twenty-nine such conventions were held. They are modeled in their organization, procedure, discussions and work, after the International Convention, and owe much of their development to the agency of that Convention, through the executive committees appointed by it, known as the International Committee.

The headquarters of this committee were located in New York, in 1866, and the working quorum has been continued there ever since. There are thirty-three members, representing all sections of the two countries. It was incorporated in 1883, and has a board of fifteen trustees.

The work of this committee is prosecuted mainly through the twelve secretaries under its direction, whose duties consist (1) in organizing Associations and branches; (2) in advising with Association managers about difficulties in their work; (3) in aiding to raise money for the employment of secretaries, and (in some exceptional cases) for the erection of buildings and the extinction of debts; (4) in looking up and training suitable men for the secretaryship, and bringing them to the notice of the associations; (5) in disseminating information about the work through correspondence and publications (over 100,000 pamphlets are circulated annually;) and (6) putting into operation special forms of effort adapted to promote Christian activity among the following classes of young men: Students in colleges and higher schools (150,000 in number;) railroad men (10,000,000;) German-speaking young men (2,000,000;) commercial travellers (100,000;) colored young men (500,000.)

This Committee renders counsel and aid to many of the State Committees in various matters, and it is the only missionary agency to extend and care for the work in immense regions of the continent now destitute of associations, or where they are few and feeble.

The expense connected with this work amounts to over $35,000 a year, and is met by voluntary contributions from the friends of the cause.

THE STATE COMMITTEES.

The State Conventions, meeting originally at the call of the International, nat-cured visiting secretaries, who, each in his own field, organize and develop local Associations, with Railroad and German departments, and college Associations. The state organizations expended in 1886, $38,959.

THE CENTRAL COMMITTEE.

The World's Triennial Conference has met quite regularly since 1855, but had no permanent executive committee until, under the strong influence of American example, at its eighth meeting in Geneva, Switzerland, in 1878, a Central Committee was appointed, with a quorum located at Geneva, and a member in each Association country.

This Committee, following the American precedent, sought and found a permanent secretary, and has exerted a decided influence in extending work for young men upon the continent of Europe. It brought such encouraging reports of its progress to the subsequent meetings of the Conference at London in 1881, and at Berlin in 1884, that it has been continued, and the development of its work has been provided for.

Hon. Grover Cleveland, now president of the United States, when mayor of Buffalo, made an address at the laying of the corner-stone of the Young Men's Christian Association building in that city, in which he said:

"As the Chief Executive of this city, I congratulate all my fellow-citizens that to-day we lay the corner-stone of an edifice which shall not only be a beautiful ornament to our city, but what is more important, shall inclose within its walls such earnest Christian endeavors as must make easier all our efforts to administer safely and honestly a good municipal government."

Mr. John Wanamaker, of Philadelhia, a lifelong and generous friend of the Association, says:

"Philadelphia, with its hundred thousand young men, could get on better without its street railroads, than without its fine commodious building for the Young Men's Christian Association. No better investment has ever been made in this city by its merchants and business men, than the gymnasium, library, reading room and halls, that they have provided for its young men."

"Did n't know 't was Loaded"

May do for a stupid boy's excuse; but what can be said for the parent who sees his child languishing daily and fails to recognize the want of a tonic and blood-purifier? Formerly, a course of bitters, or sulphur and molasses, was the rule in well-regulated families; but now all intelligent households keep Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which is at once pleasant to the taste, and the most searching and effective blood medicine ever discovered.

Nathan S. Cleveland, 27 E. Canton st., Boston, writes: "My daughter, now 21 years old, was in perfect health until a year ago when she began to complain of fatigue, headache, debility, dizziness, indigestion, and loss of appetite. I concluded that all her complaints originated in impure blood, and induced her to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine soon restored her blood-making organs to healthy action, and in due time reestablished her former health. I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla a most valuable remedy for the lassitude and debility incident to spring time."

J. Castright, Brooklyn Power Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "As a Spring Medicine, I find a splendid substitute for the old-time compounds in Ayer's Sarsaparilla, with a few doses of Ayer's Pills. After their use, I feel fresher and stronger to go th ough the summer."

"Hood's Sarsaparilla beats all others, and is worth its weight in gold." I. BARRINGTON, 130 Bank Street, New York City.

Is so vastly superior to any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier, that one has well said: "Its health-giving effects upon the blood and entire human organism, are as much more positive than the remedies of a quarter or a century ago, as the steam-power of to-day is in advance of the slow and laborious drudgery of years ago."

"While suffering from a severe bilious attack in March, 1883, a friend in Peoria, Ill., recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla. I tried the remedy, and was permanently cured." J. A. SHEPARD, travelling agent for Devoe & Co., Fulton Street, N. Y.

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co.

— FROM THE —

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we respectfully request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

30,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Silver-ware, Window Shades, Drapery, Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Stoves and Ranges, Feathers, Feather Pillows, Spreads, Blankers, Chamber Sets, Parlor Suits, Carpets, Lounges, Easy Chairs, Mattresses, Springs,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the

Furniture, Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET, PARLOR SUIT, Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. There are items worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time, We have invariably paid out the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We wish to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

KITCHEN RANGE, or a CHAMBER SET, or PARLOR SUIT, or CARPETS, WINDOW SHADES, DRAPERY CURTAINS,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of these Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell the same and shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. This notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store, Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

Respectfully, the Public's Ob't Servants,

THE ATKINSON HOUSE FURNISHING CO.,

ODD FELLOWS' CELEBRATION.

The celebration of the 44th anniversary of Piscataqua Lodge, No. 6, I. O. O. F., in Odd Fellows' hall on Monday evening, was one of the most notable occasions in the history of that lodge, the oldest and wealthiest in the city. The hall was opened to the invited guests and families of members at seven o'clock, the regular meeting of the lodge being held in one of the ante-rooms; this was very thoughtful on the part of the committee, as the guests were enabled to be seated and in readiness to listen to the programme of the evening at the close of the meeting, which was short. On previous similar occasions of this kind, the meetings of the lodges giving the entertainments have been held in the main hall, thus keeping their friends standing in the entry in a state of uneasiness and confusion.

By quarter of eight, the time announced for the commencing of the services, the hall was filled, and the audience listened to the following excellent programme:

1. Introductory, Albert R. Junkins.
2. Music by orchestra.
3. Historical address, Bro. Wm. W. Cotton.
4. Song, Bro. John A. Hainer.
5. Piano Solo, Miss Mabel B. Cotton.
6. Recitation, Miss Grace C. Wendell.
7. Music, orchestra.
8. Song, Mrs. Frank Williams.
9. Recitation, Miss Annie Wingate.
10. Song and chorus, Rev. John A. Hainer, John H. Locke, Misses Florence M. Coleman, Bertha N. Fletcher, Mattie Fernald, Mary Locke, Bertha Boynton; pianist, Miss Alice M. Swasey.
11. Selection, by orchestra.
12. Piano solo, Miss Annie Wingate.
13. Closing ode.

The exercises were very interesting, and finely carried out. At the close of the literary and musical entertainment the company adjourned to the banquet hall, where a bountiful collation was served. At the close of the supper the floor was cleared and a social dance was given, which lasted into the small hours of morning. This occasion will long be remembered by the members of the lodge, and its friends, and we hope that they will keep on in the same spirit that has been evinced from the start, in doing good and in caring for their members and their families in time of sickness and distress.

THE RAILROAD FIGHT.

The Concord correspondent of the Boston Advertiser under date of May 19th says: "The disposal of the impending receivership of the Boston, Concord & Montreal railroad and the consequent truce between the Boston & Maine and Concord railroad managers is regarded in railway circles of the state as an unconditional surrender on the part of the Boston & Maine. The Concord syndicate are far more elated than they were over the defeat of their contestants for the lease of the B., C. & M. line on the occasion of the veto of the Hazen bill. The concessions of the Boston & Maine embrace the right to go to the supreme court at Washington upon the question of the lease of the B., C. & M. R. R. to the Boston & Lowell. With this waiver the syndicate are supremely happy, as they have every reason to be assured that the supreme court of New Hampshire will adhere to the doctrines laid down in the Dow suit against the Northern railroad, and hold this lease to be invalid."

MUSIC HALL.

Last Monday night Mr. Dan'l Sully produced his new comedy called Daddy Nolan, at Tony Pastor's theatre, and scored a complete triumph. The piece to finish. The first act is a happy blending of humor and pathos, with a particularly strong ending. In the second act the audience is introduced to Daddy Nolan in poverty. The scene is very lively, and kept the people in front of the footlights in roars of laughter. In the last act, a scene on Brooklyn Heights, the company introduced a number of clever specialities, Mr. Mat Arnold being especially good. The scenery of the play is the best ever seen on that stage, and would be a credit to any theatre. The last act, showing a view of Brooklyn bridge, with the cars and ferry boats in motion, was very realistic, and was greeted with prolonged applause. Mr. Sully was the Daddy Nolan, of course, and proved himself to be an actor of great merit. His pathos was strong and effective, and his humor infectious. Daddy Nolan is as good a play as Edward Harrigan ever turned out. It is a genuine success, and has brought Mr. Sully into the front rank as an author and comedian.—New York Sunday Democrat.

At Music hall to-morrow evening; see advertisment; tickets at Goodrich's.

THOSE "TIN BOXES."

The agent of the "Model Self-Locking Mail Box" objects to the designation of "tin box" given to it by a correspondent of this paper, and has brought one of the boxes into this office for inspection. The box is made of malleable iron, weighs between three and four pounds, is convenient of access to the person having the key, but to no one else, and we should think it would prove a decided convenience to persons wishing their mail matter delivered by carriers, as well as to the carriers themselves. Placed in a porch, or almost any kind of a niche beside a door, it would hardly be noticed.

A DESERVED COMPLIMENT.

At a meeting of the governor and council of Maine, May 15th, the following resolutions were read, adopted by the council and approved by the governor:

Resolved, That a vote of thanks be and is hereby extended to the officers and crews of the United States revenue steamers "Levi Woodbury" and "Alexander J. Dallas" for meritorous conduct in saving life and property in the winter of 1887—'88.

Resolved, That a copy of the above resolutions be forwarded by the secretary to the captains of said revenue steamers.

The foregoing vote of thanks by the governor and council of Maine, is given to show their appreciation of the hard and laborious work of the two cutters on the coast of Maine the past winter, in which they assisted, saved from wreck, and released from the ice about 400 vessels of all descriptions and nationalities, mostly American, and on board of which were about 2000 seamen. It has been a very severe winter on that bleak and broken coast.

Two of the engineer officers of the Levi Woodbury are natives and residents of Kittery; they are First Asst. Engr. O. P. Remick, and Second Asst. Engr. Alexander Dennett, who also have the rank of lieutenant in the United States revenue service. Engineer Remick has been in the service twelve years, and has served on the Pacific and Alaskan coasts, and in the gulf of Mexico; he has been attached to the Woodbury for the past two and a half years. Engineer Dennett has been in the service ten years, and has served in the Gulf of Mexico and on the Boston station; he has been attached to the Woodbury for the past year.

LITERARY COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

At a regular meeting of the Portsmouth Unity club, held Friday afternoon, the 11th inst., the following report by the chairman of the literary committee was read:

You have been invited to meet the ladies of the "committee of arrangement" for the afternoon exercises, to hear the report for the season just over. There is not very much to say, as they have labored under some embarrassment in being obliged to choose the course of study with no preparation; but possibly a few suggestions born of their brief experience, may be of some assistance to the management during the coming year.

The subjects selected for consideration were the works of one of our favorite New England poets, divided in a "Leaflet" which was prepared for a western society, under our own title, into seven different heads. This we have followed.

"We have walked in a garden and looking around,
Have plucked a few leaves from the myrtles we found."

After reading the poems over, we assigned each accordingly to our taste, or the understood willingness of any member to take part. Our glance has been but a cursory one, yet we have discovered in our poet at home, his earnestness and tenderness as a man,—especially marked in the class of pieces such as the "Old Man's Dream," "Homesick in Heaven," etc. His contempt for fraud, deception, pretention, and charlatanism, in the physician, are noticeable in such as the "Stethescope Song" represents, in the diagnosis of "the bruise on his forehead," and the case of "Fever versus patient." As a patriot, his loyalty and love of country we cannot but see in such as "Union and Liberty," "The Ship of State," "Our Fathers' Land," "The Lament for Sister Caroline," and many others. His broad, generous, liberal, yet noble and reverential thought, as a preacher, are breathed in "The Chambered Nautilus," the "Hymn of Trust," "A Sunday Hymn," "Worship," "Manhood," "Rights," "Idols," "Love," etc., and as much of the phrase of Dr. Holmes is autobiographic, in such passages as these from the "Poet at the Breakfast Table:"

"Now I want to remind you that religion is not a matter of intellectual luxury to those of us who are interested in it. It is our life, and more than our life; for that is measured by pulse-beats, but our religious consciousness partakes of the Infinite, toward which it is constantly yearning. It is very possible that a hundred or five hundred years from now, the forms of religious belief may be so altered that we should hardly know them; but the sense of dependence on Divine influence, and the need of communion with the unseen and eternal, will be then just what they are now. It is not the geologist's hammer, or the astronomer's telescope, or the naturalists' microscope, that is going to take away the need of the human soul for that Rock to rest upon which is higher than itself, that Star which never sets, that all-prevailing Presence which gives life to all the least moving atom of the immeasurable universe."

"Since I have been taught in the school of trial I have felt, as I never could before, how precious an inheritance is the smallest patrimony of faith. When everything seemed gone from me, I found I had still one passion. The bruised reed that I had never leaned on became my staff. The smoking flax which had been a worry to my eyes burst into flame, and I lighted the taper at it which has since guided all my footsteps. And I am but one of the thousands who have had the same experience. They have sounded the depths of affliction, and know the needs of the human soul. It will find its God in the unseen,—Father, Saviour, Divine Spirit, Virgin Mother,—it must and will breathe its longings and its griefs into the heart of a Being capable of understanding all its necessities, and sympathizing with all its woes."

The geniality and sentiment we find in him as a poet, overflow in "Sympathies," and in many of the verses written for the class of '29 and on other special occasions.

The mirth and humor untouched by bitterness, unmarred by any sting, which characterize him as a wit, are fully appreciated in the inimitable "Deacon's Shay," "How the old horse won," "Parson Turrell's Legacy," "Contentment," the "Height of the Ridiculous," and a host more. If not audible, one can feel the smile pass over him as he reads this admirable work of a natural humorist. We find from his own words that he wrote spontaneously, from love of writing, and because he could not help it. He had reached and touched our common human nature because of his own fullness, and all can find something in his works familiar to his own experience. I quote again:

"Kiberavi animam meam. That is the meaning of my book and of my literary life, if I may give such a name to that parti-colored sheed of human existence. I have unburdened myself in this book, and in some other pages, of what I was born to say. Many things that I have said in my ripe days have been aching in my soul since I was a mere child"—

"Deal gently with us, ye who read!
Our largest hope is unfulfilled,—
The promise still outruns the deed,—
The tower, but not the spire we build."

"Our whitest pearl we never find;
Our ripest fruit we never reach;
The flowering moments of the mind
Drop half their petals in our speech."

Now follow suggestions and discussions of plans for another year.

A foot race between two well known sporting men of this city is said to have been arranged, and articles duly signed. As both of them are built on the rolling-pin model, biggest amidships, it is likely that the race will develope considerable fun, even though the speed should not be so great as to shut out Maud S.

One of Jackson & Co.'s Express teams came out on Monday respendent in a new coat of paint—red body, and yellow running gear. The work was done by Scriggins, of Vaughan street, and looks first-rate. The driver, Everett Call, boasts that he has now got the best-looking team in Portsmouth.

WHAT IS SCROFULA
It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which developes ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" which, fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED
By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, sores breaking out on them in various places. My little boy, three years old, has been a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. I was advised to use Hood's Sarsaparilla, and we have all taken it. The result is that all have been cured of the scrofula, my little boy being entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy." W. B. ATHERTON, Passaic City, N. J.

IT IS VERY EASY
TO restore painted walls and wood-work to their original freshness, if you will take a pailful of tepid water, two sponges, and a cake of IVORY SOAP. Apply the soap with one sponge, and remove the soap and dirt with the other, rinse the latter frequently, and change the water often. Ordinary soap is apt to be too highly chemicalled to use on paint. The IVORY SOAP is mild but very effective.

A WORD OF WARNING.
There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS

The easiest organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture $22 TO $900. in these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS. Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all GRAND & UPRIGHT pianos made by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred prominent musicians and amateurs, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

What a High Official Has to Say About the Condition of the People—Some Serious Facts and Figures.

[Herald.]

"It is wonderful what figures will show." Such was the remark of a high official in the State Department to a representative of this paper. "How many really rich men do you suppose there are in New England? Very few. But how many do you think there would be if people were physically and mentally sound and vigorous? New England people are active, restless and ambitious, and therefore neglect themselves. Not one man or woman in ten is in perfect health."

"Official figures show this, do they?"

"Precisely. There seems to be a New England disease. People do not seem to think that headaches, or tired feeling, or 'blues,' or loss of appetite, or nervousness mean anything. Then, the first thing they know they are in bed and on there it is death.

"Do many die of this disease?"

"Thousands. Henry Wilson, Charles Sumner, Wendell Phillips and Governor Bodwell are among the number. James G. Blaine is also on the road, and his trip abroad is in the hope of recovering health."

"But what do you find to counteract it?"

"Very little. The only reliable medicine so far discovered is Hunt's Remedy. The faculty of one of our leading medical colleges, knowing the composition of this medicine, have been recommending it for some time, and the results have been wonderful. I know three ladies and one gentleman (one of the latter a State officer), who have been entirely cured by its use. I wish everybody might know more about it and use it."

Such facts and figures, and from so high a source, should prove invaluable to thousands who without success in life would be much greater were they physically and mentally sound and vigorous.

BILIOUSNESS.

This very common complaint, which is caused by a dormant or inactive liver, can be cured in a short time by using Ingalls' Mandrake Compound, as can also the various diseases arising from inactive liver or kidneys. These organs, if inactive, will allow impure blood to enter the heart, causing tightness about that organ and palpitation.

She suffered thirty years.

MRS. DUDLEY CHANDLER, of Melrose, Mass., says: "I had suffered with Palpitation of the Heart more than thirty years before I found anything to give me essential relief. Last fall I tried Ingalls' Mandrake Compound, and, remarkable as it was, this Compound relieved me in two days, so that for several months afterwards I felt not the slightest touch of it, and am perfectly free from it now. Sometimes, before I took this Compound, the pulsations of my heart were so violent as to shake my whole body with rapid agitations, and at times I fainted and became entirely insensible. Now I am perfectly free from all this suffering. Consequently I can most sincerely and earnestly recommend this Compound to all like sufferers, as pre-eminently the best medicine I ever knew for Palpitation of the Heart."

This Compound is purely Vegetable, and strengthens and builds up the system while it eradicates disease.

Ingalls' Mandrake Compound is sold by all Druggists. Price $1; six bottles for $5. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

A GREAT TOBACCO BOX.

The Little Gift of an English Overseer Grows Into a Massive Chest.

The greatest tobacco box in the world, and the strongest as well, is the property of a society known as that of "The Past Overseers of St. Margaret and St. John, Westminster." It is simply a getting together of those who have held the office of overseer of the parish for the purpose of eating an annual dinner, which they have regularly done for now nearly 200 years. Incidentally they have become also custodians of the "Westminster Tobacco Box." The story goes that in the year 1713 one of the overseers who had been in the habit of bringing to the tavern dinners his own private tobacco box and putting it at the service of his friends, presumably with a better brand than the common one in it, presented to the company a tobacco box for its own use when he should have got beyond the need of dinners. The society accepted the box, and placed upon it a silver rim and a plate upon which were engraved the name and the good deeds of the donor.

The next overseer put upon the box another plate with his name and official achievements upon it. His successor did the same, and so grew up the custom that the box should be delivered to the care of each new overseer, who, upon retiring, should add to it a plate engraved with his name and some suitable inscription. Before long the box became quite overlaid with silver plates, and then it was fitted into a large box, and the new plates were put upon that. This in turn was inclosed in a still larger box when it had been covered with decorations, and this operation was repeated until now the original little box has grown into a nest of half a dozen or more boxes, the outer one being a massive silver covered, hexagonal chest, which was made from a beam that was once in Westminster Abbey. Silver plates of all sizes and shapes and decorated with all manner of figures, pictures and inscriptions cover all the boxes. In most cases the notable event of the year has been recorded by picture or words upon the plate of the overseer for that year, and the box has thus become a condensed chronicle of the history of the past century in England.

At each annual dinner the box is with a regular ceremonial handed over to the new overseer by the senior church warden, and the overseer is commanded to take due care of the article, to produce it at all parochial entertainments to which he shall be invited or have the right to attend, and to always keep in it tobacco enough to furnish at least three pipes, under penalty of forfeiting six bottles of claret. Besides this he has to furnish a bond in $1,000 as security for the care of the box. One of the peculiar regulations of the dinner, introduced in 1823, is that it must be served at 5 o'clock by the striking of a certain church clock, or the landlord forfeits two bottles of wine, and if he fails to produce his bill promptly at 8:30 o'clock he loses another bottle.

Once in 1793 an overseer named Read had a claim against the parish and he refused to give up the box and threatened to destroy it unless the claim was paid. A suit in chancery was begun, and Lord Chancellor Loughborough decreed that the box must be turned over to the society and that the overseer must also pay the costs of the suit, whereat the society had a special dinner and rejoiced greatly, and entered upon its books the record that the solicitor who conducted the suit for the society should be made an honorary member, "that he may often have an opportunity of contemplating the box and its recovery." In 1785 thieves robbed the dinner table of all the silver, but luckily the box had been taken care of by the overseer before they came.—New York Sun.

Lurking Danger in Oysters.

It is in order, says Mr. Murray, to advise housewives how they should order their oysters opened; for, while there may not appear to be any danger in so innocent looking a thing as an oyster, there is, nevertheless, great danger of its killing us if by chance we should swallow a ragged piece of oyster shell when eating oysters. There is just one way to prevent this danger, and that is to refuse all oysters which have been opened by the process known as "smashing." This operation spoils the appearance of the oyster and its shell, and small particles of the shell are hammered into the body of the oyster, which, when introduced into the stomach, becomes a terror as deadly as the mistakes of the druggists. Insist on it that your oysters are opened by the stabbing process, and you avert this danger. Children should not be allowed to eat oysters, raw or cooked, unless they have been thoroughly and carefully examined for minute particles of shell. I am very serious about this oyster opening business, for, having lost a very dear friend through his having carelessly swallowed a piece of oyster shell which clung to the oyster, I feel that I cannot be too emphatic on the subject.—Boston Herald.

Drafts Not Injurious.

As one of the greatest authorities on hygiene, Prof. Reclam, remarks: "Drafts are not injurious unless we are in a glow. To healthy persons they cannot possibly do so much harm as the stagnant air in a close room. The fear of drafts is entirely groundless, though it affects most people in a manner which is simply ludicrous." It is high time to acquit drafts of the charge of being the cause of our colds, and to convict the true culprit, the injurious hothouse atmosphere in our rooms. Why do people on river excursions or on ocean steamers, where they are exposed to terrible drafts, never "catch cold?" Simply because their skins are not previously broiled in hothouses.—Boston Budget.

Effects of Frost on Fish.

Some time ago there were paragraphs in several of the papers describing the large takes of conger eels in the channel during the cold weather. A correspondent sends me an interesting extract from a book of the late Frank Buckland, which contains an explanation of this phenomenon—the explanation being that the frost causes the air in the bladders of the fish to expand, and so brings them to the surface. In one year as many as eighty tons of fish were caught in this way by the Hastings boatmen. I should think the conger-is even more glad than the rest of us when the wind gets into a warmer quarter.—London Truth.

Inherited from Ancestors.

It is very unlikely that the constitution and tendencies inherited from the ancestry have much to do with long life, of course leaving all accidents, epidemic diseases, etc., out of account. Hereditary tendencies include more than mere bodily form and toughness of fiber. There are mental and emotional tendencies which are equally important in determining the length of life to be attained by the possessor. Control over the passions and the ability to foresee and guard against consequences are not less important than

Facts Worth Knowing.

In all diseases of the nasal mucous membrane the remedy used must be non-irritating. The medical profession has been slow to learn this. Nothing satisfactory can be accomplished with douches, snuffs, powders, syringes, astringents, or any similar application, because they are all irritating, do not thoroughly reach the affected surfaces and should be abandoned as worse than failures. A multitude of persons who have for years borne all the worry and pain that catarrh can inflict, testify to radical and permanent cures wrought by Ely's Cream Balm.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper. W. A. NOYES, 149 Power's Block, Rochester N. Y. Geow1jan9

Dr. Gage and Associate Physicians, and Their Great Work.

Probably no physician in New England is better and more favorably known, says a New Hampshire exchange, than is Dr. Gage, the gifted specialist, who has treated more than fifteen thousand patients in this state, the announcement of his visits each month being the signal for a grand rally of a multitude of invalids. His success is indeed phenomenal and the reports of marvellous cures would fill this entire paper, the like of which was never known in the history of medical practice. The following is a fair sample:

Mr. Editor: A few months ago my daughter was laying at the point of death. She had a complication of troubles, a terrible cough, raising an immense quantity, a discharging sore upon her hip which rendered her perfectly helpless. Our family physician gave us no hope, but with a mother's will and determination to save her perishing child if possible, I hastened to consult Dr. Gage. Although he did not see her he nevertheless understood the case and his remedies have wrought a miracle—almost—by restoring my child to perfect health. I thank God that I consulted Dr. Gage.

SIBERIA.

Its Secrets Revealed—George Kennan's Wonderful Journey.

MOST interesting contribution to secret history will be the illustrated papers on "Siberia and the Exile System," by George Kennan, which begin in the May Century magazine. They will embody the results of what is believed to be the first successful attempt by a competent investigator to make a thorough study of the Russian exile system. Before undertaking his arduous journey of 15,000 miles, in the interest of The Century, Mr. Kennan, author of That Lift in Siberia, etc., had spent four years in Russia and Siberia, was thoroughly conversant with the people and the language, and had reached the conclusion that the Russian Government had been misrepresented, and that the exile system of Siberia was not so terrible as was supposed. Showing that Mr. Kennan held these views, the Russian Government gave him every facility for a thorough of Siberia—the most thorough that had ever been made by a traveler. Armed with letters from the Russian Minister of the Interior and other high officials, Mr. Kennan went everywhere, inspecting mines and prisons, convict barges and hospitals, and traveling with chained exiles along the great Siberian road. He made the intimate personal acquaintance of more than three hundred exiled "liberals" and Nihilists, many of whom wrote out their histories for his use. The actual facts, as revealed by this searching investigation, were far removed from Mr. Kennan's preconceived ideas, as this thrilling narrative of fifteen months' privation and adventure will show.

As is already known, the publication of Mr. Kennan's preliminary papers has resulted in his being placed by the Russian Government, and copies of The Century containing them have the objectionable article torn out by the custom officials before being allowed to enter the Czar's dominions.

"I expected, of course," says Mr. Kennan, in a recent interview, "to be put on the Russian black list. I am only thankful that I succeeded in crossing the frontier with all my material and papers coming this way. I became satisfied before I got half through Siberia that I should never be permitted to go there again, and that after the publication of my papers no other foreigner would be allowed to make investigations there, and I lost no possible opportunity to secure accuracy and thoroughness. I brought back more than fifty pounds of notes, papers and original documents, many of the latter from secret Government archives, besides five or six hundred foolscap pages of manuscript, prepared for me by political exiles in all parts of Siberia, and covering the most noteworthy episodes of their lives. I can regard the black listing, therefore, with a certain degree of complacency. The stable-door is locked, but the horse has been stolen—and I've got him."

Mr. G. A. Frost, artist and photographer, accompanied Mr. Kennan, and it is expected that the results of his work will form the most interesting series of pictures of Russian and Siberian life and scenery ever made.

MASKS OF HUMAN FLESH.

Dried Heads Used for Gods—Papuan Medicine Dances.

The most remarkable masks known to the museum collectors are the masks of human flesh. The preservation of human heads apart from the bodies has been a very widespread custom, both in savage ages and among half civilized peoples. But the mask composed of the flesh of a human face is peculiar to the islands of the South Seas and to some parts of South and Central America. The New Zealanders had a practice of preserving the entire head, either as a trophy or as a fetich, or perhaps both. The bones of the skull were removed, and the flesh impregnated with some embalming substance that dried it to the consistency of tough leather. Thus preserved, the head of a man of ordinary size shrank until no larger than a good-sized orange, but still retained most of the characteristic features of the countenance.

Much rarer, however, than those embalmed heads are the human masks from the south seas. A very peculiar specimen of one of these is seen in the British museum. It is composed of the flesh of a chieftain killed in war, and is remarkable not so much for the preservation nor for the care with which the work of embalming was done, as for the fact that the mask is heavily jeweled. The eyes are formed of pyrites, the nose is set with the delicate and beautiful shells found in the south seas, and a curious mosaic of black obsidians and green tortoise runs in bands across the face, while here and there, with no apparent regularity, are set separate beads of colored stone. It is a true mask, the back part of the skull and the bones of the face having been removed, and the best authorities express the opinion that this mask was used as an idol, or on the face of a Mexican priest during the ceremonies pertaining to human sacrifice.

Among savages religious, festive and social occasions are synonymous, and on most such masks are used either to hide the face from the deity or to furnish mirth for those gathered to see the sport. Many dances among the Papuans were entirely private and of a religious character, no strangers or women being allowed to enter. The Papuan masks are highly colored in red, white and black bands across the face, figures appearing also in other parts of the countenance. The frame work is of wood, built up with cocoanut shell. The beard of the nut is used for hair and whiskers. On each side of the mouth projects a long boar's tooth, the points recurving toward the eyes. Sometimes these Papuan masks have protruding tongues, and occasionally from the mouth projects an arrow or fish, while more rarely the head of an animal is used either for nose or chin, or both. The mask is also used for the dak dak, or medicine dance. When a chieftain or person high in authority among Papuans becomes sick, a man is hired to do the dak dak. He dresses himself in palm leaves, puts on a mask, performs certain incantations in private, begs from door to door and from every person he meets any small gift they choose to bestow as a reward for his services; then performs other unknown incantations, winding up with a visit to the sick man, who, the Papuans naively state, either gets well or dies, according to the faith he has in the medicine man and the wonderful mask.—Globe-Democrat.

The Earth's Supports.

In the early gropings of the human mind probably no problem was more perplexing than that of the earth's foundations. One of the most primitive ideas represented the earth as a vast flat island, surrounded by an interminable ocean; and this view was subsequently modified by giving the ocean a circular boundary, with endless roots stretching downward beneath the whole. The priests of Veda asserted that the earth was supported on twelve columns, between which the sun passed. Anaximander regarded the earth as a cylinder floating in compressed air.

The idea that the earth floated long prevailed, even the early Hindoos, who supposed the hemispherical earth to rest on the heads of four elephants standing on the back of a tortoise, maintaining that the tortoise rested on the universal ocean. Aristotle and Strabo conceived the sphericity of the earth, but what supported it as the motionless center of their universe puzzled them. Cosmas, A. D. 535, propounded the system of a square earth, resting on nothing, and supporting the heavens on solid walls. The venerable Bede, who lived in the Eighth century, regarded the earth as a floating egg, and this notion lasted many centuries. These crude theories have come down to a surprisingly recent period—so much a thing of today is our modern science.—Arkansaw Traveler.

Nothing to Do but Dance.

The women of Paraguay have but one pastime, that of dancing. They wear white robes that leave their shapely shoulders and tapering arms all bare. A gold comb of enormous size is the only head ornament. Parties are gotten up on the slightest pretext. The dances are in quaint, original figures, but nearly always very graceful. Sometimes the festivities will be kept up through the entire night, after which the participants will gayly return to their occupations of whatever nature, always contented, always happy. Sometimes there will be a grand contribution picnic at some distant point, where the dancing will be kept up through the round of a whole twenty-four hours. For these people live but to be happy through the livelong day.—Philadelphia Times.

America in the English Atlas.

If any of you have ever seen an English atlas you will understand why it is difficult to get from it a good idea of America. We shall find in such an atlas full and complete maps of every European country and principality, a whole page being sometimes given to an island, or to a colony in Asia and Africa; but the entire United States, with sometimes the whole of North America beside, is crowded into a single map. Some of these are so small that the New England states are not large enough to contain their names, and are designated by letters which refer to the names printed in an open part of the Atlantic ocean. No wonder that the people who use these maps have a limited idea of our country.—St. Nicholas.

March April May

Are the best months in which to purify your blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best blood purifier.

At no other season does the human system so much need the aid of a reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla, as now. The impoverished condition of the blood, the weakening effects of the long, cold winter, the lost appetite, and that tired feeling, all make a good spring medicine absolutely necessary. Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiarly adapted for this purpose, and increases in popularity every year. It is the ideal spring medicine.

"I must say Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine I ever used. Last spring I had no appetite, and the least work I did fatigued me ever so much. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and soon felt that I could do as much in a day as I had formerly done in a week. My appetite is voracious." MRS. M. V. BAYARD, Atlantic City, N. J.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to buy any other.

AMONG THE WISE THE HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

Were all wise enough to need this advice in season, a world of suffering would be avoided. If you suffer from impure blood, scrofula, dyspepsia, biliousness, headache, take

WALDEN'S

JOB PRINTING OFFICE,

NO. 7 PLEASANT ST. CHRONICLE BUILDING

It is a strange fact that the strongest-minded women shrink from being caught in their own night-caps, but they never hesitate to declare their exalted opinion of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup that has cured innumerable coughs and colds.

In the Dominion house of commons, May 19th, Mr. Foster, minister of marine and fisheries, said that the appropriation for fisheries protection would be less than last year, but the protection would be just as efficient.

More than twenty years ago Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam was introduced generally throughout New England as a remedy for coughs, colds and pulmonary complaints. Since its introduction it has constantly won its way into public favor, until now it is the universal decision that it is the best remedy for curing coughs, colds and asthma.

Six thousand persons, assembled at Phœnix park, Dublin, Ireland, on Saturday last, to take action on the resolutions adopted by the Irish Catholic members of parliament with reference to the recent Papal rescript. Good order prevailed, and the manifesto of the Irish members was endorsed.

A Great Battle

Is continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. A good reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla is the weapon with which to defend one's self, drive the desperate enemy from the field, and restore peace and bodily health for many years. Try this peculiar medicine.

DARTMOUTH ITEMS.

HANOVER, N. H., May 21st.

Mr. William Newell of Portsmouth has been visiting the Portsmouth boys here.

A bicycle club has been formed among the students.

A tennis tournament will be held here May 28th.

Contrary to reports that have appeared lately in some papers, the authorities have not yet taken any action to prevent the college from taking part in any of the intercollegiate contests.

The Williams college nine defeated our nine here last Tuesday and Thursday by a score of nine to six and seven to two. Everybody was confident that we would win these games, and by losing them, Dartmouth's chances for the championship this year are greatly lessened. These are the first intercollegiate games lost on our grounds since the present senior class has been in college.

At the intercollegiate athletic meet to be held at Worcester, Mass., next Thursday, Dartmouth men will be entered for the two mile, half mile, and quarter mile runs, the two hundred and twenty yard and the hundred yard dashes, the hurdle race, running high jump and standing broad jump, throwing hammer, putting shot, bicycle race and tug of war. J. W. Kelley, '88, and J. P. Canty, '90, both of Portsmouth, will pull in the tug of war. B

MATTERS IN YORK.

YORK BEACH, ME., May 21st.

Mr. Samuel Ramsdell, of Dover, N. H., has leased the Thompson house for the season.

Mr. C. B. Moseley of Concord, N. H., is having hot-water heating apparatus put into his house at Concordville.

The operetta entitled "Grandpa's Birthday," given by Miss Romie Ellis' Sabbath school class, at the Ocean house on Friday evening, the 18th, was a decided success. Miss Ellis well merits the praise which she received. Every part was well acted, showing the skillful training of the children which could bring out this charming operetta with such delightful effect. As the curtain arose on the second act, the beautiful wood scene of trees and flowers, and the children dressed in white, with their happy faces as they marched, carrying wreaths and baskets of flowers, and carolling songs, made a picture of such beauty as to call forth loud and continuous applause from the audience. During the evening Miss Ellis was presented with a beautiful bouquet.

A very pleasant praise service was held at the Abbott house on Sunday evening; a large number of people were present. SUB.

YORK VILLAGE, ME., May 22d.

The resignation of Rev. D. B. Sewall, pastor of the First Congregational church of York, has been accepted by the parish, who much regret losing the highly-esteemed and honored gentleman who for fifteen years has been among them, and to whom all are greatly attached. Mr. Sewall will preach his farewell sermon on the last Sunday in June.

The workmen are progressing well in building the new depot at the York harbor railroad station, which when finished will be a great addition to the looks as well as to the convenience of the place.

Mr. J. C. Norwood is having some repairs and improvements made in his already spacious and attractive boarding house.

A valuable dog owned by Capt. Herbert Baker was killed by the cars in York one day last week. J. E.

AGAMENTICUS, YORK, May 21st.

The farmers are very backward with their spring work, owing to the long and cold rain storms; some have not ploughed a furrow; others have planted a little. There are lots of land that they cannot get a team on to yet. Apple tree buds have just begun to open, and on the whole it is a very backward spring.

There was quite a gathering at the school house on Sunday to hear Rev. G. D. Holmes, the Methodist minister at York Village, but he did not come, and Rev. J. Young, from South Berwick, preached to us instead.

Henry Plaisted is working for John McIntire on his farm.

Walter Trafton is visiting friends in this vicinity again.

Edward Lewis has swapped horses with Albert Junkins.

Woodbury Ramsdell is building a fine large barn.

James Fitzgerald has two sick cows.

We are glad that they are trying to stop liquor selling in Portsmouth. We think it would be more benefit to York than the York Harbor & Beach railroad.

Mrs. Keziah Welch is stopping with her daughter, Mrs. Hill of Kittery.

Mrs. James Littlefield is the smartest old lady we have with us; she is eighty-two years old, and has done her own housework for herself and husband, spun seventy-five skeins of yarn, doubled and twisted twenty, knit thirteen pairs of mittens, four pairs of seamed stockings, made three pairs of pants, three shirts and one dress, hooked one rug, made and sold forty lbs. of butter, and walked one mile and done washing for a family, the past winter. F.

HAMPTON JOTTINGS.

HAMPTON, May 21st.

Farm help is scarce in this vicinity; it is a rare thing to find a man who will board himself, and several young men of this town married ladies from the city who know nothing about boarding workmen; it is hard work for them, and their ignorance in regard to it cannot be described.

Mr. Pearson and wife, of Boston, have been sojourning at the Union house for the past week. He is the inventor of the motor and steam appliance for street cars; he has studied for the past six years to perfect this idea, and is quite tired out. He is consulting parties in Portsmouth in regard to using his system.

A large number of ladies were unable to attend the annual meeting of the Rockingham County Auxiliary W. B. Missions at Portsmouth, on account of the weather, and were much disappointed; quite a number went to Kensington, and found the meeting very instructive.

Rev. J. A. Ross will deliver the sermon before Perkins Post, G. A. R. on Sunday, the 27th.

Boston architects were employed to draw plans for the town hall. The bids are open, and now it is alleged that some underhand work has been done, as Epping men bid 300 dollars less than some others, and they ought to have the job. Some in town want it, and an injunction has been issued; the majority of the people prefer that outside parties would do the work. ——.

Ayers & Locke have ladies' Jersey vests from 25 cents upward; also lisle and silk ditto, equally good values.

When the Shah Was Frightened.

But twice in all his travels through Europe did he evince any emotion. When he was about to embark for England he looked out over the sea, which was as smooth as glass, and concluded that he would not entrust his imperial person to the danger of a sea voyage; and when it was impressed upon him that he could not get to England from any part of continental Europe without crossing an interval of salt water he was of half a mind to give up that part of his foreign tour. But curiosity prevailed and he stepped aboard the deck of the Vigilant, and in justice to him it must be said that during five hours of the voyage he maintained that impassive demeanor which he had displayed on terra firma, never exhibiting an outward sign of any internal uneasiness until the squadron which had been sent by order of the queen to meet and escort her royal visitor hove in sight. A look of astonishment came over the face of the shah and his Oriental followers as they gazed at the monsters bearing down on them.

When the first man of war reached a position exactly abreast of the Vigilant, and opened fire with the first round of the royal salute with a gun bigger than anything ever before discharged in honor of the Persian monarch, his face lost some of its color and it grew paler with each discharge, and when at last something resembling an enormous turtle, with a huge excrescence growing out of its back, wallowed by and belched forth a column of smoke, with an explosion that actually, for a moment, seemed to lift the Vigilant out of the water, the king frowned sternly, though his face was deadly pale and his Persian attendants collapsed with fright. Some fell on the deck, while others crowded to the companion hatch and scuttled below more dead than alive with fright. But when land was once more reached the shah resumed his stoic bearing and maintained it thereafter.—"Monarchs I Have Met."

A River on Fire.

A fountain of fire in the midst of a flowing river, as imaginatively described by Rider Haggard, exists as a reality in Indiana. The surplus gas from a gas well is carried off by a three inch pipe and turned into the river; when the full pressure of the gas is turned into the pipe the waters of the river are thrown to a height of from thirty to fifty feet, and fall back through the immense flame made by the burning gas. The varied hues imparted to the falling water give it the appearance of a true fountain of fire.—Globe-Democrat.

Want of Sleep

Is sending thousands annually to the insane asylum; and the doctors say this trouble is alarmingly on the increase. The usual remedies, while they may give temporary relief, are likely to do more harm than good. What is needed is an Alterative and Blood-purifier. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is incomparably the best. It corrects those disturbances in the circulation which cause sleeplessness, gives increased vitality, and restores the nervous system to a healthful condition.

Rev. T. G. A. Coté, agent of the Mass. Home Missionary Society, writes that his stomach was out of order, his sleep very often disturbed, and some impurity of the blood manifest; but that a perfect cure was obtained by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Frederick W. Pratt, 424 Washington street, Boston, writes: "My daughter was prostrated with nervous debility. Ayer's Sarsaparilla restored her to health."

William F. Bowker, Erie, Pa., was cured of nervousness and sleeplessness by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla for about two months, during which time his weight increased over twenty pounds.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Combines, in a proportion peculiar to itself, the active medicinal properties of the best blood-purifying and strengthening remedies of the vegetable kingdom. It will positively cure—when in the power of medicine—Spring Debility, Headache, Dyspepsia, Catarrh, Salt Rheum, Scrofula, and all Diseases caused by a low state of the blood.

"I suffered three years with blood poison. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and think I am cured." MRS. M. J. DAVIS, Brockport, N. Y.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla beats all others, and is worth its weight in gold." I. BARRINGTON, 130 Bank Street, New York City.

Is so vastly superior to any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier, that one has well said: "Its health-giving effects upon the blood and entire human organism, are as much more positive than the remedies of a quarter or a century ago, as the steam-power of to-day is in advance of the slow and laborious drudgery of years ago."

"While suffering from a severe bilious attack in March, 1883, a friend in Peoria, Ill., recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla. I tried the remedy, and was permanently cured." J. A. SHEPARD, travelling agent for Devoe & Co., Fulton Street, New York City.

Purifies the Blood

"I tried a dozen articles to cleanse my blood, but never found anything that did me any good till I began using Hood's Sarsaparilla." W. H. PEEK, Rochester, N. Y.

"My wife was troubled with dizziness and constipation, and her blood has been in a bad order—in fact she has been all run down. Hood's Sarsaparilla is doing her a wonderful amount of good." F. M. BALDWIN, druggist, Blanchester, Ohio.

"I was for five years a sufferer with boils, all run down, and was at one time obliged to give up work. Before taking all of two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, was entirely cured." R. M. LANE, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. Took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

OFFICIAL NOTICE!

— OF —

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co.

— FROM THE —

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we respectfully request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

30,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Silver-ware, Window Shades, Drapery, Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Stoves and Ranges, Feathers, Feather Pillows, Spreads, Blankers, Chamber Sets, Parlor Suits, Carpets, Lounges, Easy Chairs, Mattresses, Springs,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the

Furniture, Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET, PARLOR SUIT, Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. There are items worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time, We have invariably paid out the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We wish to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

KITCHEN RANGE, or a CHAMBER SET, or PARLOR SUIT, or CARPETS, WINDOW SHADES, DRAPERY CURTAINS,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of these Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell the same and shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. This notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store, Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

Respectfully, the Public's Ob't Servants,

THE ATKINSON HOUSE FURNISHING CO.,

Headquarters Cor. Pearl and Middle Streets, Portland, and Branches at Auburn, Rockland, Bangor and Biddeford, also Bar Harbor for a short time.

ISAAC C. ATKINSON, Gen. Manager.

MUSIC HALL.

This evening, at Music hall, Mr. Dan'l Sully's delightful comedy "Daddy Nolan" will be presented, for the first time in this city. A friend who saw the piece performed in Boston some months ago assures us that it is one of the best things of the kind he ever saw, and that the press commendations are well deserved. The New York Sun says of it that it "is strong alike in quiet humor, deep feeling and faithful touches of nature." The World, that it "furnishes a good laugh for everybody—a good cry for those who feel for mimic suffering." The Times that it "is a play of striking and unmistakable merit." The Cincinnati Sun that "there is not a dull moment in it." All the stage effects and scenery are the same as have been used in the large cities. Tickets at Goodrich's.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Charles H. Kingsbury of this city leaves this (Wednesday) morning for Boston, to enter the service of the Hingham Steamboat Co. for the season as marine machinist.

Miss Ella Brown of State street is passing the remainder of the week with relatives in Kittery.

Mr. George S. Chapman of Salem, Mass., formerly of Kittery, was in this city last week.

Mr. William H. Goodwin, president of the Elliott national bank of Boston, and wife, were in this city on Tuesday.

Mr. Woodbury H. Wingate, of the popular State street boarding house, will on June 18th take charge of the Nonquit hotel at Nonquit, near New Bedford, Mass., for the summer season.

Col. Charles A. Sinclair returned this week from an extensive tour in the west. He has not, as has been surmised in certain quarters, visited the Wild West with a view of buying the country at the bottom price, but simply to ascertain how high the the western loan agents estimated it would do to go on a blanket mortgage of their entire territory.

With the detachment of Naval Constructor Samuel H. Pook from the Brooklyn navy yard on the 30th of June next, is completed the last tour of duty to which this officer will probably be assigned, inasmuch as he will be placed upon the retired list on the 17th of January, 1889. He was appointed into the navy twenty-two years ago, May 17th, 1886. Mr Pook owns property in Washington, and intends making that city his permanent home.

BASE BALL.

Portsmouth twenty-two, Rochester nine, was the score at Rochester on Tuesday.

The Portsmouth high school nine went to Greenland on Monday, and defeated the Greenland nine by a score of sixteen to six.

The base-ball grounds at the south end are getting in fine condition, the warm, drying air of Tuesday improving them greatly.

This afternoon at three o'clock the Dover and Portsmouth clubs will commence play on the grounds of the local club on South street.

The Portsmouth base ball club were met at the depot, on their return from Rochester on Tuesday evening, by the fife and drum band and a large crowd of people, and escorted through a number of the principal streets of the city. The depot was fairly packed.

It having been stated by several papers that the Portland club of the New England League was to be transferred to New Bedford, and admitted to the Interstate League, the Boston Globe of Tuesday says: "A despatch from Portland at a late hour this evening states that the Portlands have not left the New England League, and have not applied for admission to the Interstate League."

The Dover Democrat of the 21st says: "The Interstate League pennant will look fine flying from a pole on the Dover grounds at the close of the season. The goslings and lilies have got to contribute towards raising the pole." It also remarks: "Wait until we get at Portsmouth again. They have got to be whitewashed once this season, and Varney's knights might just as well do it on their grounds as anywhere else."

MASONIC.

The following officers of Washington Chapter, No. 3, Royal Arch Masons, were installed on Tuesday evening by Past High Priest W. Freeman:

W. G. Billings, high priest;
Edward W. Riley, king;
Albert R. Junkins, scribe;
John Nutter, treasurer;
James L. Parker, scoretary;
R. I. Walden, C. of H.;
Morris C. Foye, P. S.;
Marcus M. Collis, R. A. C.;
Frank J. Philbrick, M. of V.:

De Witt Clinton Commandery, Knights Templar, on Monday evening voted to accept the invitation of Rev. Henry E. Hovey to attend divine service at Christ church on Sunday evening, June 3d.

The grand commander and suite of the Grand Commandery of Knights Templar of this state, will make an official visit to De Witt Clinton Commandery on Friday evening, May 25th.

MARITINE NOTES.

Capt. Duncan's new steamer Undine was successfully launched at Kennebunkport, Me., on Tuesday, the 22d inst., and will be brought around to this port in a week or ten days. Capt. Duncan is very much pleased with his new boat.

The whistling buoy off Eastern point, near Gloucester harbor, is reported to be not working, having it is alleged been tampered with. A brig which arrived at Gloucester last week from Trapani with salt came very near going ashore in a fog, the captain depending on hearing the whistle, which was not sounding.

Two right whales were taken off Provincetown, Mass., last Friday and Saturday, by the schooner John W. Smart, and towed to the oil works at Herring cove. Their value is from $5000 to $7000. No right whales have been seen in these waters for many years before, though finbacks are plentiful.

The old schooner yacht Rambler, a famous yacht in her day, but sold some time ago to somebody—nobody seems to know who,—was on Monday lying in New York harbor with about sixty tons of dynamite aboard, bound it was said for Aspinwall. There were hints about some kind of a fillibustering expedition.

The steamboat Gate City arrived at Boston on the 21st inst. from Savannah, with fire in the forward hold among her cargo of cotton; the fire was put out soon after her arrival. On the passage from Boston to Savannah, the Gate City was run into by a large schooner, and narrowly escaped sinking.

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS.

Will the alderman from ward four please explain to the tax payers of this city why he pays $9.25 apiece for piles for Sagamore bridge, when they could have been bought for $6.00, equally as good or better? Also why the city pays $20 per thousand for white pine plank that can be bought for $16 per thousand, of better quality, worth $8 per thousand more than those bought? TAX PAYER.

[Note. There are two of "the alderman from ward four," Major Urch and Mr. Henry Wendell; the former we presume is the one questioned, he being chairman of the aldermanic committee on laying out and widening streets. As to the prices paid, or which should be paid, for piles and planks, we are not competent to speak; but if the implications of "Tax Payer" are well founded some one should explain.—Ed.]

NAVY YARD ITEMS.

The Constellation sailed from this station shortly after nine o'clock Tuesday morning, in tow of the government tug Leyden, for Hampton Roads.

An item in relation to the payment of the men employed on the navy yard, in the Penny Post of Monday evening, could easily be construed unfavorably to the paymaster of the yard; the fact is that the officers of the navy and the working men are paid from entirely separate appropriations, and any delay in the payment of either class is due to causes entirely beyond the paymaster's control. When the money arrives it is promptly paid out, and he can do no more.

Nothing but superlative intrinsic merit can account for the phenomenal reputation achieved, in so short a time, by Salvation Oil. It kills pain. Price twenty-five cents a bottle.

Charles Young, a leading citizen of South Waterford, Me., after several attempts to commit suicide, killed himself last Saturday by jumping from a window and striking on a picket.

Whether on land or at sea, on the prairie or in the crowded city, Ayer's Pills are the best cathartic, being convenient, efficacious, and safe. For torpid liver, indigestion, and sick headache, they never fail.

POLICE COURT---BATCHELDER J.

TUESDAY, May 22d.

Edwin Splaney, a boy, was before the court on a charge of truancy; he was sent to the Industrial school for one year.

The dwelling house occupied by Enoch J. Conner on Union street, near the corner of State street, and which has heretofore stood with its end to the street, has been turned half around, so as to face the street. This gives more space for the rear of the new house occupied by Charles A. Hazlett, Esq. Both houses are owned by Henry A. Yeaton, Esq., who has greatly improved the appearance of the neighborhood in that vicinity.

New Dress Goods at Ayers & Locke's; 500 yards pin-head dress goods, manufactured to retail for 50 cents, which they have recently purchased and will place on their counters at the extremely low price of 25 cents per yard. It is safe to say that they are the best value in a dress fabric ever shown in Portsmouth.

Ten or twelve single teams came down from Dover on Tuesday, and put up at Stoddard's stable on Vaughan street. They brought down a party of ladies and gentlemen to pass the day here.

Have you seen that lot of Challi Dress Goods at 10 cts. per yard? If not, go to Lewis E. Staples' dry goods store. No. 7 Market street.

Twenty-five dollars have been received from the Young People's Association of the North church to constitute the pastor's wife a life member of the Seaman's Friend Society, for which the society return hearty thanks. H. C. KNIGHT.

Ayers & Locke have a new stock of furniture and drapery fringes; also Florentine silks of the latest designs.

The survivors of the 27th Maine regiment have received an invitation to hold their reunion at Kittery. It will probably be held in September.

There was a quite interesting reunion one evening a few weeks since at the residence of G. W. S. Putnam, Esq., at York village, the occasion being a visit from his three young grandchildren,—the children of his two sons and his daughter,—the difference in age between the oldest and youngest of the youthful visitors being only two months. Bro. Putnam having become very much a grandfather in a short time after the first start in that line. The house was packed with relatives and friends; the youngsters were greatly admired and petted by the ladies, and "Gran'pa Put" received many warm congratulations from the gentlemen on his newly acquired dignity.

The negotiations for the iron pier at Ocean Beach, N. J., have finally been completed, and the structure will be removed to Old Orchard, Me., at once. Part of it will arrive at Old Orchard this week.

The barn of Jeremiah Rowe at Seabrook, near the Eastern depot, was burned on Friday morning of last week. The dwelling near by caught fire, but the flames were put out before doing much damage. It is supposed the fire was incendiary.

Very few of the delegates to the St. Louis convention will remain in that city over the Sabbath. Those who do will have their flasks filled over night. The law against Sunday liquor selling has gone into operation in that city.

HOOD'S COMPOUND EXTRACT SARSAPARILLA — TRADE MARK —

The importance of purifying the blood cannot be overestimated, for without pure blood you cannot enjoy good health.

At this season nearly every one needs a good medicine to purify, vitalize, and enrich the blood, and we ask you to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. It strengthens and builds up the system, creates an appetite, and tones the digestion, while it eradicates disease. The peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation of the vegetable remedies used give to Hood's Sarsaparilla peculiar curative powers. No other medicine has such a record of wonderful cures. If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other instead. It is a Peculiar Medicine, and is worthy your confidence.

Peculiar To Itself

Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold by all druggists. Prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

A western democrat has been selected as sergeant-at-arms of the coming democratic national convention to be held at St. Louis. He is now being put through a course of civil-service-reform examinations to see if he knows the location of the saloons in St. Louis sufficiently well to secure a quorum in case of a call of the convention.

A Washington Sunday paper gives a likeness of Hon. Wm. C. Whitney, "Under whose administration the United States navy is being restored to its old time efficiency and made worthy of a great nation." This is pretty good for a Washington paper. They generally have not been noted as much for art as for government advertising.

Thomas J. Smith of Dover has been at last appointed solicitor of the internal revenue department. Mr. Smith will have all he can do as a new man to keep at bay the attorneys for the whiskey interests, but he is not expected to decide against them. It is stated that the president held out manfully against making this appointment, on the ground that the office requires a man familiar with the law and accustomed to questions which daily arise in the administration of the affairs of the bureau. But the president was told in unmistakable terms that New Hampshire was a doubtful state and that he must dismount from his civil service high horse if he was to enter the presidential race this fall. The executive accordingly came down.

WANTED!

A YOUNG LADY to take care of books and do general writing in a store. Address, in handwriting of applicant, Box No. 674, P. O.

A JEWELER WRITES:

MESSRS. PROCTER & GAMBLE, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Gentlemen:—I think your "Ivory Soap" is about as nice and convenient a thing as I have ever tried to clean jewelry. I have frequently cleaned up soiled necklaces, watch-guards and other similar articles by making a stiff lather in my hands, then thoroughly saturate the article I want cleaned, rubbing it gently in the palms of my hands, rinsing in cold, soft water, and drying in dry sawdust. For a convenient and effective article for household use I don't think it can be beat. I don't think it would have any injurious effects on any thing except, perhaps, pearls or foil-back goods. If carefully handled, the goods come out looking nearly as bright as when cleaned by the best preparations known to the trade, and it is something perfectly safe in the hands of inexperienced persons, and convenient to have about. I find it so good I think it deserves mention, hence this letter.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of $22 TO $900. Improvements introduced in these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all the great Exhibitions held throughout the world, including that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS. Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all GRAND & UPRIGHT pianos made by other manufacturers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

Pianos and Organs sold for cash or easy payments; also rented.

"IT WAS INHERITED."

The Fearful Effect of Heredity Upon the Lives of Men and Women—A Striking Case.

"The man or woman does not live who is free from hereditary influences." This remark was made by the celebrated Dr. Vanderville, of New York, to the Rev. Dr. Brooks, at a recent convention of scientists. "I agree with you, doctor," said the divine.

"Pure blood," continued the doctor, "is the great cause of health; impaired blood the source of most diseases. It may even go back to the grand or great grand parents."

"I have in mind a prominent man," said the reverend gentleman, "General Alfred C. Moore, of No. 1 Pemberton Square, Boston. He inherited kidney troubles from both parents, one of whom died with it. He suffered terribly from pains in the back and head, and at times when walking the dizziness became so bad that he was compelled to lay hold of some convenient post for support. He was in a most desperate condition."

"And is he so still?" asked the doctor.

"No, he is in perfect health. Dr. McGregor, I believe of Maine, who had acquainted an arm for the general, cured him."

"Do you know what medicine he used?"

"I understand it was Hunt's Remedy."

"Oh, Hunts Remedy. I know it very well," said Dr. Vanderville. "I consider it the best remedy for kidney, liver, heart troubles, and female difficulties in the world. It is in no sense a patent medicine, but a standard remedy, which deserves to be used by all intelligent people. The fact is, no blood-taint can exist when the kidneys are in perfect order, and there is where Hunt's Remedy shows its marvelous superiority."

"I only wish," said Rev. Dr. Brooks, "that all people who inherit a tendency to disease could know of this remedy of which you speak so highly and use it. I am positive it would greatly lessen suffering and death."

OH, WHAT A COLD!

This is the season for sudden changes in the weather, and a great many "take cold" either in their Head or on their Lungs, causing Coughs, Hoarseness, and Sore Throat. These troubles can be soon relieved and cured by taking Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs, entirely removing these difficulties.

Cured his boy of Croup.

C. M. BROOKS, Lowell, Mass., says: "I take great pleasure in recommending Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific as a cure for Coughs, Colds, and Croup. I used it in my family last winter with the best results. Two or three doses cured my little boy of Croup, for which I am very thankful."

You can cure that Cough in a short time. You can cure your Catarrh if you persist in its use, as it will stop the secretion of mucus, no matter in the worst; it will relieve Croup in from three to five minutes.

The best he ever saw.

"The best medicine for Coughs and Consumptive Complaints that ever I saw is Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific," so says JOHN McLAUGHLIN, of Boston.

Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific is sold by all Druggists. Price 50 cents and $1. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

A NEW VIEW OF RUSSIA.

A Critical Observer Says Some Startling Things About the Czar's Autocracy.

Hon. Nathaniel Paige, of Washington, returned recently from a long trip through Europe. He is a historian and political economist, and he studied the social and political phases of the countries he traveled through. He said to a reporter that Russia interested him very much and furnished a wide field for study.

"Russia," he added, "can only be governed by an enlightened autocracy. In America much sympathy is expressed with the Nihilists, but a close study of the conditions of the czar's vast empire will convince any one that the people are not capable of governing themselves. What the Nihilists seek to do cannot be done, because the inherited tastes and the environments of the people make it impossible for them to understand any rule save that of a monarchy. There are about eighty-five different tribes in the empire, some more fierce than the others, but all of more or less Tartar blood. They can be held in subjection only by direct power. Imagine the right of suffrage conferred upon a fierce tribe of Tartars! They would soon kill each other off in their vain attempts to see who should be the political ruler. Then, too, the serfs have been freed and they are not educated to any form of government except that of despotism. We think a great feat was accomplished when 4,000,000 slaves were freed in this country, but it was nothing compared to the liberation of millions of serfs in Russia.

"According to the ratio of increase Russia will double her population in sixty-five years, and so will Germany in about that time. But France is destined in the course of time to fade from the map and her people to become an extinct race. You rarely ever see a Frenchman have over two children in his family, while the Russians and Germans have nine and often fourteen. Then, too, the Russians and Germans grow up great, strapping fellows, healthy and strong, while the reverse is usually the case with the French. Indeed, the French army has had to lower its standard of height one inch. The noblemen in Russia are large, magnificent physical specimens."

"How is Russia prospering?"

"The country is not as poor as many imagine. The people eat wholesome food, and naturally become sturdy. Several railroads have been built. The one from St. Petersburg to Moscow is through a dreary part of the country, with nothing but mud huts in sight. All the noblemen between the two cities desired the road to be built through their estates, and the result was the czar drew a straight line from St. Petersburg to Moscow, and left them all some distance from the road. A curious fact has recently come to light in regard to this famous air line road, built by the Winanses, of Baltimore. An observatory was erected not long since in Moscow, and a calculation of the distance between that city and St. Petersburg revealed the fact that the contractors on the road had charged for eighty miles more than the actual distance. Of course nothing could be done. Many of the contractors have moved away, and some perhaps are dead."

"Suppose Germany invades Russia?"

"It will be an invasion as disastrous as was that of Napoleon. No army can penetrate into the interior of Russia and not be destroyed. The Germans will not attempt it, but simply be content with wresting Poland from the czar. Now, that is a fair and beautiful country. The Poles are a magnificent and chivalric race. Russia, however, can make a great fight. The Russians can use paper money, as we did during the late war. We conquered the Confederacy with paper money and other nations can imitate our struggles. Americans are treated with more consideration in the empire than Germans, English, French or Austrians."—New York Mail and Express.

An Orchestra Leader's Advice.

"What chance has a young man or woman of getting on in the musical world?" was asked of Walter Damrosch.

"No one ought to enter the musical profession with the view principally of making money out of it," was the reply. "Such people will never rise to the top and will never become true musicians. Music is not a business, but an art, and as such must be wooed for her own sake and not for the dowry which she might eventually bring into the union. Neither ought any one to adopt music as a calling who has not a pronounced talent for it, as he would only add one to the great army of mediocre musicians who flood our towns, and set up false and hollow idols for the people, making the path which Genius and Truth travel exceedingly hard and full of obstacles. I am now speaking of a musician in the highest sense of the word, such as the composer; not one, however, who is engaged by his publisher to turn out so and so many ballads or anthems at so and so much a year; but one who feels that he has something noble and true to tell the world, and who is willing to undergo all manner of privations for the sake of his ideas. For genius is seldom recognized by the world until many years have passed, and the history of great musicians teaches us that most of them suffered neglect and poverty during many years of their life, and that recognition usually comes very late. Next to the composer rank the executants, such as conductors, instrumentalists and singers."—New York Mail and Express.

Russian Stars and Medals.

One is always bedazzled by the decorations worn by the officers—particularly those of high rank—stars, crosses and medals of various sizes and fashions being conferred for service in the field or for the state. There are seven orders of knighthood in the military service, besides an innumerable amount of decorations authorized to commemorate victories of the Russian army. The highest order is that of St. George. Any Russian officer would gladly risk his life to obtain the little cross of white enamel, and none ever gets it unless his service has been of the highest consequence. The number is limited, and the name of each man who wears the cross of St. George is recorded upon the walls of the palace at Moscow.—William Eleroy Curtis in Chicago News.

A repeating cannon invented by Gruson has been tried at Brosschart, in Belgium, which can throw twenty-seven shots a minute.

European specialists have made the curious observation that acute rheumatism is more prevalent in dry than in rainy weather.

The people of Tokio, Japan, have taken to eating horse flesh, and there is quite a demand for it.

A belle facetiously alludes to one of her admirers as "a man of fine presents."

A large Brooklyn dry-goods firm lately offered to give each of the 440 saleswomen a new dress if they would all wear black. They accepted. The manager says it is not as a badge of service, but because black looks better against the piles of dry goods of many clors. The idea is purely æsthetic and is imported for Paris.

At the United Labor convention which met in Cincinnati on the 16th inst., the chief point of discussion was woman suffrage. This ended by adopting a resolution that suffrage is inherent in citizenship, and is not to be abridged of denied on account of sex.

An Assurance of Health.

Among the assurances of health afforded us by the regular discharge of the bodily functions, none is more important and reliable than that which regularity of the bowels gives us. If there is any—even a temporary interruption of this—the liver and the stomach suffer conjointly with inactive organs, and still greater mischief ensues if relief is not speedily obtained. A laxative, above all cavil on the score of mineral composition or violent effect, is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, approved by the medical profession and a most important item of the family materia medica of American households. It is botanic, painless in action, and if persisted in, effectual. The stomach and liver, in no less degree and no less promptly and throughly than the bowels, are regulated and toned by it, and it is an admirable defense against malarial and rheumatic ailments, and a benign remedy for kidney complaints, nervousness and debility.

One of the newly elected pages of the Iowa house of representatives is a ten-year-old girl. That has a sort of operatic flavor. The pages on the stage are always of the gentle sex.

Why don't you try Carter's Little Liver Pills? They are a positive cure for sick headache, and all the ills produced by disordered liver. Only one pill a dose.

The king of Portugal ordered in London thirty tons of fireworks and fifty tons of mortars and other pyrotechnic machinery, for use at Lisbon in the royal reception to the king of Sweden.

Happy and Hungry.

For over five years I was a constant sufferer with that most terrible and annoying disease, dyspepsia. After paying out hundreds of dollars, the only medicine I found that would do me any good was Sulphur Bitters. Six bottles cured me. Now I can eat well and am happy and hungry.—[Editor.

The Queen of Sweden has been ordered by her doctors to get up early, make her own bed, take care of he own room, work in the garden take long walks. Under this regimen, her health is visibly improving.

Original and peculiar in composition, they are bound to kill pain, soothe and strengthen—Hop Plasters.

Gen. Boulanger's wife and daughter are believers in woman suffrage.

Every woman who suffers from sick headache, and who dislikes to take bitter doses, should try Carter's Little Liver Pills. A positive cure for the above distressing complaint; give prompt relief in dyspepsia and indigestion; prevent and cure constipation and piles. As easy to take as sugar. Only one pill a dose. Price twenty-five cents. If you try them you will not be without them.

The juryman who sleeps through the whole trial and awakes and listens to the charge of the judge is the safe man of the twelve. He knows something; the eleven are only fuddled with the evidence.

The is no danger to human life more to be dreaded than that which arises from vitiated blood. Dyspepsia, rheumatism, headache, and general debility, all result from it, and are cured by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Take it this month. Six bottles, $5.

Argentine, Kansas, a few miles out of Kansas Bity, has been given np to lawlessness. This year, for the first time, women voted, polling 234 votes out of less than 900. A law-and-order temperance police judge was elected, and the opposition mayor was elected by only nineteen majority. Now the lawless are quiet, and stores are closed on Sunday.

The peculiar purifying and building up powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla make it the very best medicine to take at this season.

The Washington Post goes in for big salaries. It says: "The chief justice should be paid $50,000, the associate justices $25,000, senators and representatives in Congress $15,000, the vice-president and speaker of the house $25,000, and the president of the United States $100,000 per year.

Facts Worth Knowing.

In all diseases of the nasal mucous membrane the remedy used must be non-irritating. The medical profession has been slow to learn this. Nothing satisfactory can be accomplished with douches, snuffs, powders, syringes, astringents, or any similar application, because they are all irritating, do not thoroughly reach the affected surfaces and should be abandoned as worse than failures. A multitude of persons who have for years borne all the worry and pain that catarrh can inflict, testify to radical and permanent cures wrought by Ely's Cream Balm.

News About Town.

It is the current report about town that Kemp's Balsam for the throat and lungs is making some remarkable cures with people who are troubled with coughs, sore throat, asthma, bronchitis and consumption. Any druggist will give you a trial bottle free of cost. It is guaranteed to relieve and cure. The large bottles are 50c. and $1. tjes23

A Sweet Opera Singer Strikes a High Note.

Hearing that a member of the Carleton Opera Company, which delighted Chicago audiences with comic opera, held one-twentieth of ticket No. 82,114, which drew $50,000 in the March drawing of the Louisiana State Lottery, a Tribune representative was informed that Miss Clara Wisdom was the fortunate person. Calling at her hotel, Miss Clara Wisdom, who is a very attractive young lady of twenty-two, and whose voice and manners are quite as charming as her appearance, said: "I held one-twentieth of ticket No. 82,114 which drew $50,000 in the March 15th drawing of the Louisiana State Lottery Co. The Co. (Carleton Opera Company) was on route to Denver, and at Ogden a vender came into our car, and remembering a five dollar gold-piece which I had found in Los Angeles, I thought I would invest, well, it didn't win the largest prize but it was more than $5,000 which will assist my memory wonderfully."—Chicago (Ill.) Arkansaw Traveler, April 7th.

SOME DOCTORS

honestly admit that they can't cure Rheumatism and Neuralgia. Others say they can but—don't. Athlophoros says nothing but—cures. That's the secret of its success. Years of trial have proved it to be a quick, safe, sure cure.

Concord, N. H., Sept. 3, 1887

In my own family Athlophoros was used as a last resort, the user having suffered from rheumatism for years and having been treated for the disease by different physicians in this State and Massachusetts without even temporary relief. Upon my recommendation scores of people have used this remedy with the same results claimed for it. C. H. WILSON.

Facts Worth Knowing.

In all diseases of the nasal mucous membrane the remedy used must be non-irritating. The medical profession has been slow to learn this. Nothing satisfactory can be accomplished with douches, snuffs, powders, syringes, astringents, or any similar application, because they are all irritating, do not thoroughly reach the affected surfaces and should be abandoned as worse than failures. A multitude of persons who have for years borne all the worry and pain that catarrh can inflict, testify to radical and permanent cures wrought by Ely's Cream Balm.

A Sweet Opera Singer Strikes a High Note.

Hearing that a member of the Carleton Opera Company, which delighted Chicago audiences with comic opera, held one-twentieth of ticket No. 81,114, which drew $50,000 in the March drawing of the Louisiana State Lottery, a Traveler representative was informed that Miss Clara Wisdom was the fortunate person. Calling at her hotel, Miss Clara Wisdom, who is a very attractive young lady of twenty-two, and whose voice and manners are quite as charming as her appearance, said: "I held one-twentieth of ticket No. 82,114 with drew $50,000 in the March 13th drawing of the Louisiana State Lottery Co. The Carleton Opera Company was en route to Denver, and at Ogden a vender came into our car, and remembering a five dollar gold-piece which I had found in Los Angeles, I thought I would invest, Well, it didn't win the largest prize but it brought me $2,500 which will assist my memory wonderfully."—Chicago (Ill.) Arkansaw Traveler, April 7th.

"Just Hear That Child Scream!"

Said Mrs. Smith to her sister, Mrs. Davis, as the sound of a child's shrieks came across the garden from a neighbor's house. "What kind of a woman have you for a neighbor? Does she abuse her children?" "No, indeed," replied Mrs. Daves. "She is one of the most tender mothers in existence. But you see, she believes in the old-fashioned styles of doctoring. When a child need physic, she fills a spoon with some nauseous dose, lays the little victim flat on her lap, holds his nose till he is forced to open his mouth for breath, when down goes the dreadful mess. Then come the yells." "No wonder," said Mrs. Smith, "Why doesn't she use Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets? They are effective without being harsh, and are as easy to take as sugar plums. SIBERIA.

Its Secrets Revealed—George Kennan's Wonderful Journey.

MOST interesting contribution to secret history will be the illustrated papers on "Siberia and the Exile System," by George Kennan, which begin in the May Century magazine. They will embody the results of what is believed to be the first successful attempt by a competent investigator to make a thorough study of the Russian exile system. Before undertaking his arduous journey of 15,000 miles, in the interest of The Century, Mr. Kennan, author of Tent Life in Siberia, etc., had spent four years in Russia and Siberia, was thoroughly conversant with the people and the language, and had reached the conclusion that the Russian Government had been misrepresented, and that the exile system of Siberia was not so terrible as was supposed. Knowing that Mr. Kennan held these views, the Russian Government gave him every facility for a thorough of Siberia—the most thorough that had ever been made by a traveler. Armed with letters from the Russian Minister of the Interior and other high officials, Mr. Kennan went everywhere, inspecting mines and prisons, convict barges and hospitals, and traveling with chained exiles along the great Siberian road. He made the intimate personal acquaintance of more than three hundred exiled "liberals" and Nihilists, many of whom wrote out their histories for his use. The actual facts, as revealed by this searching investigation, were far removed from Mr. Kennan's preconceived ideas, as this thrilling narrative of fifteen months' privation and adventure will show.

As is already known, the publication of Mr. Kennan's preliminary papers has resulted in his being placed by the Russian Government, and copies of The Century containing them have the objectionable article torn out by the custom officials before being allowed to enter the Czar's dominions.

"I expected, of course," says Mr. Kennan, in a recent interview, "to be put on the Russian black list. I am only thankful that I succeeded in crossing the frontier with all my material and papers coming this way. I became satisfied before I got half through Siberia that I should never be permitted to go there again, and that after the publication of my papers no other foreigner would be allowed to make investigations there, and I lost no possible opportunity to secure accuracy and thoroughness. I brought back more than fifty pounds of notes, papers and original documents, many of the latter from secret Government archives, besides five or six hundred foolscap pages of manuscript, prepared for me by political exiles in all parts of Siberia, and covering the most noteworthy episodes of their lives. I can regard the black listing, therefore, with a certain degree of complacency. The stable-door is locked, but the horse has been stolen—and I've got him."

Mr. G. A. Frost, artist and photographer, accompanied Mr. Kennan, and it is expected that the results of his work will form the most interesting series of pictures of Russian and Siberian life and scenery ever made.

SULPHUR BITTERS

The Best and Purest Medicine EVER MADE.

It will drive the Humor from your system, and make your skin clean and smooth. Those Pimples and Blotches which mar your beauty are caused by impure blood, and can be removed in a short time, if you are wise and use the great bloodpurifier, SULPHUR BITTERS. Why suffer with Boils? Why suffer with Headache? Why sit and groan on that bed of pain, with Rheumatism? Why let your nerves get all unstrung, and your system become a prey to every ill that breeds in a diseased liver? Your nerves are all unstrung, your system is out of order, your appetite is gone, your blood is impure, and you feel generally miserable. Why do you cough and spit, and groan with Pain in your Side, Back, and Lungs? Why do you suffer with Dyspepsia? Why do you let your Liver become torpid? Why do you let your Kidneys become deranged? Why do you let your Blood become impure? Why do you let your Stomach become a prey to Dyspepsia? Why do you let your Bowels become costive? Why do you let your Nerves become unstrung

It is a strange fact that the strongest-minded women shrink from being caught in their own night-caps, but they never hesitate to declare their exalted opinion of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup that has cured innumerable coughs and colds.

Charles L. Hussey of Rochester has passed the examination at Annapolis, Md., and been admitted to the naval academy as a cadet.

Whether on land or at sea, on the prairie or in the crowded city, Ayer's Pills are the best cathartic, being convenient, efficacious, and safe. For torpid liver, indigestion, and sick headache, they never fail.

The Dominion parliament on May 21st passed the vote for the expenses of the fisheries commission. Sir Charles Tupper said that, in the excitement of political turmoil, the United States senate should reject the treaty, the Dominion government should deal liberally during the coming fishery season with American fishermen, hoping that the treaty might be accepted next year.

A Great Battle

Is continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. A good reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla is the weapon with which to defend one's self, drive the desperate enemy from the field, and restore peace and bodily health for many years. Try this peculiar medicine.

At a meeting of the Dominion Live Stock Association held in Montreal on the 22d inst., it was decided to take criminal action for conspiracy against the Allan, Dominion and Beaver steamship companies for not accepting shipments of cattle by their boats unless insured in the Montreal Cattle Lloyds, of which the principals of the above companies are underwriters.

Royal Goff, of Willsboro, N. Y., suffered two years from a hard cold, with severe pains in the side and chest, and raised large quantities of blood. Several physicians tried in vain to relieve him. Three bottles of Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry cured him.

Three thousand street car drivers in Rochester, N. Y., struck for shorter hours on the 22d inst. They claim that they have had to work from fourteen to seventeen hours a day. No wonder they struck.

Delicate Children, Nursing

Mothers, overworked men and for all diseases where the tissues are wasting away from the inability to digest food, or from overwork; should take Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites. A convention of delegates from many of the state and county bar associations of the country met in Washington on May 22d, the convention having for its object the establishment of a national bar. Important Interview.

Daniel Lamont, the private secretary of the ruler of the democracy, has a system in his business which is of much practical service to the King, just at this time. He has a list of the delegates to St. Louis, properly annotated, so that the character and relative political importance of every one may be correctly seen at a glance. Recently, among the callers' cards, was one from a delegate from a doubtful state. He was received with much cordiality, and found the president an agreeable conversationalist.

"There is no doubt as to your nomination," said the prospective visitor to St. Louis, "and but a single doubt as to your election."

"Well," said the president, "if it is narrowed down to that, let us have the benefit of the doubt."

"Some folks out west think," rejoined the delegate, "that if you are re-elected it means that the treasury department will be saddled with four years more of Durham in the comptroller's office."

The president looked profoundly thoughtful. "I have had lots of trouble from that quarter," he at length resumed, "but there is always an end to an official term, you perceive."

"Yes," rejoined the future shouter at St. Louis, "but there's the civil service reform, your honor."

"My friend," said Grover, "the party does not hold to that doctrine. I am an exponent of democratic principles now. Once I thought I was in advance of the party, but it has the lead just now."

"How about the mugwumps?" returned the visitor.

"The mugwumps are all right," said his excellency; "perhaps you read my message?"

"I should smile," returned he of the west.

"Well," said the idol of the reformers, "the mugwumps care for civil service reform just as much as I do. What they want is free trade, and they will let the offices alone. It's all right, you see, if the St. Louis resolutions are worded in such language as to be construed either way, and Col. Lamont, under my supervision, is now drafting the platform."

As the president shook hands at parting he remarked: "It is the democracy who will run this thing under the next administration, if we can only pull the Mills bill through in season, and let me ask you to see your delegation in Congress before you leave, and brace them up."

Ayers & Locke have ladies' Jersey vests from 25 cents upward; also lisle and silk ditto, equally good values.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Combines, in a proportion peculiar to itself, the active medicinal properties of the best blood-purifying and strengthening remedies of the vegetable kingdom. It will positively cure—when in the power of medicine—Spring Debility, Headache, Dyspepsia, Catarrh, Salt Rheum, Scrofula, and all Diseases caused by a low state of the blood.

"I suffered three years with blood poison. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and think I am cured." MRS. M. J. DAVIS, Brockport, N. Y.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla beats all others, and is worth its weight in gold." I. BARRINGTON, 130 Bank Street, New York City.

Is so vastly superior to any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier, that one has well said: "Its health-giving effects upon the blood and entire human organism, are as much more positive than the remedies of a quarter or a century ago, as the steam-power of to-day is in advance of the slow and laborious drudgery of years ago."

"While suffering from a severe bilious attack in March, 1883, a friend in Peoria, Ill., recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla. I tried the remedy, and was permanently cured." J. A. SHEPARD, travelling agent for Devoe & Co., Fulton Street, New York City.

Purifies the Blood

"I tried a dozen articles to cleanse my blood, but never found anything that did me any good till I began using Hood's Sarsaparilla." W. H. PERR, Rochester, N. Y.

"My wife was troubled with dizziness and constipation, and her blood has been in a bad order—in fact she has been all run down. Hood's Sarsaparilla is doing her a wonderful amount of good." F. M. BALDWIN, druggist, Blanchester, Ohio.

"I was for five years a sufferer with boils, all run down, and was at one time obliged to give up work. Before taking all of two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, was entirely cured." R. M. LANE, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. Took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

OFFICIAL NOTICE!

OF

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co.

FROM THE

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we respectfully request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

30,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Silver-ware, Window Shades, Drapery, Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Stoves and Ranges, Feathers, Feather Pillows, Spreads, Blankers, Chamber Sets, Parlor Suits, Carpets, Lounges, Easy Chairs, Mattresses, Springs,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the

Furniture, Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET, PARLOR SUIT, Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. There are items worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time, We have invariably paid out the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We wish to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

KITCHEN RANGE, or a CHAMBER SET, or PARLOR SUIT, or CARPETS, WINDOW SHADES, DRAPERY CURTAINS,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of these Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell the same and shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. This notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store, Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

Respectfully, the Public's Ob't Servants,

THE ATKINSON HOUSE FURNISHING CO.,

BASE BALL.

The Portsmouth-Dover game on the home grounds, on the afternoon of Wednesday, the 23d inst., was the finest display of the game ever given in this city. Play was called at three o'clock, about 800 spectators being present. The Dover club had been strengthened by the addition of Mitchell, late of the Worcesters, who played right field, but the home club won, four runs to none. The fielding of both clubs was excellent, there being but two errors made by the Dovers, and one by the Portsmouths. The following is the score:

The Dover Democrat of the 21st said: "The Interstate League pennant will look fine flying from a pole on the Dover grounds at the close of the season. The goslings and lilies have got to contribute towards raising the pole." It also remarked: "Wait until we get at Portsmouth again. They have got to be whitewashed once this season, and Varney's knights might just as well do it on their grounds as anywhere else."

"Varney's knights" played a good game on Wednesday, and there was a whitewashing performance connected therewith, but "Leonard's lilies" were not the subjects.

ILLEGAL LOBSTERS.

Abijah Tarbox of Biddeford, fish and game warden of York county, made two seizures of "short" and "seed" lobsters from Charles Phillips and John Parsons of York beach on the 22d inst. About sixty undersized lobsters were taken possession of. It is claimed that the men named have been peddling short lobsters in Dover and Great Falls. The matter will be presented to the grand jury at the next term of court in York county.

UNASKED ASSISTANCE.

The Dover Democrat of Tuesday evening, May 22d, says: "Yesterday Dandy Amazeen of Great Falls agreed in the police court here to go out of the liquor business, and was given until Wednesday night to clear his stock from the place, which he intended to do. Imagine his surprise this morning when entering the saloon to find that some one had taken the liberty to carry off all he had, except ale and lager in barrels. Not a particle was left. Dandy says that they took about $300 worth of cigars."

RELIEF CORPS ELECTION.

At the regular meeting of Storer Relief Corps, No. 1, held Tuesday evening of this week, the following officers were elected:

President, Catherine A. Osgood; Vice Pres., Mrs. Laskey; Past Pres., Mrs. Mortimore; Sec., Mrs. Abbott; Treas., Mrs. Laighton; Chap., Mrs. Lolly; Con., Smith. The meeting was largely attended.

THE SAGAMORE ROAD IMPROVEMENTS.

With Job-like patience I have waited for some expression of opinion in regard to the work now going on at Sagamore bridge. In common with many tax payers, I do not object to any improvement or to the necessary expenditure for carrying it out, but I must confess to a feeling of dissatisfaction at the unbusiness-like manner in which the above work is being done.

I have sufficient faith in the leaders of the democratic party to believe that they are entirely ignorant of the fact that one alderman controls the whole job. With an appropriation of $2500 for the purpose of straightening the road, an expenditure of $25,000 has been entailed upon the tax payers without any authority. A work of such magnitude should have been submitted for bids, laid out by competent engineers, and controlled by an experienced overseer. The paying of exorbitant prices for timber, excessive figures for iron and steel, and the appropriation of the old material, may be strictly in accord with honesty, but certainly not, to my mind, the proper course to adopt in the interest of those who have to foot the bills.

ANOTHER TAX PAYER.

PORTSMOUTH, May 23d.

Editor of Chronicle: In answer to "Tax Payer" in your issue of this morning, I beg to say: That I have neither the time nor the disposition to answer such questions as may be propounded to me by any one who is evidently ashamed of his identity and name. If "Tax Payer" will ask the same questions over his own name, I will give him what information I possess in relation thereto, in the next issue of the Chronicle thereafter. Resp'y yours, DAVID URCH.

ACCIDENT.

While Mr. Thornton Betton, employed by W. J. Sampson & Co., was engaged on Wednesday, the 23d inst., in painting the house of H. Fisher Eldredge, Esq., on Merrimac street and Miller avenue, the ladder on which he was standing broke, and he was thrown to the ground, sustaining a bad fracture of one leg.

AN OFFICER SHOULD BE PLACED THERE.

Mr. Editor: I wish (as well as many of our citizens who last Sunday were annoyed by it) to call your attention to the loafing of hoodlums,—none else would do it—on the wall of the South cemetery, facing Richards avenue. On such a day as last Sunday, many of our people like to visit the graves of their kindred or friends; what must have been their feelings as they entered the main gate, with a crowd of gaping hoodlums lining the walls on each side of it? Something should be done to stop this Sunday loafing at this point. Formerly we had a policeman stationed there Sundays, for that purpose; why not now? This God's Acre is private property, and none but those who own lots there have any right to enter, except only in as much as the proprietors grant such entree, as a courtesy; but all are heartily welcome, who will remember the sacredness of the place and the hallowed memories surrounding it. Let this sacrilege of our God's Acre be stopped immediately.

C. X. ROADS.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Louise Chandler Moulton sails for Europe on Saturday, on the steamer Cephalonia.

Mrs. Young, wife of Capt. Andrew H. Young, U. S. A., arrived in Dover on the evening of the 22d inst. from Newport, Kentucky, where her husband is now stationed. Mrs. Young is the guest of Mrs. Hall, wife of Col. Daniel Hall.

Miss Bessie Whipple, daughter of Mr. N. Dana Whipple, of Greenwood, New York, who recently broke one of her arms through falling from a donkey, is rapidly improving, and it is hoped will suffer no permanent inconvenience from the injury. The arm was broken both above and below the elbow.

Hon. William L. Putnam of Portland, who has been nominated for governor of Maine by the democrats of that state, is a brother of Paymaster Edwin Putnam, U. S. N., of this city. Mr. Putnam is a man of great ability and the highest character, and probably as strong a candidate as his party could have selected; but he will not be taken away from his extensive professional practice to be governor of Maine, this year or next.

MARITINE NOTES.

The ship Grandeo of this port, Capt. B. F. Jacobs, arrived at Cebu from Manila on April 28th.

The brick schooners Chillon, Sadie A. Kimball, Statellite, Lillie and Clara B. Kennard arrived on Tuesday, the 22d inst., from Boston, and proceeded up river to load. The Hattie Lewis arrived from Boston on the 23d.

New Dress Goods at Ayers & Locke's; 500 yards pin-head dress goods, manufactured to retail for 50 cents, which they have recently purchased and will place on their counters at the extremely low price of 25 cents per yard. It is safe to say that they are the best value in a dress fabric ever shown in Portsmouth.

Dr. Gage and Associate Physicians, and Their Great Work.

Probably no physician in New England is better and more favorably known, says a New Hampshire exchange, than is Dr. Gage, the gifted specialist, who has treated more than fifteen thousand patients in this state, the announcement of his visits each month being the signal for a grand rally of a multitude of invalids. His success is indeed phenomenal and the reports of marvellous cures would fill this entire paper, the like of which was never known in the history of medical practice. The following is a fair sample:

Mr. Editor: A few months ago my daughter was laying at the point of death. She had a complication of troubles, a terrible cough, raising an immense quantity, a discharging sore upon her hip which rendered her perfectly helpless. Our family physician gave us no hope, but with a mother's will and determination to save her perishing child if possible, I hastened to consult Dr. Gage. Although he did not see her he nevertheless understood the case and his remedies have wrought a miracle—almost—by restoring my child to perfect health. I thank God that I consulted Dr. Gage.

Mrs. B. F. WILSON,

Mrs. Orrin Webber, Bedford, N. H., a cripple and on crutches 14 years with terrible ulcers on her limbs; soundly cured.—Geo. H. Stevens, North Lyndeboro, N. H., cured of terrible burning and itching humor which covered the entire body.—Mrs. Wm. E. Rugg, North Hartland, Vt., given up by counsel, with a large ovarian tumor, heart disease and dropsy; perfectly cured and tumor disappeared. Doctor did not see her.—Oliver Pelren, Concord, N. H., wife cured of ovarian and female difficulties after she had been made worse by the usual treatment.—C. L. Buffum, North Monroe, helpless with spinal disease, involving liver, kidneys and bladder; perfectly cured and the Doctor did not see him.—Isaac Buttrick, Londonderry, N. H., son cured of discharging ears and deafness.—Mrs. A. L. Celly, West Andover, N. H., given up in the last stage of consumption; is now well.—Mrs. L. A. Sawyer, Keene, N. H., terrible bleeding from lungs; cured.—Amos Young, Derry Depot, N. H., catarrh had eaten a hole through roof of mouth; cured.—Miss Lizzie Williams, 76 Blodgett st., Manchester, N. H., and hundreds of other cases, cured of nervous debility in its various stages.—Mrs. J. E. Fields, Milford, N. H., cured of a complication of female difficulties after she had doctored 9 years with others.—Son of W. B. Hill, Pittsfield, N. H., was a most terrible case of heart disease, dropsy and epileptic fits; got well, went to work and has not had a fit for two years.—G. Ambrose, No. Londonderry, N. H., cured of cancer.—C. C. Hall, Boscawen, N. H., cured of cancer.—C. B. Marshall, Nashua, N. H., son cured of epileptic fits.

At a special meeting of Kearsarge S. F. E. Co., No. 3, held on the evening of the 22d inst., it was voted to parade on Memorial day.

A photographer climbed to the top of the chimney of the new Jones brewery on the 22d inst., had his apparatus hoisted up to him, and from a height of 140 feet above ground took a number of bird's-eye views of the city.

Anatole Levy some time ago offered 108 mileage coupons on the Eastern division of the Boston & Maine railroad for passage to Portland from Boston. The conductor demanded 115. The Boston & Maine brought suit against Levy for the difference, and Judge Forsaith of Boston has rendered a decision in favor of Levy.

A gentleman who has had occasion to drive over the roads in Kittery recently, and to some extent through York, informs us that the main road through Kittery is in a worse condition than for many years past, and many of the cross roads are but little better off. Large stones project above the surface, alternating with deep and dangerous holes, and he wonders the town is not indicted. The roads in York are somewhat better, but still not what they should be.

SARSAPARILLA
TRADE MARK

The importance of purifying the blood cannot be overestimated, for without pure blood you cannot enjoy good health.

At this season nearly every one needs a good medicine to purify, vitalize, and enrich the blood, and we ask you to try Hood's Peculiar Sarsaparilla. It strengthens and builds up the system, creates an appetite, and tones the digestion, while it eradicates disease. The peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation of the vegetable remedies used give to Hood's Sarsaparilla peculiar curative powers. No other medicine has such a record of wonderful cures. If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other instead. It is a Peculiar Medicine, and is worthy your confidence.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold by all druggists. Prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

"Things Have Changed Since the War." Now we are treated with books which give the dialect and folk-lore in vogue in different sections of the south in slavery days. Charles C. Jones, Jr., LL. D., has brought to light the myths and stories of the swamp region of Georgia and the Carolinas, given in the vernacular of the rice-field and sea island. This is part of the history of our language. These old stories, often repeated before the war, are now seldom heard save by way of illustration of the narration among the negroes in ante-bellum days. The book is written in Georgia, and published by Houghton, Mifflin & Co. of Boston; price $1.00; sold by M. Goodrich.

WANTED!

Is better than any soap; handier, finer, more effective, more of it, more for the money, and in the form of a powder, for your convenience. Takes, as it were, the fabric in one hand, the dirt in the other, and lays them apart—comparatively speaking, washing with little work.

As it saves the worst of the work, so it saves the worst of the wear. It isn't the use of clothes that makes them old before their time; it is rubbing and straining, getting the dirt out by main strength.

For scrubbing, house-cleaning, washing dishes, windows and glassware, Pearline has no equal.

Beware of imitations, prize packages and peddlers.

To preserve the richness of color or delicacy of tint of your summer dresses, make suds of hot water and IVORY SOAP, allow to cool until lukewarm, then wash your dresses in the solution. Ordinary soaps contain too much alkali, which in a short time bleaches the color and destroys its beauty. Prof. Silliman, of Yale College, says, "The IVORY SOAP can not injure the most delicate fabric."

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

$22 TO $900.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS.

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

"A GREEN OLD AGE."

Few Men or Women Reach It, But Nearly All Might—The Remarkable Experience of an Octogenarian.

"There is only one thing I dread," said the late Charles Sumner, "and that is the coming on of old age."

Mr. Sumner was a brave man, and could face danger unflinchingly but to watch the hairs whiten, the lines of pain and care grow deep in the face, to feel the strength and activity going and death coming on, were more than he could bear. Alas! now many others feel the same today. Pains, loss of sleep, weakness, poor appetite, and feeblenesss, all break the spirit. Have you never heard of Mr. Nathan Chase, of New Bedford, Mass.? A man nearly four-score years old, and hale and hearty as in youth. And yet he was supposed to be dying of heart trouble less than two years ago. Here is what he says:

"A year ago or more I began to lose flesh and strength. I sent for my physician to know the cause. He examined me, and said it was my heart; that the old machinery was wearing out, and I must be careful. Still I grew worse. Finally I got so bad I could scarcely breathe; I could not lie in bed but had to sit up all night with possibly one hour's sleep out of twenty-four. And yet to-day, I am in fine condition; can go up three flights of stairs without inconvenience, and feel as well and about as young as ever in my life before. What accomplished this? Hunt's Remedy—nothing else. It has made a new man of me, and I bless God for it every day."

Such an experience should be a valuable lesson to all readers, both old and young. It shows that a long and happy life is possible. It shows that men or women need not despond. It shows that by care and the use of the right remedy health, happiness and long life may be secured by all.

WOMAN'S FIRST APPEARANCE.

"Mother Eve" a Fruitful Subject for Legend Mongers—Various Myths.

Woman's first appearance has been a fruitful subject for the legend mongers of all ages and places. According to S. Baring Gould, there was an extraordinary mystic named Antoinetter Bourignon, who held that Adam's stomach contained a clear fluid, like water in a crystal bowl, in which tiny eggs developed themselves like bubbles in wine, and when he strongly desired companions he deposited some of these eggs, which hatched out Eve. The Phœnician myth of creation is found in the story of Pygmalion and Galatea. There the first woman was carved by the first man out of ivory, and then endowed with life by Aphrodite.

The Greek theory of the creation of woman, according to Hesiod, was that Zeno, as a cruel jest, ordered Vulcan to make woman out of clay, and then induced the various gods and goddesses to invest the clay doll with all their worst qualities, the result being a lovely thing, with a witchery of mien, refined craft, eager passion, love of dress, treacherous manners and shameless mind. The old Scandinavians, on the other hand, made their common mother out of nobler stock than man. Their mythology says that as Odin, Vili and Ve, the three sons of Bor, were walking along the sea beach they found two sticks of wood, one of ash and one of elm. Sitting down, the gods shaped man and woman out of these sticks, whittling the woman out of the elm and calling her Emla. Closely allied to this is the Ionian myth, which makes the first pair, Meschia and Meschiane, out of the beldas tree.

One of the strangest stories touching the origin of woman is that told by the Madagascarenes. In so far as the creation of man goes the legend is not unlike that related by Moses, only that fall came before Eve arrived. After the man had eaten of the forbidden fruit he became affected with a boil on the leg, out of which, when it burst, came a beautiful girl. The man's first thought was to throw her to the pigs, but he was commanded by a messenger from heaven to let her play among the diggings until she was of marriageable age; then to make her his wife. He did so, called her Bahoura, and she became the mother of all races of men. The American Indians' myths relative to Adam and Eve are numerous and entertaining. Some traditions trace back our first parents to white and red Maoze, another is that man, searching for a wife, was given the daughter of the king of the muskrats, who, on being dipped into a neighboring lake, became a woman. Poor first mother! For untold centuries she has been twitted for her primal share in the world's cares and punishments. No matter whether she painted Kickapoo or a classic Greek, a bare breeched Madagascarene or long robed rabbi, man looks malevolently backward at his Eve and growls at her as the origin of his woes. But whether the product of a pimple or of a divinely vivified rib, the paradox remains that she who is the truest daughter of Eve has never a lack of admiring slaves.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Where Will Nihilism End?

The question that is always uppermost in the minds of whoever studies the political conditions in Russia is, "Where will the revolutionary movement end?" I asked it of every man I talked with. The answers were various. But most of them seemed to think that Russia would follow in the footsteps of France. Their theory was that sooner or later the great empire would become involved in a disastrous foreign war, with Germany, or Austria, or England, or all three, perhaps, for Russia's only allies in Europe today are France and little Denmark. That the invasion of the country and the destruction of the army would give the large liberal element a chance to rise, and that it would be assisted and protected by foreign powers, for the existence of this mighty, aggressive despotism is not only a menace to the rest of Europe, but an impassable barrier to civilization. That Poland would be ultimately restored to independence under the protection of Germany and Austria, and Germanized, and that a liberal government, or at most a limited monarchy, would succeed the despotism at Petersburg. Some think a republic will rise upon the ruins of the empire; that a revolution, with a commune, will follow the defeat of the czar's armies; that the palaces will be stripped of their riches as they were in France, and a reign of anarchy will be succeeded by a democratic government of the people.—William Eleroy Curtis.

How a Zulu Begins Life.

When a Zulu child is first born it is of a light hue and does not get the darker tint of the parents for some years. As soon as it enters the world the "medicine man" is sent for, and contrary to the custom of the civilized "medical man," he takes no notice whatever of the mother, but, devoting himself entirely to the child, makes a number of small gashes in various parts of the poor infant's body, into which he rubs medicine and goes on his way rejoicing, returning next day to make the incisions deeper and rub more medicine into them. This second operation being performed, the child is washed and dried by being moved around in the smoke of a wood fire, eventually being daubed all over with a red paint, which is renewed as fast as it wears off for a period of several months. The child is not allowed any natural food until the visits of the "medicine man" are ended (this formality often causing serious consequences to the offspring), and a few days afterward the mother will be seen about her work as usual, with the little one strapped to her.—Wilf. P. Pond in Drake's Magazine.

It is astonishing to learn that, within 250 miles of the fair city of Rio Janeiro, with its very fine buildings and its railways radiating in many directions, there exist hundreds of cannibals. They generally frequent the valley of the Rio Doce and the adjacent territory, and in spite of missionary and trader, still wander about in careless simplicity. This we learn from a paper read before the Royal Geographical society by Mr. John Stearns, who, in 1885, undertook a journey of exploration through this region. It does not appear that the propensity to cannibalism is very strong at present, for Mr. Stearns passed a month among a branch of the Botocudos, and he saw nothing of it.

These people seem to be as little hampered by conventionalism as any in the world. They go stark naked, they sleep when they like, hunt, fish, sing and dance just when they feel inclined, and eat when they can. They are allowed to have as many wives as they choose, but, like more civilized people, one wife and family is generally as many as a man can keep. They have no religious ceremonies or sacrifices, and the only time that the supernatural comes home to them is during a thunder storm, when

An Assurance of Health.

Among the assurances of health afforded us by the regular discharge of the bodily functions, none is more important and reliable than that which regularity of the bowels gives us. If there is any—even a temporary interruption of this—the liver and the stomach suffer conjointly with inactive organs, and still greater mischief ensues if relief is not speedily obtained. A laxative, above all cavil on the score of mineral composition or violent effect, is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, approved by the medical profession and a most important item of the family materia medica of American households. It is botanic, painless in action, and if persisted in, effectual. The stomach and liver, in no less degree and no less promptly and throughly than the bowels, are regulated and toned by it, and it is an admirable defense against malarial and rheumatic ailments, and a benign remedy for kidney complaints, nervousness and debility.

Indian Reservation Opened.

The Montana Reservation Bill having now become a law opens for settlement four millions acres rich farming lands in the well-known and long coveted Milk River Valley, also large acres of excellent grazing country on the surrounding uplands. This portion of Montana, besides its agricultural resources being rich in minerals with an abundance of coal, is attracting wide spread attention as is shown by the number already settling there. C. H. Warren, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn., has issued for free distribution, an excellent map, and a pamphlet with other information regarding this country. Low rates are now being made to Great Falls for those desiring to explore this new country. 1t

Going West.

The general interest that has been taken in the opening of the Montana Indian Reservation is shown by the large number of people who have already gone to Great Falls to investigate the mineral and agricultural resources of that wonderful country. The low excursion rates announced by C. H. Warren, Gen. Pass. Agent of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway, makes the expense of exploring this county merely nominal, and will undoubtedly result in a still larger number following. 3t

A leading chemist of New York says: "No plasters of such merit as the Ath-lo-pho-ros Plasters have ever before been produced." Facts Worth Knowing.

In all diseases of the nasal mucous membrane the remedy used must be non-irritating. The medical profession has been slow to learn this. Nothing satisfactory can be accomplished with douches, snuffs, powders, syringes, astringents, or any similar application, because they are all irritating, do not thoroughly reach the affected surfaces and should be abandoned as worse than failures. A multitude of persons who have for years borne all the worry and pain that catarrh can inflict, testify to radical and permanent cures wrought by Ely's Cream Balm.

A Sweet Opera Singer Strikes a High Note.

Calling at her hotel, Miss Clara Wisdom, who is a very attractive young lady of twenty-two, and whose voice and manners are quite as charming as her appearance, said: "I held one-twentieth of ticket No. 2,114 with drew $50,000 in the March 13th drawing of the Louisiana State Lottery Co. The Carleton Opera Company was en route to Denver, and at Ogden a vender came into our car, and remembering a five dollar goldpiece which I had found in Los Angeles, I thought I would invest. When a child need physic, she fills a spoon with some nauseous dose, lays the little victim flat on her lap, holds his nose till he is forced to open his mouth for breath, when down goes the dreadful mess. Then come the yells." "No wonder," said Mrs. Smith, "Why doesn't she use Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets? They are effective without being harsh, and are as easy to take as sugar plums. I always give them to my children." "And so do I," said Mrs.

A New Scheme.

The lighthouse board has perfected arrangements for the illumination of Gedney's channel, New York harbor, by means of electricity. Experiments conducted during the winter with the McKenzie-Mills system have demonstrated its utility as an aid to navigation to the satisfaction of the board, and it will be employed in this instance. Six electric light buoys will be used, three on each side of the channel. They will be placed about 1100 feet apart, and are expected to light the channel so that vessels can enter the harbor at night as safely as in the day time. The battery will be located at the Sandy Hook light station, and the lights will be controlled from that point. The establishment of these lights will cost about $26,000, and they can be maintained at a cost of $3000 a year.

A Steamship's Race For Life.

Captain Alexander of the steamship Queen, which sank in a sheltered harbor on the Pacific coast recently, proved himself a hero. He was aware that the Queen was leaking as early as 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, says the San Francisco Post. In a few minutes he saw that she must go down, for the pumps could not work fast enough to keep her clear. Realizing that the only salvation of the steamship and the safety of the hundreds of lives intrusted to his care rested on his making a convenient haven at once, he sent private orders to the chief engineer to crowd on all steam, to use coal as if it were worthless, and to send the Queen along like a racehorse.

The chief engineer responded. All hands in the department were called out, and steam was raised to the utmost limit. As a further precaution the cargo was shifted, and then began a race for life. The engines creaked and groaned, and the journals smoked. All this time the passengers were asleep in their bunks. Finally Captain Alexander began to fear that he could not make port.

All along that part of the coast bluffs arise abruptly from the sea, there being no convenient beach on which the steamer could be run, and the passengers were rooms in all sorts of apparel. A panic seemed inevitable, but again the coolness of Captain Alexander won. He compelled the frightened ones to dress, and by an exhibition of force stopped a rush for the boats. After quelling them, he saw that the firemen worked to the last limit, and when the vessel finally steamed into port, nearly ready to sink, he was the first to see that the passengers went into the boats in an orderly manner.

Old steamship men of the Pacific say that nothing in the history of steam navigation on that coast ever approached the splendid run made by the Queen for port. That she was sunk in a safe place seems to them a marvel. Captain Alexander saw the water advancing inch by inch in his vessel, and all the time urged her to her topmost speed. It is expected that the engines have been somewhat damaged by the terrific strain put upon them, but this is an item hardly worth mentioning in the expense for repairs.

Boys and Base Ball.

BOSTON, May 24.—All the boys are wild about base ball, and why not? It is a great game. The Boston Globe has the best base ball reports. The Bostons play their first game Friday at Boston. Thousands will be present. Read the big report of the match in Saturday's Globe. Then get the Boston Sunday Globe for Saturday's games. All the boys are reading the Globe.

Anarchists Not Wanted.

The German Turners societies of the United States held a delegate convention in Chicago this week, and an amendment to the constitution was adopted making it obligatory for all members of the Turners societies to become citizens of the United States. In his opening address the temporary chairman said that there was no room among the Turners for anarchists, and they had better go out. The anarchistic element nominated Louis Nettlehorst of Chicago for chairman, and the conservatives named Carl Eberhard of Boston for that position; Eberhard was elected by a vote of 423 to 148. The report of the executive board, strongly condemning anarchy and its advocates, was adopted.

To Friends of John D. Long.

BOSTON, May 24.—Ex-Governor and Congressman Long will have another of his entertaining contributions to the "Young Folks' Political history of the United States" in the next Boston Sunday Globe. It will have a great sale, and all his friends will want the Globe.

Luxury and Fast Time.

The First and Only Line Running Vestibule Express Trains between Chicago and Council Bluffs.

Magnificent vestibule express trains—built expressly for this service with all the latest improvements—now run daily each way between Chicago and Council Bluffs, over the Great Rock Island route—time sixteen hours. This is a splendidly appointed series of continuous parlors on wheels, including elegant dining and palace sleeping cars. No noise, no dust, no swaying of coaches, no cold draughts of air, no slamming of doors, but restful comfort the entire journey. No potentate of the old world travels in a more princely style, or commands greater luxuries or more of them, than those going west can now enjoy, if ticketed to or from Council Bluffs via the Great Rock Island Route. This train also connects at Omaha with the "Overland Flyer," going through to and from Chicago and San Francisco, Portland, Ore., and Los Angeles, in eighty-seven hours. Tickets and rates by the Rock Island Vestibule no higher than are charged by lines having greatly inferior accommodations.

CITY OF PORTSMOUTH, MAYOR'S OFFICE, April 16th, 1888.

NOTICE is hereby given that Sagamore Bridge

Want of Sleep

Is sending thousands annually to the insane asylum; and the doctors say this trouble is alarmingly on the increase. The usual remedies, while they may give temporary relief, are likely to do more harm than good. What is needed is an Alterative and Blood-purifier. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is incomparably the best. It corrects those disturbances in the circulation which cause sleeplessness, gives increased vitality, and restores the nervous system to a healthful condition.

Rev. T. G. A. Coté, agent of the Mass. Home Missionary Society, writes that his stomach was out of order, his sleep very often disturbed, and some impurity of the blood manifest; but that a perfect cure was obtained by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Frederick W. Pratt, 424 Washington Street, Boston, writes: "My daughter was prostrated with nervous debility. Ayer's Sarsaparilla restored her to health."

William F. Bowker, Erie, Pa., was cured of nervousness and sleeplessness by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla for about two months, during which time his weight increased over twenty pounds.

OFFICIAL NOTICE!

— OF —

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co.

— FROM THE —

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we respectfully request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

30,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Silver-ware, Window Shades, Drapery, Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Stoves and Ranges, Feathers, Feather Pillows, Spreads, Blankers, Chamber Sets, Parlor Suits, Carpets, Lounges, Easy Chairs, Mattresses, Springs,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the

Furniture, Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET, PARLOR SUIT, Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. There are items worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time, We have invariably paid out the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We wish to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

KITCHEN RANGE, or a CHAMBER SET, or PARLOR SUIT, or CARPETS, WINDOW SHADES, DRAPERY CURTAINS,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of these Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell the same and shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. This notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store, Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

Respectfully, the Public's Ob't Servants,

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., May 24th.

In accordance with a vote of Storer Post, all veterans, survivors of the late war, residing in this vicinity, are cordially invited to join with this Post in the observation of Memorial day, Wednesday, May 30th. Post assembles in G. A. R. hall, No. 5 Daniel street, at one o'clock P. M. sharp.

ABEL JACKSON, Comdr.
M. M. COLLIS, Adj't.

PROMPT PAYMENT IS THE RULE.

A recent issue of the Boston Journal said:

Mr. Henry F. Walling, an engineer in the United States coast survey, died at his home on Trowbridge street, Cambridge, Sunday morning, of Bright's disease. He was about sixty years of age, and leaves a widow and one daughter. He formerly attended Yale college.

The Weekly Statement of the Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York, of date May 23d, contains a note to the general agent of the company from Mrs. Walling, dated Cambridge, Mass., May 8th, and reading as follows:

Dear Sir:—I am in the receipt of cheque for $7,652, the amount due on my late husband's life insurance policy in the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York. Thanking you for the prompt response with which it has been met, I am, Very respectfully,
MARIA F. WALLING.

Mr. Walling at the the time of his demise was sixty-three years of age, and his policy had been in force twenty-seven years and eleven months, the net premiums paid the company by the assured amounting to $2,438.74. Mr. Walling was at one time very well known in this vicinity, the best maps of Portsmouth and of Rockingham county yet published being "from actual surveys made by H. F. Walling, civil engineer."

BASE BALL.

The Portsmouth club had an off day Thursday; there being but five clubs in the Interstate League, one club is of necessity left out in the cold every playing day. Sometimes a club which has an assignment to play gets left out in the cold too—as for instance, the Dover club in this city on Wednesday, the 23d. The Portsmouths were improving their vacation on Thursday by practising on the South street grounds.

The Rochesters play the Portsmouths at the South street grounds this afternoon, play commencing at three o'clock. This is "ladies' day," admission and seats for the fair sex being free.

Rudderham, of the Portsmouth club, who was hurt in the Portsmouth-Rochester game on the local grounds some days ago, went to his home on Thursday, to recuperate; he is doing well, and will probably be able to take his place in the nine in a few days.

PERSONAL.

Carpenter Augustus O. Goodsoe, U. S. N., who has been passing a brief leave of absence at his home in Kittery, returned to New York on the 23d inst. to resume his duties on board the U. S. S. Minnesota.

Minot H. Beacham and Harry Hutchinson are home from Dartmouth college. Mr. Beacham has brought home with him a broken arm; cause, the fascinating but delusive bicycle.

Lieut. Comdr. G. K. Haswell, U. S. N., retired, and family, will take possession of a cottage at Newcastle on the 1st of June, for the summer.

left town the first of this week to rejoin his vessel, the steamship Vaderland, which cleared at Philadelphia for Antwerp, Belgium, on Tuesday, the 22d inst. Mrs. Grant, who has been living in Antwerp between two and three years, came home with her husband on his last trip from Europe, and will pass some weeks at her former home.

Mrs. R. H. Bartleman, of Massachusetts, is a guest of the Misses Larkin, on Middle street.

Col. Charles A. Sinclair has arrived home from a trip to the west.

Dr. Jos. Haven Thacher and family will in a few days close their residence on Islington street, and go to their cottage at Newcastle for the summer.

Harry Lombard, a one-armed soldier for many years well known in this city, died on Wednesday, the 23d inst., of disease contracted in the service. He was a native of France, and served in the French navy during the Crimean war, receiving a medal of honor therefor; he also served in the Italian campaign. Being in this country at the outbreak of the rebellion, he enlisted in Company F, 40th Massachusetts Inf., Sept. 3d, 1862, and was with his regiment constantly until he was discharged, Jan. 10th, 1865, by reason of disability. At the assault on Fort Darling, May 4th, 1864, he lost an arm, and also lost his Crimean medal, the latter loss being about as severely felt by the brave soldier as the former. He was a member of Storer Post, G. A. R., under whose direction his funeral takes place on Sunday forenoon at ten o'clock. His age was about fifty-two years.

Mrs. Darius F. Williams, of No. 3 Linden street, died very suddenly on Thursday morning, the 24th inst., while engaged in attending her household duties. Her death was probably due to heart disease.

Redmund & Barry's combination, in their new play, "Herminie," will be at Music hall on Tuesday evening, June 5th.

Postmaster George H. Fogg, of Sanford, Me., has received official notification from the post office department at Washington to increase his bond, preparatory to the introduction of the foreign and domestic money order system.

The Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York, during the week ending May 17th, paid death claims amounting to $130,785.61, and endowments amounting to $43,134.70. The average daily payments for the week were $28,986.72.

Col. Sise S. F. E. Co., No. 2, at a meeting on the evening of the 23d inst. voted to parade on Memorial day.

The Portsmouth Cricket club will play a game with the Sanford club at Sanford, Me., Memorial day.

All the railroads in the state have made special rates of one and a half cents a mile to all organizations coming to this city on the Fourth of July next, to participate in the dedication of the Soldiers' Monument. This is considered very liberal on the part of the roads, as they have not heretofore made special rates for that day, inasmuch as travel on holidays is generally very heavy.

At a meeting of the Christian society at Rye, held on the evening of the 22d inst., it was finally decided to rebuild the church on the old site, or nearly so. An additional strip of land thirty-five feet in width has been purchased adjoining the north side of the lot, which will enable the committee to set the new church that distance further back than the old one was from the rord.

A book bindery will be started Monday morning by Mr. John D. Randall at No. 5 Congress street, in connection with his job printing office; an experienced book binder has been secured, and the business will be conducted in all its branches, at reasonable rates. There should be work enough in that line in this city to give the enterprise an abundant support.

Have you seen that lot of Challi Dress Goods at 10 cts. per yard? If not, go to Lewis E. Staples' dry goods store, No. 7 Market street.

Hundreds of people endorse Preston's Cough Syrup.

The Home Market Club of Boston has issued in pamphlet form, for free circulation, the speeches of Senator Sherman and Congressman McKinley and Goff, delivered before the club at the banquet in Hotel Vendome, Boston, Feb. 9th, One page is occupied by a fac simile reproduction of a page of London Punch of Dec. 17th, representing President Cleveland standing between two females, one wearing a tiara of feathers and clothed in drapery of stars and stripes, the other carrying a cornucopia labelled "Free trade." Below the picture is the inscription "'Quite English, you know.' President Cleveland (to Columbia,) 'will you allow me to introduce this young lady?'" This illustrates what the British manufacturers, "upper classes" and enemies of Ireland think of Cleveland's message.

Assistant Secretary Maynard has informed the collector of customs at Gloucester, Mass., that the catching of mackerel on the first day of June is prohibited by the terms of the act of Feb. 28th, 1887. They can be taken on the second day of June; at least, there is nothing in the law to prevent it.

The June number of the "Eclectic" offers many features of interest which should engage the attention of thinking the title of "The Breakdown of the Industial System," examines into the industrial evils of the day and indulges in a glowing anticipation of the benefits of socialism to the poor man. There is an interesting paper on the "Central African Question;" the Anglo-American copyright question is discussed from the English standpoint; Miss Christian's "Recollections of Charles Dickens" give many fresh and entertaining facts; John Addington Symonds is represented by a brilliant essay on "Caricature, the Fantastic, the Grotesque;" "Islam and Christianity" controverts some of the recent secular essays which have appeared on this subject in the English magazines; Prof. Richard Procter talks about the "Everlasting Hills;" Oscar Browning's article on "The Art of George Eliot" is written in both a critical and appreciate spirit, and the sketches of Matthew Arnold, will be read with great interest. There are several poems, among which may be mentioned Swinburne's "The Tyneside Widow," a little gem showing the poet in a new light; and Alfred Austin's "A March Minstrel." Published by E. R. Pelton, No. 25 Bond Street, New York. Terms. $5 per year; single numbers, 45 cents; trial subscription for three months, $1.

The national senate on the 22d inst. voted, twenty-eight to twenty-seven, not to discuss the Bayard-Cleveland fishery surrender treaty in open session; the democrats, who were at first in favor of open discussion, voted solidly against it, and Senator Hale of Maine, republican, voted with them. A motion to reconsider the vote was afterward made, and it was stated that on reconsideration Mr. Hale would vote with his party friends.

About twenty clerks in the treasury department at Washington have been notified that their services will not be required after June 30th, as no provision for them will be made in the legislative appropriation bill for the next fiscal year.

Mr. Evans, the liberal candidate for the British parliament from Southampton, was elected on the 23d inst. by a vote of 5151 to 4266 for Guest, the conservative candidate. The Gladstone party consider it a great victory.

In the "American Magazine" for May, William Eleroy Curtis begins a series of illustrated articles on "the Oldest of American Cities." The first paper deals with Carthagena, which was the first city founded on the continent, although several colonies had previously been established on near-by islands, and a fortress had been built at Panama. The city became the rendezvous of the Spanish galleons that went to South America for treasure, and consequently a most tempting field for pirates.

Canals or Ship Railways.

The system of carrying burdens on ship wagons is receiving attention, and, it is argued, if a vessel can safely carry a heavy freight over stormy seas, where half her hull is sometimes out of water, pounded by the waves that break upon her decks or drive upon her abeam, tossing her in their fury from crest to crest, and dropping her suddenly into great "troughs of the sea," it is idle to suppose that she cannot safely carry her burden when lifted gently into a "cradle," and borne smoothly and steadily along over solid rails of steel. It is customary to speak of the sea as a ship's "native element," but no ship was ever yet built in the water.

Ship railways, however, have now passed beyond the stage of mere scientific speculation. The air is full of ship railway projects for all parts of the globe. The ship railway over the Chignecto isthmus is already under contract. A ship railway has also been surveyed across the Florida peninsula to save the 600 miles of distance around and through the straits. This, we are assured, is a most practicable route, and the railway can be built for one-half the estimated cost of a ship canal. But the great work in all this programme, both for to the magnitude of its construction and its results, is the Tehuantepec ship railway of Capt. Eads, now in the hands of Capt. E. L. Corthell as chief engineer. This is a scheme which is regarded by competent judges as sound and well planned, though it is one of remarkable originality and boldness.—London Iron and Steel Trades Journal.

A Slight Difference in Accent.

A suburban lady who is very devout, and whose one weakness is a love for proselyting, thought that possibly by a little judicious planting and watering she might bring into the fold a sheep from another flock. Returning one day from witnessing the impressive ceremony of the departure of a number of missionaries for a foreign field, she called her faithful Bridget and poured into her sympathetic ear the touching tale of the missionaries and their heaven appointed task. As she spoke of the sad separation from families, some of whom Bridget might have some knowledge of, she used the word "missionary" emphatically and frequently. Bridget responded with deep sighs and the swaying of her body to and fro. She was on her knees beside her mistress and taking in earnestly every word.

The story had gone on to the end, when Bridget rose and wiped her eyes. Looking innocently at Mrs. X., she asked, plaintively:

"An' is it Mr. Pettesises' machinery ye mean, mum?"—Boston Transcript "Listener."

"A GREEN OLD AGE."

Few Men or Women Reach It, But Nearly All Might—The Remarkable Experience of an Octogenarian.

"There is only one thing I dread," said the late Charles Sumner, "and that is the coming on of old age."

Mr. Sumner was a brave man, and could face danger unflinchingly but to watch the hairs whiten, the lines of pain and care grow deep in the face, to feel the strength and activity going and death coming on, were more than he could bear. Alas! how many others feel the same today. Pains, loss of sleep, weakness, poor appetite, and feebleness, all break the spirit. Have you never heard of Mr. Nathan Chase, of New Bedford, Mass.? A man nearly four-score years old, and hale and hearty as in youth. And yet he was supposed to be dying of heart trouble less than two years ago. Here is what he says:

"A year ago last March I began to lose flesh and strength. I sent for my physician to know the cause. He examined me, and said it was my heart; that the old machinery was wearing out, and I must be careful. Still I grew worse. Finally I got so bad I could scarcely breathe; I could not lie in bed but had to sit up all night with possibly one hour's sleep out of twenty-four. And yet to-day, I am in fine condition; can go up three flights of stairs without inconvenience, and feel as well and about as young as ever in my life before. What accomplished this? Hunt's Remedy—nothing else. It has made a new man of me, and I bless God for it every day."

Such an experience should be a valuable lesson to all readers, both old and young. It shows that a long and happy life is possible. It shows that men or women need not despond. It shows that by care and the use of the right remedy health, happiness and long life may be secured by all.

As I recall how often he thus answered me, I can but conclude that all thought is audible speech to those who have passed behind the veil.

"Listen!" his pale face growing even paler. "I have not too much of time or strength, but I must tell you all before I go. So hear me out, I pray you, to the end. I wronged you once, as I have said, and this is how! Do you recall the night when I confided to you that I loved and meant to seek Alma Farleigh for my wife? (did I not remember!) You betrayed yourself, then, George. I knew you too well to misunderstand the meaning of that sudden start and the lines about your mouth. Nay! I was on the lookout for some such sign! I suspected you cared for her! Knowing her, how could you help it? But what will you think of me when I tell you that I sought you with the deliberate intention of proving the suspicion correct! My confidence was given with the express design of seeing how you bore it! Does that astonish you? It was only the beginning! Do you remember another night—the night I told you I had asked Alma Farleigh to be my wife, and that she had consented? (as if I could forget it!) I lied to you, George. I had not asked her—much less had she promised! But I had discovered—ask me not how—that if you cared for her, so did she, in a measure at least, care for you! Nay—hear me out!" as I sprang to my feet, "let me go on to the end—my strength is failing. My plotting and planning went even further and deeper. That lie was meant to put an end to all your hopes. I wanted next to be rid of you for a time, for the double reason, lest you should discover the lie, and lest your presence might, in some unforeseen way, give rise to my own defeat! For while you were there—knowing her preference for you, I could not feel safe. Superior as you were and are, in every way, how else could it be otherwise? True, you had given way, and I had been selfish enough to accept your sacrifice. But that did not satisfy me. I wanted you entirely out of her sight. I argued that once convinced all was settled between her and myself, you would then try to get away as quickly as possible. And so it was that, after telling that damnable lie, I made use of Bennett's letter. But even here I lied again! Bennett never mentioned your name. But why waste words! My plans succeeded; I secured my chances, and I had perjured my soul by way of exchange! It was a mad love—a selfish love—and I—I have my reward! If I suffered for it there, I suffer trebly now; for, ah, George! here, a man's evil deeds follow him like avenging ghosts, and will not down. Driven by remorse, I am here to make atonement, if I can! You would have known all this long ago—had you sent me your address. As it is, a letter awaits your return to L——. It is not yet too late! Let my confession be of some avail. We see things in clearer light here, and that you and she were meant for each other now seems most clear to me!

Sighing profoundly, and with drooping eyes, he ceased. What I thought, what I felt, as I stood there listening, and yet unable to credit the evidence of my ears, heaven alone knows! Duped, betrayed by the very man for whom I had sacrificed my own hopes, and to whom I had given place! It was incredible. And yet it must be true, for had not he himself said it? and did not the past, moreover, confirm it? I understood it all at last. My brain reeled under the shock. I paced the room in a tumult of emotion. And yet, strange as it may seem, I was not angry. The first and natural feeling of bitter wrath and contempt had speedily died away. Not for an instant could I forget that the Lloyd who was speaking was not the flesh and blood Lloyd of other days, but a spectral visitant from the world beyond the grave! Yes, I who would previously have laughed the idea even to scorn, now felt somehow forced to admit the reality. Explain this mental conviction I cannot. I only know it was so, and that the unhappy Shade before me was really Lloyd Garrison himself? What could one do or say in the presence of the dead? Anger was equally out of place, bitterness fruitless, reproaches heartless. For had he not suffered already?

So I reasoned, watching him meanwhile as he stood there, silent, motionless and dejected, upon the hearth. Nor could I find it in me to upbraid him by so much as a look! But one thing I must know. I put the question, pausing directly before him as I did so: "She refused you?"

Without even raising his eyes, he nodded a silent assent.

A wave of pity swept over me. The warmth of the old friendship suddenly revived and my heart ached for my unhappy friend. For that he was intensely, nay, desperately unhappy was a fact too miserably patent. He had sinned, but he had loved! And for the rest, what man is perfect?

"And you are dead, Lloyd?" my pity finding its way into my voice. "When was it?"

"When?" wearily, "I hardly know. There is no time here. To me it seems an eternity."

"But how was it, Lloyd? Surely you remember that!"

"This!" suddenly turning and baring his breast. And there, directly over the heart, was a round, red hole.

"Oh, Lloyd!" I cried, and in the excess of my horror and pity, I would have flung myself upon him. But Lloyd, with a swift uplinging of his arms and a great and bitter cry, suddenly vanished from my sight.

* * * * * * *

Two months later I verified in person all of the foregoing facts—that is, the letters I found awaiting me, verified them. And Lloyd Garrison himself filled the grave of a suicide! "Temporary insanity," was the verdict given, and who is there to gainsay it? Lloyd in his letter did not so much as hint at any such desperate intention. It is one of those unsolved mysteries to which death alone holds the key. Insane or not he did the deed, and the rest lies between his own soul and its maker. And Alma Farleigh! To shorten a long story, let it suffice that she is now my wife. Lloyd's atonement ought, then, in human sense to be complete. May the knowledge thereof reach him and bring somewhat at least of rest and peace to his unhappy and storm driven "Shade."—Mark F. Griswold in Pittsburg Bulletin.

A Sneak Thief's Nerve.

A Connecticut man tells this story of a remarkable exhibition of nerve by a professional sneak thief: "One day he walked quietly into a bank, took off his hat and coat, hung them on a nail, put on an office coat that hung there, and walked into the rear room which contained the vaults. The directors were holding a meeting, and one sat in front of a door blocking the passage. The thief politely asked him to move, and when the obliging director did so the man went through the door, picked up two of the largest bags of gold in sight, coolly walked out with them, and their and gold were seen no more there."—New York Sun.

An Assurance of Health.

Among the assurances of health afforded us by the regular discharge of the bodily functions, none is more important and reliable than that which regularity of the bowels gives us. If there is any—even a temporary interruption of this—the liver and the stomach suffer conjointly with inactive organs, and still greater mischief ensues if relief is not speedily obtained. A laxative, above all cavil on the score of mineral composition or violent effect, is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, approved by the medical profession and a most important item of the family materia medica of American households. It is botanic, potent in action, and if persisted in, effectual. The stomach and liver, in no less degree and no less promptly and throughly than the bowels, are regulated and toned by it, and it is an admirable defense against malarial and rheumatic ailments, and a benign remedy for kidney complaints, nervousness and debility.

Indian Reservation Opened.

The Montana Reservation Bill having now become a law opens for settlement four millions acres rich farming lands in the well-known and long coveted Milk River Valley, also large acres of excellent grazing country on the surrounding uplands. This portion of Montana, besides its agricultural resources being rich in minerals with an abundance of coal, is attracting wide spread attention as is shown by the number already settling there. C. H. Warren, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn., has issued for free distribution, an excellent map, and a pamphlet with other information regarding this country. Low rates are now being made to Great Falls for those desiring to explore this new country. 1t

Going West.

The general interest that has been taken in the opening of the Montana Indian Reservation is shown by the large number of people who have already gone to Great Falls to investigate the mineral and agricultural resources of that wonderful country. The low excursion rates announced by C. H. Warren, Gen. Pass. Agent of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway, makes the expense of exploring this country merely nominal, and will undoubtedly result in a still larger number following. 3t

Excursion Rates.

The Little Seed.

A little seed lay in the carter's path;
A little shoot bowed in the strong wind's wrath;
A little scrub grew, by its roots held fast;
Then a stout tree braved all the winter's blast.
A little cough started—'twas only light;
A little chill shivered the hours of night;
A little pain came and began to gnaw;
Then consumption laid all his brave strength low.

Be wise in time. Check the little cough, cure the little chill, dispell the little pain, ere the little ailment becomes the strong, unconquerable giant of disease. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, taken in time, is a remedy for these ills.

DON'T SCOLD a man for groaning when he has Rheumatism or Neuralgia. The pain is simply awful. No torture in the ancient times was more painful than these twin diseases. But—oughtn't a man to be blamed if, having Rheumatism or Neuralgia, he wont use Ath-lo-pho-ros, when it has cured thousands who have suffered in the same way? It has cured hundreds after physicians have pronounced them incurable.

"The skill of five physicians could not cure me of Rheumatism which had settled in the hips, neck and shoulders. So intense was the pain that sleep was almost impossible. The first dose of Athlophoros gave me relief, and the third enabled me to sleep for four and a half hours without waking. I continued its use, and am now well."

Facts Worth Knowing.

In all diseases of the nasal mucous membrane the remedy used must be non-irritating. The medical profession has been slow to learn this. Nothing satisfactory can be accomplished with douches, snuffs, powders, syringes, astringents, or any similar application, because they are all irritating, do not thoroughly reach the affected surfaces and should be abandoned as worse than failures. A multitude of persons who have for years borne all the worry and pain that catarrh can inflict, testify to radical and permanent cures wrought by Ely's Cream Balm.

"Just Hear That Child Scream," Said Mrs. Smith to her sister, Mrs. Davis, as the sound of a child's shrieks came across the garden from a neighbor's house. "What kind of a woman have you for a neighbor? Does she abuse her children?" "No, indeed," replied Mrs. Daves. "She is one of the most tender mothers in existence. But you see, she believes in the old-fashioned styles of doctoring. When a child need physic, she fills a spoon with some nauseous dose, lays the little victim flat on her lap, holds his nose till he is forced to open his mouth for breath, when down goes the dreadful mess. Then come the yells." "No wonder," said Mrs. Smith. "Why doesn't she use Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets? They are effective without being harsh, and are as easy to take as sugar plums. I always give them to my children." "And so do I," said Mrs. Davis.

SULPHUR BITTERS

It is a strange fact that the strongest-minded women shrink from being caught in their own night-caps, but they never hesitate to declare their exalted opinion of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup that has cured innumerable coughs and colds.

Mr. Moncure D. Conway's paper on "the Pedigree of the Devil," in other words, the origin of the conception of a spirit of evil, is the leading article in the "Cosmopolitan" for May, and is published with eleven illustrations, four of them in color.

Whether on land or at sea, on the prairie or in the crowded city, Ayer's Pills are the best cathartic, being convenient, efficacious, and safe. For torpid liver, indigestion, and sick headache, they never fail.

Naegle, the ex detective of Montreal charged with being a member of a gang of thieves, was found guilty by the jury on May 23d.

A Great Battle

Is continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. A good reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla is the weapon with which to defend one's self, drive the desperate enemy from the field, and restore peace and bodily health for many years. Try this peculiar medicine.

The failure of the Schlicht & Field Company of Rochester, N. Y., carries down with it the "Cosmopolitan" magazine, of which the company was financial backer. It is said that no attempt will be made to resuscitate the magazine.

Royal Goff, of Willsboro, N. Y., suffered two years from a hard cold, with severe pains in the side and chest, and raised large quantities of blood. Several physicians tried in vain to relieve him. Three bottles of Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry cured him.

At the session of the supreme court in Concord on May 24th, resolutions of respect to the memory of the late Col. John H. George were presented by Hon. Wm. L. Foster in behalf of the Merrimack county bar, and Judge Blodgett ordered the same entered upon the records of the court.

Our Coast Defences.

It will doubtless be remembered that in the last Congress an effort was made to have a respectable appropriation for fortifications and coast defences. Various bills, appropriating sums ranging from $5,000,000 to $20,000,000 were introduced, but, through the antagonism of Mr. Randall, who was opposed to the expenditure of any money for such a purpose, all the schemes fell through, and only $600,000 was appropriated, which was not enough to even commence operations.

This year, however, a different state of things prevail. The sub-committee of the appropriation committee on fortifications has, for its chairman Sawyer of Texas, who is heartily in sympathy with the idea of providing a complete and adequate system of coast defences, and it is understood that now Mr. Randall has experienced a change of heart, and will not offer any opposition. Governor Long is a member of the committee, and would see that Boston and the other New England points receive a proper share of the appropriation. The sub-committee has gone systematically to work and will consider all the various forms of the coast defences, torpedos, forts, heavy guns, etc., and after obtaining the best information possible recommend the adoption of some one system. It is believed that the initial appropriation will be at least $20,000,000, and that if the committee's plans are carried out that some will have to be appropriated annually for the next ten years.

Trouble in Indian Territory.

Advices from the Indian territory say: Serious trouble is existing in Pickens county, Chickasaw nation, between the non-residents and the Chickasaw officials, on account of the collecting of the $1 per head tax on all stock. The stockmen have organized, armed themselves with Winchester rifles, and for the past few days have been keeping back the collector and his posse by force of arms.

Collector McLish has appealed to Governor Guyat Tishimengo for help to enforce collecting of the tax. The militia have been called out by the governor, and is unable to cope with the mob. The United States government will be called upon for help by the Indian authorities.

There are great fears entertained of a general warfare between the non-citizens and Indian authorities. The former are largely in the ascendency, and well organized for a stubborn resistance. There is but one thing for the general government to do, and that is, to protect the Indians from the outsiders.

"Did n't know 't was Loaded"

May do for a stupid boy's excuse; but what can be said for the parent who sees his child languishing daily and fails to recognize the want of a tonic and blood-purifier? Formerly, a course of bitters, or sulphur and molasses, was the rule in well-regulated families; but now all intelligent households keep Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which is at once pleasant to the taste, and the most searching and effective blood medicine ever discovered.

Nathan S. Cleveland, 27 E. Canton st., Boston, writes: "My daughter, now 21 years old, was in perfect health until a year ago when she began to complain of fatigue, headache, debility, dizziness, indigestion, and loss of appetite. I concluded that all her complaints originated in impure blood, and induced her to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine soon restored her blood-making organs to healthy action, and in due time re-established her former health. I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla a most valuable remedy for the lassitude and debility incident to spring time."

J. Castright, Brooklyn Power Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "As a Spring Medicine, I find a splendid substitute for the old-time compounds in Ayer's Sarsaparilla, with a few doses of Ayer's Pills. After their use, I feel fresher and stronger to go through the summer."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla, PREPARED BY Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Price $1; six bottles, $5. Worth $5 a bottle.

OFFICIAL NOTICE!

— OF —

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co.

— FROM THE —

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we respectfully request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

30,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Silver-ware, Window Shades, Drapery, Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Stoves and Ranges, Feathers, Feather Pillows, Spreads, Blankers, Chamber Sets, Parlor Suits, Carpets, Lounges, Easy Chairs, Mattresses, Springs,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the

Furniture, Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET, PARLOR SUIT, Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. There are items worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time, We have invariably paid out the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We wish to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

KITCHEN RANGE, or a CHAMBER SET, or PARLOR SUIT, or CARPETS, WINDOW SHADES, DRAPERY CURTAINS,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of these Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell the same and shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. This notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store, Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

Respectfully, the Public's Ob't Servants,

THE ATKINSON HOUSE FURNISHING CO.,

Headquarters Cor. Pearl and Middle Streets, Portland, and Branches at Auburn, Rockland, Bangor and Biddeford, also Bar Harbor for a short time.

ISAAC C. ATKINSON, Gen. Manager.

Following is the petition:

To the Honorable Board of Mayor and Aldermen of the City of Portsmouth.

The undersigned, in behalf of the Portsmouth Horse Railroad company, a corporation duly established by the laws of the state of New Hampshire, respectfully request that you determine the distance at which the tracks of said railroad shall be laid from the sidewalks on Deer, Vaughan, Congress, and Islington streets, in said city, in which streets authority has been granted in the charter of said corporation to locate said tracks.

Your petitioners further represent that it is necessary for the public accommodation that branches and side tracks of said railroad should be extended throughout the following-named streets and highways in said city, viz.: Middle, Cass, High, Daniel, State (between Middle and Pleasant streets,) Pleasant and South streets, from Pleasant street to its junction with Sagamore road, and from the point last named through Sagamore road to the line of the town of Rye.

Wherefore, they pray that you may locate the said branches of said railroad on the streets and road above indicated, and determine the distance of the track from the sidewalks and foot paths therein.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., May 24th.

In accordance with a vote of Storer Post, all veterans, survivors of the late war, residing in this vicinity, are cordially invited to join with this Post in the observation of Memorial day, Wednesday, May 30th. Post assembles in G. A. R. hall, No. 5 Daniel street, at one o'clock P. M. sharp.

ABEL JACKSON, Comdr.
M. M. COLLIS, Adj't.

APPEAL FOR FLOWERS.

The Flower Committe of Storer Post desire to call the attention of our citizens to the probable limited supply of flowers for Memorial day, and earnestly request that all who can, will contribute whatever they can spare. Our Nation's Dead are multiplying exceedingly fast; the demand for flowers is increasing each year. Please send your contributions to the Court House on Tuesday afternoon, or early Wednesday morning.

THOMAS TREDICK, JR., Chairman.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS' HEARING.

The late board of county commissioners, with Joseph C. Burley of Epping substituted for Newton Johnston of this city, met at the common council room on Friday morning to hear evidence on the question of ordering gates to be established at the Creek crossing of the Concord & Portsmouth railroad. City Solicitor Emery appeared for the city, and Col. William H. Hackett for the railroad; F. E. Levington represented J. W. Fellows of Manchester, attorney for the Concord railroad. Mr. Frink stated that Judge Fellows was necessarily absent on important business in the west, and asked for a postponement. Mr. Emery objected, and stated that he had tried for some time to secure a hearing, but without success. The commissioners, after deliberating upon the question, granted a postponement until the 3rd of August, at half-past ten o'clock A. M.

BASE BALL.

The Rochester club came to this city on Friday, and proceeded to beat the unvanquished Portsmouths, the score being as follows:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Rochester	0	2	0	2	0	0	2	0	0	—8
Portsmouth	0	1	0	0	1	0	0	0	1	—3

Struck out, by Wills, Portsmouth, 2; by Reynolds 6; bases stolen, by Portsmouth 6; by Rochester 5; wild pitch, Willis; errors, Portsmouth 9, Rochester three.

Games next week on the home grounds: Monday, May 28th, Nashua, at three o'clock; Wednesday, May 30th, Dover, at ten o'clock; Saturday, June 2d, Dover, at four o'clock.

The Congress and Market street clerks are to play a match game of base ball at the south end grounds on Memorial day at three o'clock P. M.

The Dover high school club defeated the Great Falls high school club on the base ball grounds in Dover on the afternoon of the 24th inst., by the score of nineteen to sixteen.

Scandalous and irreverent remarks of the Dover Democrat in regard to the Portsmouth base ball grounds:

Some of the boys say that the third baseman on the Portsmouth grounds is down behind a hill so far that only the top of his hat can be seen from the home plate. We are going to learn to pitch down hill, Portsmouth; beware.

On the Portsmouth grounds the left fielder stands on a buoy at low tide, and at high tide uses a boat.

There is no moving of the ball after it strikes on the Portsmouth base ball grounds. The fielders will hereafter be furnished with shovels to dig it out with.

Mullen made an error yesterday on the Portsmouth grounds. He pulled what he supposed to be the ball out of the mud, and threw it home. Imagine the catcher's surprise when he discovered that instead of the ball he had a good sized clam.

The name of the Portsmouths must and shall be changed to "The Clam Diggers."

At one of the Western League games in St. Louis recently, says the Enquirer, only one solitary spectator paid the twenty-five cents admission to see the game. He sat, sad and majestic, when the game opened, the only eye-witness. Just before play was called, Tom Loftus, the manager, handed a bat to one of the extra pitchers, with the remark: "Step up into the stand and see that he don't get out, even if you have to kill him to keep him in."

Peculiar

Many peculiar points make Hood's Sarsaparilla superior to all other medicines. Peculiar in combination, proportion, and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses the full curative value of the best known remedies of the vegetable kingdom. Peculiar in its strength and economy—Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "One Hundred Doses One Dollar." Medicines in larger and smaller bottles require larger doses, and do not produce as good results as Hood's. Peculiar in its medicinal merits, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown, and has won for itself the title of "The greatest blood purifier ever discovered." Peculiar in its "good name at home,"—there is now more of Hood's Sarsaparilla sold in Lowell, where it is made, than of all other blood purifiers. Peculiar in its phenomenal record of sales abroad, no other preparation has ever attained such popularity in so short a time, and retained its popularity and confidence among all classes of people so steadfastly.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Is Peculiar to Itself

The destruction of English sparrows caused by the cold weather of last winter has been followed by a return of many native birds. The oriole, the woodpecker, the thrush and the yellow-bird are again seen in districts which felt the effect of the great storm, and the country regions have not been so musical for years.

One of the large windows in Grace's store on Market square was broken about ten o'clock Friday night, by a man who at once settled for the damage done.

The Portsmouth cricket club will play the Sanfords of Sanford, Me., on the Portsmouth cricket grounds, commencing at eleven o'clock A. M., Memorial day.

The twenty liquor dealers of Nashua who pleaded nolo contendere to the actions against them under the nuisance act have each paid sixty dollars fine, signed a statement recognizing the constitutionality of the nuisance law, and agreed to go out of the business and remove their goods to Massachusetts.

The Contoocook Valley Paper company, at West Henniker, in a lot of old paper, recently found a check for $100,000 on the Suffolk National bank, Boston, Mass., given March 6th, 1865, to Joseph Callender, teller, by N. J. Lund, cashier. The number of the check was 307, and it has a revenue stamp affixed.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.

$22 TO $900.

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably won the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all GRAND & UPRIGHT others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and dealers, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

A DISTRESSING COUGH.

How many, especially during the Fall and Winter months, are troubled with a Cough, sometimes dry and hacking, sometimes loose causing the sufferer to raise a large amount of offensive matter; this can soon be cured by using Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs.

A 50-cent bottle cured my Cough. Since then I have not been without it. I can heartily recommend it to any one who has a bad cough."

Saved his Life.

Inherited Diseases.

In the realm of disease the facts of inheritance are most numerous and are daily accumulating. Here, alas, they become terrible, fateful and overwhelming. No fact of nature is more pregnant with awful meaning than the fact of the inheritance of disease. It meets the physician on his daily rounds, paralyzing his art and filling him with dismay. The legend of the ancient Greeks pictures the Furies as pursuing families from generation to generation, rendering them desolate. The Furies still ply their work of terror and death, but they are not now clothed in the garb of superstition, but appear in the more intelligible but no less awful form of hereditary disease.

Modern science, which has illuminated so many dark corners of nature, has shed a new light on the ominous words of the Scriptures, "The sins of the fathers shall be visited upon the children unto the third and fourth generation." Instances of hereditary disease abound. Fifty per cent. of cases of consumption, that fearful destroyer of families, of cancer and scrofula, run in families through inheritance. Insanity is hereditary in a marked degree, but, fortunately, like many other hereditary diseases, tends to wear itself out, the stock becoming extinct. A distinguished scientist truly says: "No organ or texture of the body is exempt from the chance of being the subject of hereditary disease." Probably more chronic diseases, which permanently modify the structure and functions of the body, are more or less liable to be inherited. The important and far-reaching practical deductions from such facts—affecting so powerfully the happiness of individuals and families and the collective welfare of the nation—are obvious to reflecting minds, and the best means for preventing or curing these diseases is a subject of intense interest to all. Fortunately nature has provided a remedy, which experience has attested as infallible, and the remedy is the world-famous Swift's Specific, a pure vegetable compound—nature's antidote for all blood poisons. To the afflicted it is a blessing of inestimable value. An interesting treatise on "Blood and Skin Diseases" will be mailed free by addressing SUCCESS. Are you mortgaged, paying heavy rent, or not making both ends meet? Experience has its dear, cheap, which will increase in value several fold in five years. No other such opportunities existing. Full particulars, free, secure competition in O. H. WALTS, Box 1976, Chicago.

As for Hugh, he kept his eyes on the money article, but the words danced before him. Mabel, Russel's wife! Mabel lost to him! What an ass he had been to dream that a girl would look at him when Russel was by! Russel, with his handsome face, and the soft, mellow, tenor voice, which had rung so sweetly over the water last evening! And then it was Russel who had been with her—Russel who had rowed, played tennis, and driven with her while he had had to stand aside and look on! Of course, that gentle, friendly manner of hers had meant nothing but that she was sorry for his accident. How could he bear to see her married to his brother? "Oh, hang it all!" he exclaimed aloud, as the prospect broke upon him; and Russel, startled, aroused himself to ask what was the matter. "Is your shoulder worse?" he inquired, wondering why he was so unlike himself that morning.

"Oh, I don't know! Yes, I suppose it is. I think I had better look up the doctor, for it has been very troublesome lately;" and as the train rattled into the station Hugh pulled himself together for his day's work.

"Why, Russel, all alone?" was Edith's greeting when only one brother appeared.

"Yes: Hugh has gone to see his doctor, and will come down by the next train. I think he is rather bad, do you know, Edie, he was so snappish and unlike himself this morning."

"Poor old fellow! I fancied he was not getting on, he has looked so white lately; but he has been so cheery all along that I never guessed he was in pain."

Hugh appeared in course of time, looking tired and worried. He had had a scolding from his doctor, who found that the collar bone was getting on very badly indeed. "You have been overdoing yourself," was his verdict, "and even a trifling little affair like this must have proper care. You had better go to some bracing place at once and have entire rest, or you will have a lot of trouble with the bone."

"So I'm going to Norway with Vesey," concluded Hugh, as he told his mother and sister what the doctor had said.

"Really, Hugh, you take one's breath away!" said Mrs. Green. "Why, Mr. Vesey starts to-morrow, does he not?"

"Not till the day after; but as the yacht is at Hull I must go to-morrow."

"And for six weeks?"

"It will be about that, I fancy. It ought to put me thoroughly to rights. Anyway, matters will be settled before I come back," he added to himself.

So Hugh went, and Mabel, after staying another week, and finding the place horribly dull without him, went home, rather disturbed in her mind by his sudden flight. A fortnight later Russel followed her to Eaton hall, and proposed, only to meet with a most uncompromising refusal, which very much lessened his good opinion of himself; so he returned home crestfallen, to be pitied and petted by his mother and Edith, who, however, had her own opinion in regard to Mabel's feeling.

Summer gave place to autumn, and November set in with the usual amount of rain and fog. Hugh was at work again, all the better for his six weeks in Norway, and for the news which greeted him on his return; for Edith took care that he should know about Russel's ill success. He was waiting patiently for a chance of meeting Mabel again, and that chance seemed long in coming. Edith, however, at last found an opportunity of assisting fate, for the last week in November she got a note from Mabel, who was in London for a couple of days, and very anxious to see her. "Thank goodness! I've a thoroughly bad cold," exclaimed Edith, as, after a moment's consideration, she wrote a line to explain how impossible it was for her to go out. "So if you are really nice," she concluded, "you will come to lunch to-morrow, and enliven my solitude, for mother is away, and I am all alone till the evening."

"Now, if that does not settle matters," she thought, as she addressed the envelope, "I will trouble no more about either of them."

"Hugh, dear!"

"Well, what is it? I see you want something."

"I want you! Won't you come home early today? I do get so dull and stupid all by myself, and I dare not go out this horrid weather."

"H'm! I'm rather busy, but I will do my best. I dare say I could get home by 4 if that would content your ladyship."

"You dear boy, of course it will, and bring me some new books from the library, for I have nothing to read." And then, after Hugh had gone, Edith fairly danced about the room—for had she not Mabel's postal card in her pocket, and would not something happen that very afternoon?"

Edith had counted on taking Hugh by surprise; and she did so most thoroughly, for he walked quietly into the library soon after 4, with a parcel of books in his hand, and encountered—Mabel.

"Miss Eaton!" he exclaimed. "This is a surprise! I had no idea you were in London."

"I am here for only a few days, and came round to see Edith. I hope I am not in the way?" she added, puzzled by the young man's manner.

"You!" Hugh drew a long breath—"you could not be in the way, Miss Eaton. I only wish"——

* * * * * * *

"They have had a good hour," thought Edith. "I think I had better go in."

"Well! I hope you have not missed me," she remarked, entering the library rather noisily.

"Not a bit," said Hugh; we are as happy as possible; and Mabel says she never should have taken a fancy to me if I had not broken my collar bone."—Cassell's Magazine.

The Arkansas Hot Springs.

The supply of hot water is inexhaustible. There is an abundance for drinking purposes and for bathing 15,000 people daily. The flow being, according to the estimate of David Dale Owen, the noted geologist, about 500,000 gallons daily. The hot waters are collected and utilized, only that portion which is not needed going to waste.—Frank Leslie's.

The Journalist's Profession.

A famous editor said: "I was first a college graduate, then a reporter, and then an editor; but I ought to have been able to stop after I had been two years in the office and gone back to study international law, history and languages; it would have been worth a large capital to me. A man does not find out what he needs to know until he has been at actual work in journalism for a year or two." Probably no profession at the present time requires a greater combination of native tact, with intense application and wide culture.—M. Maurice M. D. in

An Assurance of Health.

Among the assurances of health afforded us by the regular discharge of the bodily functions, none is more important and reliable than that which regularity of the bowels gives us. If there is any—even a temporary interruption of this—the liver and the stomach suffer conjointly with inactive organs, and still greater mischief ensues if relief is not speedily obtained. A laxative, above all cavil on the score of mineral composition or violent effect, is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, approved by the medical profession and a most important item of the family materia medica of American households. It is botanic, painless in action, and if persisted in, effectual. The stomach and liver, in no less degree and no less promptly and throughly than the bowels, are regulated and toned by it, and it is an admirable defense against malarial and rheumatic ailments, and a benign remedy for kidney complaints, nervousness and debility.

Indian Reservation Opened.

The Montana Reservation Bill having now become a law opens for settlement four millions acres rich farming lands in the well-known and long coveted Milk River Valley, also large acres of excellent grazing country on the surrounding uplands. This portion of Montana, besides its agricultural resources being rich in minerals with an abundance of coal, is attracting wide spread attention as is shown by the number already settling there. C. H. Warren, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn., has issued for free distribution, an excellent map, and a pamphlet with other information regarding this country. Low rates are now being made to Great Falls for those desiring to explore this new country. 1t

Going West.

The general interest that has been taken in the opening of the Montana Indian Reservation is shown by the large number of people who have already gone to Great Falls to investigate the mineral and agricultural resources of that wonderful country. The low excursion rates announced by C. H. Warren, Gen. Pass. Agent of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway, makes the expense of exploring this county merely nominal, and will undoubtedly result in a still larger number following. 3t

The Little Seed.

A little seed lay in the carter's path;
A little shoot bowed in the strong wind's wrath;
A little scrub grew, by its roots held fast;
Then a stout tree braved all the winter's blast.
A little cough started—'twas only light;
A little chill shivered the hours of night;
A little pain came and began to graw;
Then consumption laid all his brave strength low.

Be wise in time. Check the little cough, cure the little chill, dispell the cute pain, nor let the little ailment becomes the strong, unconquerable giant of disease. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery taken in time, is a remedy for

If You Fear An Attack

Of fever and ague, or billious remittent fever, don't resort to quinine, a cumulative and pernicious drug that has ruined many constitutions. Use without delay a remedy which the leading physicians of America have recommended for over thirty years past—Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Dumb ague and ague cake, no less than the acurely febrile forms of malarial disease, are promptly relieved and ultimately uprooted by it. In the tropics, where febrile complaints of this sort are more virulent than in the temperate zone, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has established a reputation for preventive and remedial efficacy which competition has not been able to affect prejudicially—nay, has even served to strengthen. Disorders of the stomach and bowels, particularly those to which malaria gives rise, are speedily relieved by it. Kidney complaints, rheumatism, nervousness and sleeplessness, sick headache and constipation yield to it. Appetite and sleep are both improved by it.

Forty years ago Sussman Rothschild and his brother Joseph came to this country from Germany. Sussman went to San Francisco and made a fortune, while Joseph settled in New Haven, Conn. Last week Sussman Rothschild reached New Haven from California. He had not seen his brother for twenty-three years. But fate stepped in and prevented the meeting, for Joseph Rothschild was buried just one day before his brother arrived at the City of Elms.

For Over Three Months

My son suffered night and day with rheumatism; so much so that he was unable to feed himself. Your Sulphur Bitters cured him, and I am truly thankful to say that they are an honest medicine.—Mrs. W. H. Carleton, wife of Deacon Carleton, First Baptist church, Winchester Mass.

John H. Inman, the cottage king, is a southerner by birth, and is a splendid specimen of manhood, standing over six feet in his stockings. He was seventeen years old when the war broke out, and fought through it in confederate gray. Then, when it was over, he turned his attention to money making, and by 1880, when thirty-six years old, had assumed a fortune of several millions. Only twenty years ago he went to New York with less than $1000 in his pocket to represent his entire possessions.

Lorenzo Mund, Providence, R. I., writes: "I contracted a severe cold which settled on my lungs, causing inflammation and distress. I had night sweats and fever for eight or nine days, lost my appetite, and friends said I was in consumption. After considerable doctoring, from which I received no benefit, I was advised to try Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam, and the result is my appetite is good, night sweats and fever have left me, am gaining in flesh and getting to feel like a new man."

Another big flood along the Yellow river in China is imminent.

A Convention.

The herbs of the wildwood held a convention to determine which was the greatest benefactor to mankind. Each gave many cogent reasons why he should be considered as such. After the arguments were all concluded, Chief Justice Oak arose, and said, "While all have done well, he who removes evils from the blood, gives tone to the system, and by imparting health and vigor gives a freshness and zest to life must receive the palm," and upon the Mandrake he placed the white crown of blessing. It is from this herb that is prepared the Ingalls' Mandrake Compound, a safe and sure cure for dyspepsia, stomach and liver troubles, etc. Sold by druggists generally.

I have been afflicted with catarrh for twenty years. It became chronic and there was a constant dropping of mucous matter. It extended to my throat, causing hoarseness and great difficulty in speaking, indeed for years I was not able to speak more than thirty minutes, and often this with great difficulty. I also, to a great extent, lost the sense of hearing in the left ear, and of taste. By the use of Ely's Cream Balm all droppings of mucous has ceased and my voice and hearing has greatly improved.—Jas. W. Davidson, attorney at law, Monmouth, Ill.

"Just Hear That Child Scream!"

Said Mrs. Smith to her sister, Mrs. Davis, as the sound of a child's shrieks came across the garden from a neighbor's house. "What kind of a woman have you for a neighbor? Does she abuse her children?" "No, indeed," replied Mrs. Daves. "She is one of the most tender mothers in existence. But you see, she believes in the old-fashioned styles of doctoring. When a child need physic, she fills a spoon with some nauseous dose, lays the little victim flat on her lap, holds his nose till he is forced to open his mouth for breath, when down goes the dreadful mess. Then come the yells." "No wonder," said Mrs. Smith, "Why doesn't she use Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets? They are effective without being harsh, and are as easy to take as sugar plums. I always give them to my children." "And so do I," said Mrs.

THE MIDNIGHT BELL.

Slowly and solemnly the great bell tolls
The hour of midnight; now the sound floats clear
Across the stillness, falling on the ear
Like the sad knell that peals for passing souls;
Now, like the boom of distant guns it rolls
Far off into the night, and a vague fear
Comes o'er the listener, as when sailors hear
The roar of breakers upon hidden shoals
Then, caught upon the breeze before they die,
Above the slumbering city from the hill,
The last strokes chime out, flinging to the sky
Their deep toned music, whose vibrations fill
The whole wide air; then, fading to a sigh,
The trembling sound is lost, and all is still

THE BLACK STOCKINGS.

Poor Jack! He was a fellow among a thousand; brave as a lion, merry as a lark, and so handsome and dashing! Shoulder to shoulder we had marched many a long mile under the baking African sun, and when Jack succumbed to fever and died, there was not a dry eye in the regiment.

"Larry, old man," he said to me, watching, through the opening in our tent, the last sunset his mortal eyes were to look upon, "I can trust you to give these trinkets to my sister Mora, can't I? She will prize them. She always had a tender spot in her heart for her good for nothing brother. Poor child! she will be alone now—quite alone. A risky fate for a pretty girl of 20. Dysart has written to her, telling you would hand over the little traps; all I have to leave. He will be to the fore if anything goes wrong; but Dysart is not— Well, never mind. My little Mora—Larry, I wish"——

The sentence was never finished, and the voice which, with its merry ring, had given courage and hope to many a fainting heart of late, sank into eternal silence.

Reverently I took charge of the poor boy's legacy to his sister, his medals and crosses, won at peril of his life, and soon afterward fate led me back to Europe.

Jack's sister was in Paris, and thither I was eager to betake myself with all possible speed, to resign my charge, and, if possible, on the strength of my intimacy with Jack, to win a place in his sister's regard.

If a fellow can fall in love with a photograph and a glowing description, I, thanks to poor Jack's affectionate eloquence, was in love with Mora Moncrieff. I believed that my comrade's half uttered wish when dying was that I might win the right to protect Mora. But, then, there was Dysart. Who was Dysart, anyway? Clearly I had better remove all uncertainty upon this point as soon as possible.

Arrived at Marseilles, I found a letter from my aunt, Mrs. Carriston, begging me to visit her for a few days at Mentone, as she had an important matter to discuss with me. This invitation, interfering as it did with my desire to seek out Mora at once, was most unwelcome; particularly as I strongly suspected the reason of my aunt's ardent wish to see me. She had doubtless been playing a little too recklessly at Monte Carlo—the love of gambling being a long established infirmity with her—and wanted me to help her out of a tight place. Well, one good turn deserves another; in my bread and jam days many a half sovereign has found its way from Aunt Carriston's purse to my jacket pocket—why should I not put a cheerful face upon the matter and befriend her now?—though I devoutly wished the summons had come at any other time.

Accustomed as I had been of late to the very light attire of African ladies on their native soil, my aunt's toilet and appearance struck me forcibly. She was a handsome woman, perfectly aware of the fact, and the rustling, tinkling and faint odor of patchouli which accompanied her movements attracted an attention which was not, on the whole, ill paid for the trouble it took to look. She wore her silky white hair high above her still fair forehead; some soft tinted shawl hung usually about her silken shoulders in a loose, picturesque fashion; a glittering profusion of costly rings detracted from the beauty of her hands, and pendant from her waist dangled a bewildering array of ornaments, mostly of considerable value—a velvet bag with massive silver clasps, embossed and jewel studded scent bottles, and a chatelaine so loaded down with trinkets that it was as if she had dragged a silver grappling hook across a jeweler's counter, retaining all the miscellaneous haul.

I thought this display vulgar in the extreme, but contented myself with expressing a fear that she might be robbed some fine day on one of her walks abroad, as she persisted in wearing all this war paint indoors and out.

"Don't be a fussy old granny before your time, Larry, dear," was all the thanks I got for my solicitude. "I haven't lived ten years on the Riviera for nothing"—she had not, as her losses at Monte Carlo could testify—"and I'm quite able to take care of myself and my property. We have, fortunately, outlived the days of highway robberies upon public thoroughfares."

My aunt had known Jack Moncrieff's family in past years, and was deeply interested in my mission to Paris. Very reluctantly, to satisfy her almost childish pleading, I showed her Jack's souvenirs, placed in my hands in trust for his sister. It seemed a sacrilege to produce them in such an atmosphere. My annoyance was extreme when Aunt Carriston begged to be allowed the custody of these valuables until evening, as she particularly desired to show them to a friend. I refused at first, but her volube pleading at last made me weakly give in.

A few hours later, as I was particularly distinguishing myself over a game of billiards, a fellow brought me a note summoning me to the Hotel des Palmiers, where my aunt lived, with all possible speed.

Here I found a pretty state of commotion. Mrs. Carriston, my aunt, had been attacked in the avenue and robbed, the thief escaping with his plunder. As soon as I had ascertained that my respected relative had come off without bodily hurt, I could not repress an unworthy feeling of inward triumph at my astute prediction being so promptly and forcibly verified, but I, of course, maintained a discreet silence upon this point while listening to the victim's account of her misfortune.

"I was returning to luncheon leisurely into that quiet bit of ilex walk, I was startled by a man jumping over the hedge and saying something to me which I did not understand. Then, all in a flash, he pushed me back against a tree, clapped one hand over my mouth—oh, such a dirty hand!—and with the other tore off my bag, the chatelaine, and all the rest of it. He got some of my bracelets, too, though I don't quite know how many. Then he bolted, and how I did yell! but it was of no use. A cloud of waiters went scudding down the road after the rascal, but he was too quick for them. I'm very sorry, Larry, but those medals and things of poor young Moncrieff were in the bag. They were fortunately not of very much value, and I don't suppose"——

"Good heavens! you don't mean to say the thief has got Jack's last gifts to his sister!" I cried, in horrified dismay.

"Yes, they are gone; but what are those bits of things compared with my black pearls, the real Indian filigree, and"——

I interrupted with some exclamation more forcible than polite, I fear, for I was vaguely conscious of my aunt's gazing at me in high dudgeon.

What a fool I had been to allow Jack's trust to leave my hands for a moment! I was no more fitted to be given such a mission than any rascally blackleg. Could I ever hold up my head again at the bare thought of "Mora Moncrieff, whom I had so wronged with my dastardly carelessness? And as for looking in her face, how could I dare do that, unless these stolen goods could be recovered?

They must be recovered; if it took my last penny, I would win back poor Jack's legacy, or never know a light conscience again.

"What was the fellow like, aunt, who made the attack?" I asked, with flattering eagerness, provided my desire had been to search for her stolen treasures.

"A shortish, stumpy man, with a broad nose, and small, dark eyes. One of his hands had the letters 'S. M.' branded on the back."

This was a useful and important clew, which the police officers noted with avidity; and I shortly had the assurance that the best measures possible for tracing the criminal would be taken at once.

My state of mind bordered on desperation, and I could see no clear way out of my difficulty. I shrank from presenting myself before Miss Moncrieff minus her brother's gifts, and yet she may wonder at my non-appearance, having been told of my mission by Dysart. On the other hand, I loathed the idea of tarrying at Mentone, where the mishap had occurred.

In the midst of my perplexities I heard, the day after the robbery, that suspicious characters had been traced to Marseilles, one of whom might turn out to be the man we desired to entrap. Marseilles being a step toward Mora, I decided to betake myself thither, to find out if there was any satisfactory truth in this statement.

My only companion in the railway carriage was a sharp featured lady of uncertain age, with multitudinous parcels and bags. Not wishing to annoy her with attempts at conversation which might be unwelcome, I retired behind my newspaper and forgot the lady's existence.

Though I stared fixedly at the printed page, my mind was miles away with Mora, whom I was fated, perhaps, never to see.

My bitter sweet reverie was disturbed unexpectedly by my traveling companion twitching nervously at the corner of my paper. I looked at her in astonishment, and saw that she was much agitated; she drew the paper from my hand, pressing her finger to her lips to enjoin silence.

I'm in for some sort of a romantic setto with a crazy woman, I thought to myself as I involuntarily glanced at the alarm signal on the wall opposite.

The lady wrote hastily some words upon the margin of my paper, which she then returned.

I read: "There is a man hidden under the seat; are we in danger of an attack?"

Much puzzled to know whether my companion was off her head, or really frightened with cause, I wrote in reply:

"Are you sure? Did you see him get in?"

"No, I felt him; he clutched at my foot," was scribbled hastily beneath my query.

Surely no would be highway robber could be so injudicious as to assail the ankles of his victims before beginning a more violent attack, so with a patriarchal, reassuring smile I inscribed: "Probably it was only a dog."

"No; I felt his fingers. Shall we not stop the train? Something must be done!" she wrote, vigorously underlining the last words.

It was clearly my duty to investigate the cause of my fair neighbor's growing alarm, so with astute caution I asked with marked distinctness if the lady objected to tobacco smoke, contorting my face the while with signs that she was to answer in the negative.

She confessed to a decided preference for the odor of a good cigar.

"Thank you for the permission, madam; deprived of my smoke, I really suffer."

It was such a relief to speak after our solemn interchange of written sentiments upon the ragged edge of The Times, that I was prepared to give utterance to any amount of garrulous platitudes. I lighted a match, talking volubly the while, and when it was blazing, purposely dropped it upon the floor, exclaiming noisily at my own awkwardness. "It was my last match, too. I really must try to save a spark of it to light my cigar."

I stooped to pick up the burned fragment, and took one sharp, comprehensive glance beneath the seat. My companion was right—a man crouched and huddled there among the shadows. His face was turned away, but I saw his hand clearly, upon the back of which the letters "S. M." were legible through the dirt and grime.

At sight of this villainous looking hand my heart began a merry dance. Not from fear—my self respect obliges me to protest against this possible imputation—but because we seemed to have in our clutches the rogue who had stolen poor Jack's medals. I might dare to present myself before Mora, after all, instead of hanging back like a whipped hound.

"Am I not right?" the lady said, with her eyes this time, instead of with her pencil.

"Yes," I wrote: "we must give the

March April May

At no other season does the human system so much need the aid of a reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla, as now. The impoverished condition of the blood, the weakening effects of the long, cold winter, the lost appetite, and that tired feeling, all make a good spring medicine absolutely necessary. Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiarly adapted for this purpose, and increases in popularity every year. It is the ideal spring medicine.

"I must say Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine I ever used. Last spring I had no appetite, and the least work I did fatigued me ever so much. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and soon felt that I could do as much in a day as I had formerly done in a week. My appetite is voracious." MRS. M. V. BAYARD, Atlantic City, N. J.

Are the best months in which to purify your blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best blood purifier.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to buy any other.

A Specimen Reformer.

When Benedict, the democratic wire-puller from New York, was appointed public printer by Reformer Cleveland, in defiance of the law which demands that the public printer shall be a practical printer and have a knowledge of book-binding, Benedict knowing nothing of either, his first essay was to traduce his republican predecessor, and to extol his own virtues.

An investigation into Benedict's methods is being made by a house committee, and Congressman Gallinger of this state, who conducts the investigation for the republican side, has brought out many damaging disclosures. In regard to levying political assessments for the New York campaign last fall, which charge Benedict has been denying steadily, witnesses from his office have been examined for several days, who testified in every case that they paid money, the folding girls being assessed in sums ranging from ten cents to $1 each. The collectors of these assessments testified that they were given to understand that Mr. Benedict would show his appreciation of their services, and the other employes received hints that it would be better for them to pay up; those who did not pay up, have since been discharged. Pay day fell due the day before the election on Tuesday, which would make the transmission of money too late for use. To get the boodle off in time, the chiefs of division cashed the assessment slips on the Thursday preceding. Collusion has been proved between a paper contractor who was next to the highest bidder, and the superintendent of the paper warehouse from Benedict's town, by which the government will lose, it is alleged, from twelve to fifteen thousand dollars for the present year. To do this the paper tester's record was falsified in the interest of the favored contractor.

Several other ugly points have been made against Benedict, but it won't make any difference; he is solid for Cleveland and reform, so he will stick, no matter what may be proved against him. He will be needed to make another assessment on the working girls for the presidential campaign.

An Opium Tragedy.

Three Harvard college students named Leland, Wells and Mills, last Thursday night procured a quantity of opium, went to Mills' room, and smoked the drug for five or six hours, at the end of which time they were all in a terrible state. Medical aid was called in, but Mills died on Friday afternoon, and the other two were reported to be in a critical state on Saturday.

MARITIME NOTES.

Elvin Newton & Co. are putting their seine boats and gear in order for commencing the summer fishing business at Lunging Island, Isles of Shoals.

The schooner John W. Smart, which recently captured two large right whales off Provincetown, Mass., the first whales of that variety taken off the New England coast for more than thirty years, was built in Newmarket in 1877. She is a little craft, only fifty feet long, and registering 17.49 tons.

It is proposed to build a new river up Dover way, as well as a harbor of refuge down in this direction. At least we judge so, from the Washington reports, which announce that the river and harbor bill, as amended by the senate committee, appropriates $25,000 for the improvement of Little Harbor, and $10,000 for Bellamy river.

The schooner Agnes E. Downs, Capt. Levi Downs, was on Sunday all ready to sail on a seining cruise for mackerel, with sixteen picked men and two seine-boats. She will run across to Provincetown, to be on hand for the opening of the seining season, June 2d.

The shore-fishing boats out of this port are getting larger fares this month than for several seasons past, a good proportion of the take being haddock. Most of the small boats fishing out of here will run gangs of drag-nets this season.

A few scattering mackerel were taken in the Kittery weirs last week, and a very good number of shad; also several barrels of bait.

Messrs. Haley & Robinson, of Duck island, Isles of Shoals, have for some time been bringing in to J. O. Downs & Co. about seven hundred lobsters a week. They are setting about one hundred pots.

Naval Intelligence.

The Swatara, which sailed from this naval station recently, has been ordered to proceed to Montevideo for duty on the South Atlantic station. It was expected that this ship would go to the Pacific.

The practice-ship Constellation, from this navy yard May 22d for Annapolis, in tow of the tug Leyden, arrived at New Yord at six o'clock in the morning on the 26th. She could have walked the distance quicker.

The Norfolk Virginian of May 20th says: "The Swatara arrived in the roads yesterday from Portsmouth, N. H. Her launch came up to the yard yesterday afternoon, and when opposite the receiving ship she caught fire. As soon as it was discovered the pilot made for the Franklin. Two of the Franklin's crew succeeded with the help of those on the launch in putting her out before much damage was done. It was rumored yesterday that the Swatara was in need of new decks, and that an effort would be made to have her repaired here."

The navy department is looking about for a competent officer to relieve Commander R. D. Evans as secretary of the lighthouse board, who assumes the charge of the construction of the Maine at the New York navy yard June 1st.

A policeman was stationed at the south cemetery on Sunday, to keep the walls clear of ornamental loafers.

At a meeting of the Portsmouth Cadets at their armory last Friday evening, the following-named non-commissioned officers were appointed: E. L. Jones, 2d Sergt.; H. C. Ross, 3d Sergt.; E. C. Jacobs, 4th Sergt.; F. Laighton, 5th Sergt.; W. Taylor, J. P. Sweetser, C. S. Rand, J. Conlon, corporals.

Mrs. Edward Knight of South Berwick cut her throat on the night of May 24th, inflicting a fatal wound. Domestic trouble was the cause.

The Marshall house at York harbor will open June 14th, with a good number of boarders. Mrs. Andrew Leach of the harbor will have a party of seven boarders arrive for the season, June 1st.

The early low-bush blueberries are in full bloom.

John Gould Carleton, one of the oldest and most prominent citizens of Franklin Falls, dropped dead of heart disease at half-past five o'clock Saturday morning, while superintending out door work.

Gen. Sheridan was very ill last week, but serious results are not expected by the physicians. Nervous prostration, consequent on overwork, was the trouble.

Thomas Smith of Gloucester was last week found guilty of murder in the second degree for drowning Thomas A. Lomasney, a book agent, in Gloucester harbor, and was sentenced to state prison for life.

To Save Life

Frequently requires prompt action. Your's delay waiting for the doctor may be attended with serious consequences, especially in cases of Croup, Pneumonia, and other throat and lung troubles. Hence, no family should be without a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has proved itself, in thousands of cases, the best Emergency Medicine ever discovered. It gives prompt relief and prepares the way for a thorough cure, which is certain to be effected by its continued use.

S. H. Latimer, M. D., Mt. Vernon, Ga., says: "I have found Ayer's Cherry Pectoral a perfect cure for Croup in all cases. I have known the worst cases relieved in a very short time by its use; and I advise all families to use it in sudden emergencies, for coughs, croup, &c."

A. J. Eidson, M. D., Middletown, Tenn., says: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral with the best effect in my practice. This wonderful preparation once saved my life. I had a constant cough, night sweats, was greatly reduced in flesh, and given up by my physician. One bottle and a half of the Pectoral cured me."

"I cannot say enough in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral," writes E. Bragdon, of Falestine, Texas, "believing as I do that, but for its use, I should long since have died."

Mr. John P. Sweetser has notified the employes in his tin and sheet-iron shop, and all engaged in gas-fitting and plumbing, eighteen in all, that hereafter their day's work on Saturday will end at five o'clock, giving them a nine-hours day. The new arrangement commenced last Saturday.

William D. Burnham, an insane man, was instantly killed near the gas works in Concord on Friday forenoon. He belonged in Epping, and was being taken to the asylum for the insane in Concord by Caleb Edgerly, a selectman, and George Tilton, of Epping. The cars were running about twenty miles an hour when Burnham sprang from his seat and made for the door. Mr. Edgerly followed, but was unable to stop the crazy man, and was himself forced from the train with the former. Burnham was instantly killed, his neck probably being broken, while Mr. Edgerly escaped with a severe scalp wound. Burnham was a shoemaker by occupation, fifty years old, and leaves a wife and two children. The body was taken home in the afternoon.

OFFICIAL NOTICE!

— OF —

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co.

— FROM THE —

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we respectfully request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

30,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Silver-ware, Window Shades, Drapery, Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Stoves and Ranges, Feathers, Feather Pillows, Spreads, Blankers, Chamber Sets, Parlor Suits, Carpets, Lounges, Easy Chairs, Mattresses, Springs,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the

Furniture, Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET, PARLOR SUIT, Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. There are items worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time, We have invariably paid out the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We wish to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of these Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell the same and shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. This notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store, Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

Respectfully, the Public's Ob't Servants,

PORTSMOUTH HORSE RAILROAD.

To the Honorable Board of Mayor and Aldermen of the City of Portsmouth.

The undersigned, in behalf of the Portsmouth Horse Railroad company, a corporation duly established by the laws of the state of New Hampshire, respectfully request that you determine the distance at which the tracks of said railroad shall be laid from the sidewalks on Deer, Vaughan, Congress, and Islington streets, in said city, in which streets authority has been granted in the charter of said corporation to locate said tracks.

Your petitioners further represent that it is necessary for the public accommodation that branches and side tracks of said railroad should be extended throughout the following-named streets and highways in said city, viz.: Middle, Cass, High, Daniel, State (between Middle and Pleasant streets,) Pleasant and South streets, from Pleasant street to its junction with Sagamore road, and from the point last named through Sagamore road to the line of the town of Rye.

Wherefore, they pray that you may locate the said branches of said railroad on the streets and road above indicated, and determine the distance of the track from the sidewalks and foot paths therein.

NOTICE TO WAR VETERANS.

HEADQUARTERS STORER POST, No. 1,
DEP'T NEW HAMPSHIRE, G. A. R.
PORTSMOUTH, N. H., May 24th.

In accordance with a vote of Storer Post, all veterans, survivors of the late war, residing in this vicinity, are cordially invited to join with this Post in the observation of Memorial day, Wednesday, May 30th. Post assemblies in G. A. R. hall, No. 5 Daniel street, at one o'clock P. M. sharp.

ABEL JACKSON, Comdr.
M. M. COLLIS, Adj't.

APPEAL FOR FLOWERS.

The Flower Committe of Storer Post desire to call the attention of our citizens to the probable limited supply of flowers for Memorial day, and earnestly request that all who can, will contribute whatever they can spare. Our Nation's Dead are multiplying exceedingly fast; the demand for flowers is increasing each year. Please send your contributions to the Court House on Tuesday afternoon, or early Wednesday morning.

THOMAS TREDICK, JR., Chairman.

STAND FROM UNDER.

The talk on Saturday last, on the streets and in localities where the lightning is expected to strike, was that the "nuisance act" was to be started on the work of destruction of the liquor traffic in this city this morning, the requisite twenty signatures of legal voters having been secured against a large number of saloons, stores and hotels. What the foundation was for the scare we could not learn; that the scare existed there could be no doubt.

The Penny Post of Saturday evening said: "It is rumored that the names of all the signers to the petition to enforce the liquor law have been given away by somebody, and are freely bandied about the city in a not complimentary manner on the part of the interested parties. If reports are true, there is to be a general raking of the genealogy of some of our citizens. What the effect of the enforcement of the law on the general business of the city will be, is the unsolved problem now interesting our citizens generally."

RUNAWAY ACCIDENT.

Mr. Everett Hammond of Eliot, chief clerk in the department of yards and docks at the navy yard, was driving into this city Saturday afternoon about five o'clock when his horse took fright while on the descent at the southerly end of the Noble's Island bridge, and ran away. The carriage struck the electric-light pole near the corner of Green and Market streets, and Mr. Hammond was thrown out, landing nearly thirty feet from the pole, and being badly injured, his face being much scarred, his right wrist sprained if not broken, and his whole system heavily jarred; internal injuries were also feared, but the medical authorities could not speak positively as to this. Mr. Hammond was picked up insensible by Mr. George Scott and others, and taken into J. Brooks & Co.'s grain store. The team, after passing the electric-light pole, struck a granite post about fifty feet away, canting it much out of plumb, and was finally caught near Garrett's store on Market street. Mr. Hammond was taken to his home in the evening.

By invitation of Rev. O. S. Baketel, pastor of the Methodist church, Storer Post, No. 1, G. A. R., and the Woman's Relief Corps, on Sunday afternoon attended divine service at that church.

On Sunday evening, in the Middle street Baptist church, Rev. Dr. Alden delivered a discourse "In memory of our patriot dead."

The vesper service at the Unitarian church on Sunday, the 27th, was the last one for a time, the service being suspended for the summer.

E. G. Parker Post, No. 99, G. A. R., of Kittery, and the Woman's Relief Corps connected therewith, by invitation of Rev. J. B. Lapham, pastor of the 2d Methodist church in that town, attended divice service at that church in a body on Sunday afternoon, when the pastor delivered a Memorial sermon.

The Dover Republican of May 26th says: "B. D. Sullivan has sold his bay horse 'Dick' to Deputy United States Marshal Coffin of Portsmouth. He is a splendid stepper, and Marshal Coffin has got a prize. The figure was large, but satisfactory to both parties."

The graduation exercises of the Portsmouth high school will be held on Friday afternoon, June 27th, commencing at three o'clock, instead of on Thursday, the 28th, as originally intended.

The number of farm teams in town on Saturday was not so large as is usual on that day when the weather is so fine as it was on Saturday; spring work probably accounts for the small number.

There was a very large turnout of the Grand Army on Sunday morning, to attend the funeral of their late Comrade Harry Lombard.

Have you seen that lot of Challi Dress Goods at 10 cts. per yard? If not, go to Lewis E. Staples' dry goods store, No. 7 Market street.

The work of laying the granite base of the soldiers' monument, on the foundation laid last fall, was commenced last week, and it was in an advanced state of forwardness on Saturday evening.

The lofty chimney of the new Jones brewery was completed last week, and the staging taken down. About the last thing done before commencing to take down the staging was to put in position on the top of the chimney a copper rod, from which is flying a national ensign, which will continue to fly there until it is blown away.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

Distress After Eating

Sick Headache

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." "There is no gain so certain as saving what you have." Why then destroy valuable garments by using common and impure soaps upon them? Prof. Genth, of the University of Pennsylvania, says: "I find the Ivory to be a very superior soap. It "gives a fine lather, and it can safely be used upon any fabric."

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory'!" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS. The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture in these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.
Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration and proof of excellence of their organs, the fact that at all the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors.

PIANOS Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

SIBERIA.

Its Secrets Revealed—George Kennan's Wonderful Journey.

Text Life in Siberia, etc., had spent four years in Russia and Siberia, was thoroughly conversant with the people and the language, and had reached the conclusion that the Russian Government had been misrepresented, and that the exile system of Siberia was not so terrible as was supposed. Knowing that Mr. Kennan held these views, the Russian Government gave him every facility for a thorough of Siberia—the most thorough that had ever been made by a traveler. Armed with letters from the Russian Minister of the Interior and other high officials, Mr. Kennan went everywhere, inspecting mines and prisons, convict barges and hospitals, and traveling with chained exiles along the great Siberian road. He made the intimate personal acquaintance of more than three hundred exiled "liberals" and Nihilists, many of whom wrote out their histories for his use. The actual facts, as revealed by this searching investigation, were far removed from Mr. Kennan's preconceived ideas, as this thrilling narrative of fifteen months' privation and adventure will show.

As is already known, the publication of Mr. Kennan's preliminary papers has resulted in his being placed by the Russian Government, and copies of The Century containing them have the objectionable article torn out by the custom officials before being allowed to enter the Czar's dominions.

"I expected, of course," says Mr. Kennan, in a recent interview, "to be put on the Russian black list. I am only thankful that I succeeded in crossing the frontier with all my material and papers coming this way. I became satisfied before I got half through Siberia that I should never be permitted to go there again, and that after the publication of my papers no other foreigner would be allowed to make investigations there, and I lost no possible opportunity to secure accuracy and thoroughness. I brought back more than fifty pounds of notes, papers and original documents, many of the latter from secret Government archives, besides over a six hundred foolscap pages of manuscript, prepared for me by political exiles in all parts of Siberia, and covering the most noteworthy episodes of their lives. I can regard the black listing, therefore, with a certain degree of complacency. The sabbloor is locked, but the horse has been stolen—and I've got him."

Mr. G. A. Frost, artist and photographer, accompanied Mr. Kennan, and it is expected that the results of his work will form the most interesting series of pictures of Russian and Siberian life and scenery ever made.

THE LATEST DISCOVERY.
A Prominent Physician Reveals Some New and Startling Secrets.

"Do you know," said Dr. Bodish, of Boston, at the club, one evening recently, "what the starting point of most physical troubles is?"
"No, indeed," replied a circle of anxious enquirers, as they crowded about the doctor.
"Tea and coffee," answered the eminent physician.
There was a look of horror on the faces of his listeners. The doctor continued:
"Men, and women even more, drink tea and coffee constantly, and wonder why they feel dull and stupid, have headaches, a bad taste in the mouth, pains in the limbs and about the body and irregularity of the secretions. Nine cases out of ten these things are caused by too free a use of tea and coffee. These drinks clog the system, weaken the tissues and destroy the most important organs. Few men or women who indulge in tea and coffee regularly have clear urine, but on the contrary, sediment, scum and brick dust, all of which invariably mean coming disease or death."
"But what are we to do, Doctor? Shall we give up tea and coffee altogether?"
"No. I do not advise that, but regulate it. Keep the kidneys clear and active. There is nothing in the world so good for this as the well known and popular Hunt's Remedy. Any one who uses this medicine regularly can drink tea and coffee moderately without fear. The reason is that Hunt's Remedy flushes or washes out the kidneys, and keeps them free and healthy. Any number of prominent men and women can confirm what I say, among the number scores of doctors and ministers, Gen. Butler, Gen. Monroe and Miss Alcot."
It was plain that the warning and advice of the doctor had made a deep impression on his listeners, as it also should upon the millions of men and women who are shortening their lives by the use of these drinks.

follow in charge as soon as possible. Don't let him know we suspect his presence."
I reflected that our precaution of writing everything referring to the culprit was perhaps needless, as a common thief from the Riviera would scarcely be likely to understand English; still, in such cases, the extreme of prudence was better than the lack of it altogether.
The half hour elapsing between the discovery of this man and our arrival at the next station was fraught with ill concealed terror for the sharp faced lady, and much repressed excitement for me. Would the man dash out, and either attack me or make good his escape before the train stopped? Far better for me to be worsted in a tussle with him than to lose him and his booty forever. I could not form a guess as to his strength, not having seen more of him than the bunched hand. For the lady's sake I devoutly hoped that we might be spared a scuffle. Presently, to my intense relief, the train began to slacken its speed, and the hoarse voice of the guard shouting the name of the station sounded like celestial music in my ears. I seized upon the first official I could find, as we stopped, and he, collecting the desired force, made short work of arresting the man who was stealing his ride. He was dragged forth with very little resistance; he saw how useless a fight would be, and was soon in safe custody.
To my inexpressible joy, poor Jack's medals were found upon the thief's person, together with the greater part of my aunt's property.
The man, a hardened scamp, was disposed for joking and sarcasm upon the subject of his own detection.
"Were you mad or asleep when you betrayed yourself by touching that lady's foot?" I asked.
"Why, you see, sir," he replied with a leer, "those Englishwomen have such sticks of legs covered with black stockings, I took this old girl's for the leg of the bench, and took hold of it to give myself a bit of a rest. Never was a fellow more upset in his calculations than I was when that leg moved. It was an unlucky mistake."
Whether her ankles were those of a sylph, or like drumsticks, I was devoutly thankful to this lady for the role her black stockings had played in helping me to recover my stolen property. As I assisted her into the train for the conclusion of her journey, I inadvertently saw for myself that the thievish rascal's mistake about the leg of the bench was not altogether surprising. I wished I might in some way be of service to her, in acknowledgment of the great help she had given me, but I feared this exemplary desire could never be realized, as I watched the train disappear, bearing her with it.
Two days later I was in Paris, and the happy recipient of an invitation from Miss Moncrieff to come with her at the villa where she was temporarily lodged, ten minutes' distance by rail from the city. "Miss Gould will meet you at the station with the carriage," the note concluded.
Descending from the train at the station indicated, I noticed a neat little Victoria drawn up in attendance, and alighting from it a length of spare, black ankle with which I seemed strangely familiar. I scanned the owner's face, and as I expected, beheld the well known lineaments of the lady who had helped me to bag my game.
"How very extraordinary!" she exclaimed, as I approached the carriage and introduced myself. "Only think of our having had such an exciting adventure together without ever discovering that we ought to be friends."
"You are Miss Gould, I suppose?"
"Yes; I'm Mora's—Miss Moncrieff's companion. She has told me long histories about you, and has been awaiting your arrival with impatience. I returned only yesterday from a trip to Mentone, and found the poor child in very low spirits. We must do our best to cheer her up a little. Poor Jack, poor Jack!"
* * * * * * *
Lovely, dark eyed Mora, pale as a lily in her black dress; my heart went out to her in sympathy for her great sorrow. I loved her from the moment when she put both her hands in mine and welcomed me as the friend and companion of her lost brother, and before many weeks had passed by I won from her the assurance that my love was returned.
As for the estimable wearer of the black stockings, she has made me her slave for life, and I can never discharge the debt of obligation I owe her for the blessing she indirectly brought upon me.
Dysart is a good, harmless sort of fellow enough, and Mora and I hope that he has taken a fancy to Miss Gould, which she reciprocates.—Lucy Blake in Frank Leslie's.

Counterfeiting Postal Notes.
The postal note has fallen a prey to the counterfeiter. It was supposed, when this note was designed, that it could not be readily imitated. A young man in the auditor's office in Washington was the first to perpetrate a fraud with the notes. He changed several of those that had been canceled, and had them cashed. He was discovered and punished. Since this there have been several counterfeits placed in circulation, and the manufacturers of them have not been discovered by the secret service officers. The government is not responsible for the loss or destruction of the postal note; and if any are lost, like postage stamps, there is hardly any means of tracing them. The postal note is quite a popular mode of transmitting money through the mails, and there should be more safeguards to prevent it from being counterfeited.—Demorest's Monthly.

A Valuable Wedding Gift.
The "nest egg" presented as a wedding gift by the late A. S. Barnes, the well known publisher of New York, to his granddaughter a few days before his death was such as most persons would gladly possess. Inclosed in a white velvet box was an exquisite pendant representing a bird's nest, made of finest gold wire closely interlaced, through which small diamonds were irregularly scattered. On the edge of the nest was a bird with wings outstretched as if to fly, composed of diamonds. On lifting the nest there were disclosed seven piles of gold coins, five in each pile, each coin a $20 gold piece, making $700.—Chicago Herald.
A London photographer claims to have perfected a system of photographing in colors. He takes a negative on a specially sensitized plate; from this a positive is produced on a chemically treated basis by the aid of a solar camera and a spectroscopic arrangement. The image is produced in colors on the basis without the aid of handwork or brush. The colors are said to be all hydrocarbons, specially prepared and capable of subdivision to the 180-millionth of an inch. When the colored pictures are produced by chemical action the image exists between two films not more than the 100th part of an inch in thickness. These photographs are said to be permanent, and not affected

Recently the New York Sunday Tribune, in a sketch of the lawyers engaged in the hearing of the Stewart will case, spoke of Ex-Surrogate Rollins as being "familiar with the literature of testaments." This familiarity is derived from an extensive experience in the trial of contested will cases while he was on the bench he has recently ceased to adorn. His first acquaintance with the "literature of testaments" was acquired when, as a good little boy, he attended the Sabbath school of the Congregational church in his native town of Somersworth, in this state.

In chronic diseases, medicines should be restoring, and not debilitating, in their action. The wonderful strengthening and curative effects, realized from the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, sustain the reputation of this remedy as the most popular blood purifier.

Be wise to-day. 'Tis madness to neglect a cough or cold, however slight. Consumption may follow, and though Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry has frequently cured this much dreaded disease, it almost invariably cures the primary diseases of the throat, lungs and chest, where other remedies fail.

Interested People.
Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam for coughs and colds does, is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles are 50c. and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption. tje23

If You Fear An Attack

Of fever and ague, or bilious remittent fever, don't resort to quinine, a cumulative and pernicious drug that has ruined many constitutions. Use without delay a remedy which the leading physicians of America have recommended for over thirty years past—Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Dumb ague and ague cake, no less than the actively febrile forms of malarial disease, are promptly relieved and ultimately uprooted by it. In the tropics, where febrile complaints of this sort are more virulent than in the temperate zone, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has established a reputation for preventive and remedial efficacy which competition has not been able to affect prejudicially—nay, has even served to strengthen. Disorders of the stomach and bowels, particularly those to which malaria gives rise, are speedily relieved by it. Kidney complaints, rheumatism, nervousness and sleeplessness, sick headache and constipation yield to it. Appetite and sleep are both improved by it.

Capt. John Macfarlane, is ordered to the receiving ship New Hampshire.

Civil Eng. T. C. McCollbm, is ordered to duty at the New York navy yard.

Carpenter George W. Davis is detached from the St. Louis, and ordered to the Pensacola.

For Over Three Months

My son suffered night and day with rheumatism; so much so that he was unable to feed himself. Your Sulphur Bitters cured him, and I am truly thankful to say that they are an honest medicine.—Mrs. W. H. Carleton, wife of Deacon Carleton, First Baptist church, Winchester Mass.

Passed Asst. Paymaster Eustace B. Rogers, is ordered as assistant to the general storekeeper at the Boston navy yard.

Lorenzo Mund, Providence, R. I., writes: "I contracted a severe cold which settled on my lungs, causing inflammation and distress. I had night sweats and fever for eight or nine days, lost my appetite, and friends said I was in consumption. After considerable doctoring, from which I received no benefit, I was advised to try Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam, and the result is my appetite is good, night sweats and fever have left me, am gaining in flesh and getting to feel like a new man."

Passed Asst. Surgeon S. H Dickson, is detached from the Dale, and ordered to temporary duty at marine headquarters, Washington.

A Convention.

The herbs of the wildwood held a convention to determine which was the greatest benefactor to mankind. Each gave many cogent reasons why he should be considered as such. After the arguments were all concluded, Chief Justice Oak arose, and said, "While all have done well, he who removes evils from the blood, gives tone to the system, and by imparting health and vigor gives a freshness and zest to life must receive the palm," and upon the Mandrake he placed the white crown of blessing. It is from this herb that is prepared the Ingalls' Mandrake Compound, a safe and sure cure for dyspepsia, stomach and liver troubles, etc Sold by druggists generally.

Captain Edward E. Potter is detached from the League Island navy yard, and ordered as governor of the naval asylum at Philadelphia.

It is a Curious Fact

That the body is now more susceptible to benefit from medicine than at any other season. Hence the importance of taking Hood's Sarsaparilla now, when it will do you the most good. It is really wonderful for purifying and enriching the blood, creating an appetite, and giving a healthy tone to the whole system. Be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla, which is peculiar to itself.

Passed Asst. Surgeon F. S. Nash, is ordered to duty on board the Dale, in addition to his present duties.

I have been afflicted with catarrh for twenty years. It became chronic and there was a constant dropping of mucous matter. It extended to my throat, causing hoarseness and great difficulty in speaking, indeed for years I was not able to speak more than thirty minutes, and often this with great difficulty. I also, to a great extent, lost the sense of hearing in the left ear, and of taste. By the use of Ely's Cream Balm all droppings of mucous has ceased and my voice and hearing has greatly improved.—Jas. W. Davidson, attorney at law, Monmouth, Ill.

News About Town.

It is the current report about town that Kemp's Balsam for the throat and lungs is making some remarkable cures with people who are troubled with coughs, sore throat, asthma, bronchitis and consumption. Any druggist will give you a trial bottle free of cost. It is guaranteed to relieve and cure. The large bottles are 50c. and $1. (2)

SLEEP.

Come to me now. Oh come, benighest Sleep!
And fold me up as evening doth a flower,
From my vain self, and vain things which have power
Upon my soul to make me smile or weep.
—Patrick Alexander.

THE VALLEY OF DEATH.

Where is it—the limb of the tree that fell on me when that shell shrieked above me? Limb? It was as if the tree fell on me. Strange! Neither limb nor tree to be seen. Hark! Thunder? No. Cannons! There, that would wake the dead—a solid shot—or was it a shell boring a hole through that tree? Another—and another. Leaves dropping. That sound—the ping, ping of bullets. Why am I here alone? What is this weight on my arm? Here, you; I say, sir! Move a little, will you? What, sulking, are you? Well, then, just allow me to pull my arm from under you. Don't you think it is rather hot here?—with these twigs dropping on you? If my head wasn't so light I'd cut and run. He won't speak. Are you hurt? I thought I was clubbed with a tree a while ago. Just try and move a bit. Wonder if he is asleep? I must get a look at you, old fellow—why, he is stone dead, with all his weight on my arm.

* * * * * * *

I must have fainted. This weight on my arm brought me to. I will lose my senses if I lie here with this awful face grinning at me. Why don't they carry him away? Where are the stretcher bearers? Help! No one comes. I must free myself from this dead man. It is like tearing soul from sinew—ah! poor arm. Poor useless arm. I'll not try to lift you to my head again. Dangle till the doctors come, I shall never lift you again. At least I can sit up—I am up. Another dead man. Another — dead men everywhere on this side. No; not all dead. That one in brown opens and closes his fingers. And there! Merciful Father! Five lying with their feet together—all but one disemboweled—torn open—and one without a head! Only a shell could do that—bursting in their midst. What is this awful thing—man or beast—crawling, wriggling on its side, coming this way? It has the hair, the eyes of a man, but where is the face, the nose, jaw? Is that his tongue hanging on his breast? Keep off! keep off, whatever you are!

* * * * * * *

That at least was no dream. And now that I am able to think, I know what has happened. Loss of blood—the pain this arm gives me has weakened me. That poor wretch who lost his face—he is lying very quiet now. And that poor fellow does not move his fingers. I wonder if any of them are like me—lying in a faint. Nobody stirs. What! not a soul alive here but me? It cannot be. There must be some weak with pain and loss of blood. But how can they be silent with the cannons thundering, limbs snapping all around us, and that rattle that never ends—that comes in swells like tremendous gusts of rain, spattering lead through the forest and marking the trees. There! that was enough to crack the earth. It must have exploded on the ground. It has set the leaves and grass on fire. I see the flames leap up. Ho, there! do you not see the fire? Do you not hear the branches crackling? Will you lie and be burned like grass? They do not hear. These men would not open their ears to the God who thundered his commands from Mount Sinai. The charge that mows down ranks of men as ripe grain falls before the reaper has no terrors for them, nor belching cannon, nor all the tumult of battle can rouse them. The trumpet that wakes them will summon the quick and the dead on judgment day. I am suffocating with the smoke and heat. If I could crawl to the edge of that little stream—where so many dead lie—could I lie on its edge, or reach that great stone, I may escape the fire.

* * * * * * *

Ah! water. Blessed water. I heard it patter, patter, patter in my dreams. But—how is this? The ground is dry. Surely I heard water dripping. Great drops fell. I hear it now. Great drops from a clear sky. A clear sky! Ha, ha! It is the patter of bullets. I have escaped the fire, but what living creature will survive the lust of iron and lead sweeping back and forth over the red field! Listen. That is the cry that broke the stillness of the Sabbath morn, that dismayed and terrified my comrades, but though it chilled my very marrow, I did not run. What! Run? Did I ever flinch? Not when I preached my trial sermon. A man whose mission is to save the erring give way to fear! But the god of battles called me here. Yes, 'tis the same shrill yell, but growing fainter—as the hurtling lead plows deeper all around me. That answering shout—they come this way. Perhaps some one will see me—if it is only to moisten my lips—ay, and I may be ground beneath the hoofs of the horses galloping riderless past me. The shower of lead has ceased, but not the bark of the cannon. How the great balls lop the tops off the trees, and splinter and rive and perforate the trunks. 'Tis like the cry of lost souls, these bursting shells and answering shells screaming over me. Nothing but sound—awe inspiring, soul sickening sound. My very soul goes out on it. This is surely death. The god of battle reigns—the world rocks.

I thought I was lying in the old loft, in the old log house. The winds were sighing; the branches of the old elm swept the roof gently above me. Looking out of the little two pane gable window, I saw the moon hang low like a scythe. There was the crowing of cocks, the cackle of geese and ducks, and the laughter of the harvesters following father to the fields an hour before daybreak, while I snuggled in bed and feigned not to hear my sister call me. The air was full of sound; the birds were calling to their mates; the branches of the elm caressed the roof, and familiar sounds told me that preparations for the morning meal were well advanced. I heard my mother say, "Let Robert sleep a little longer." And I wake here on the battle field with dead men all around me! Am I truly awake, or crazed with fever? My throat is parched. Water within my reach and yet I am powerless to help myself. I would give all the world for a drop of water. My skin—how hot it is. My head—what is this? Blood? Let me think. Doubtless 'tis the marrow of the dead man who fell on me. But, steady, —s-t-e-a-d-y. There is a hole in my head. Yes, I can feel the jagged edge plainly with three fingers. I am living—lying here on a big, flat rock, on my right side; with three fingers of my left hand feeling a hole in my head above the temple. The brain is oozing out. Now, if that were so, I would be as cold as those fellows lying over there. No man can live with his brains dropping out of his head, and here is half a teaspoonful I wiped away, thinking it blood. This must be a trick of fancy. If I am wrecked with fever fancies—why does this arm distract me, too? It was that which woke me—brought me back from my dream of boyhood to this scene of carnage. But—the hole is here in my head. Let—me—try—to—think.

In the first place, here are black patches of seared ground that was covered with grass, leaves and undergrowth awhile ago. There are trees riven with shot and shell. Here is a tree near me with twenty-eight bullet marks. Here on my right, and below me, are thirteen dead men—eight in Federal blue. There! I can hear the sound of my own voice. All very well thus far. I have it. Attention!—salute the commanding officer. What is your name?

Robert Stoner.

Where were you born?

Westmoreland county.

Where were you educated?

I was graduated from Harvard.

What is your calling?

I was educated for the ministry.

What is your rank?

First corporal.

Company letter, regiment and brigade commanders.

Company B, Fifty-third Ohio infantry, Col. Appler. Hildebrand's brigade.

Day of the week, and month of the year,

Sunday, April 6, 1862.

There—that sounds all right—but I feel the hole in my head as plainly as before. What is this? It is not the daylight that is fading. How long have I been lying here? That awful charge was made before eight. My time must be short. I feel myself growing strangely faint and numb—and so this is—is death!

* * * * * * *

Darkness—utter darkness. More leaden hail—will the battle never end? The ground is wet. My clothes are wet—God's blessed rain at last! What sounds are these? Have the dead come to life? Moans, curses, blasphemy—my blood curdles. Was that a bolt of lightning? There is another—and others. They are shells. These fleeing figures in the darkness—now I can barely see them. I hear the rumble of artillery, the clang of sabers, the commands of officers, the sullen curses of men. Shells exploding everywhere. 'Tis like hell itself, these bursting shells, screams of wounded and moans of the dying. There is the ceaseless tramp of many feet, the neighing of frightened steeds, all pressing back to escape the sweep of the monster shells. Limbs crackling, trees toppling—God! what a swath the shot and shell cut in the forest! The living trample the dead in their mad flight—they are heedless of the fresh fallen; the horses neigh in terror as they bear their riders against saplings, bruise and buffet them against trees—and still the screaming shells pursue them. Theirs is the agony of apprehension. It must be as Sherman predicted; the gunboats on the Tennessee are discharging their cargo on the heads of the enemy, nor selvage of timber, nor deep forest can avail them, nor render more shelter than the open fields. The belching cannon sweeps them back from the ground they won in the day.

Blessed rain that moistens my lips. Welcome the fiery gust of shrieking shells that sheer the forest and sweep the enemy back as remorselessly as the ocean surf lashes the beach upon which it casts the ragged sea weed, limp and high. Though you may not live to see the light of another day, Robert Stoner, you have the consciousness on the threshold of death's door that the field strewn with Federal blue has been regained by the blast of iron from the gunboats.

* * * * * * *

What strange sense is this? I seem to be midway between earth and heaven. The air is tremulous with strange, sweet sounds. There are shimmering, shifting lights, now vivid, now faint. Flashes of light come and go like the fitful flames of musketry that flashed from the edge of that forest when the enemy assailed, then swarmed upon us. There is a muffled sound in my ears; 'tis not like the hollow rumble of artillery, or the throbbing of the great guns that pulsed in the morning air as the smoke of battle puffed and lay low about the bristling batteries, nor like the volleys of musketry that rolled and rattled in angry response to the roar of the cannon. 'Tis more like the ceaseless rush of mighty waters. The lights are fading; sound ceases. My broken arm that was like a nest of needles a moment ago is cold as ice. Is this the end? Corp. Stoner, prepare to salute the great commander!

The faint morning shadows are slanting along the orchard slope. I see the cows cropping the lush meadow grasses; cool shadows lie over the sheep fold. The mist hugs the swamp. The bluebirds and robins pipe their morning songs, and sober faced Dobbin stretches his neck over the bars looking for his oats. The furrows measured in the partly plowed field are damp. The lilies in the pond are reflected in its placid depths until the bottom looks like a huge bowl covered with lilies. The filly flings its heels at the oaken bars. Networks of vines clustering over the door bear brilliant red berries—they are like coral in the shadow—in the sunlight they glint like fire as the sun's rays kiss the dew. What melody is it that rises clear and sweet above the fluting of the bluebird and the robin? The lark cleaves the clear sky with its song. A face—the face I last looked at through a mist of tears, as I bade her adieu the afternoon I left home for college—her face is at the open door.

By charms like thine, which all my soul have won,
Who might not—ah, who would not be undone?

And now she is mine. Dear girl! Her love is like God's sunlight. It illuminates, beautifies all the world to me.

Ah! still dreaming! I thought I heard her voice. 'Twas only the wind sighing through the trees; a leaf blowing against

March April May

Are the best months in which to purify your blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best blood purifier.

At no other season does the human system so much need the aid of a reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla, as now. The impoverished condition of the blood, the weakening effects of the long, cold winter, the lost appetite, and that tired feeling, all make a good spring medicine absolutely necessary. Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiarly adapted for this purpose, and increases in popularity every year. It is the ideal spring medicine.

"I must say Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine I ever used. Last spring I had no appetite, and the least work I did fatigued me ever so much. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and soon felt that I could do as much in a day as I had formerly done in a week. My appetite is voracious." MRS. M. V. BAYARD, Atlantic City, N. J.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to buy any other.

Were all wise enough to heed this advice in season, a world of suffering would be avoided. If you suffer from impure blood, scrofula, dyspepsia, biliousness, headache, take

Canadian "Comity."

The Canadian government has refused J. H. Allen of New York, owner of the American ship Bridgewater, compensation for the unjust seizure and detention of his vessel by the customs collector at Shelburne, Nova Scotia. The Bridgewater put into that port in distress, and had to discharge her cargo to make repairs. The collector at Shelburne demanded a duty of twenty-five per cent on the landed cargo, which the captain refused to pay, and appealed to the minister of customs, who ordered the collector to release the vessel; the collector notified the captain that he could take his vessel on the payment of costs, which the captain refused to pay, saying it was a gross outrage on a vessel in distress. Finally, after being detained eighty days, the ship was unconditionally released. Mr. Allen has prepared a memorial to Secretary Bayard, to whom he will submit his case, and endeavor to obtain redress through diplomatic channels. Leading Canadian papers condemn the government's treatment of the distressed ship, as outrageous. The Canadian minister of justice does not attempt to justify the seizure, but says Allen has no recourse at law.

There will be no trouble about this affair. Secretary Bayard, representing Freetrader Cleveland, will send to the Canadian authorities the "regrets" of the United States that a mere Yankee shipmaster should dare to dispute the outrageous and illegal demands of a pretty Bluenose official against an American vessel in distress, promise that nothing of the kind shall occur again, and things will be fixed up all right.

Life of Walter Harriman, with selections from his speeches and writings; by Amos Hadley. Boston: Houghton, Mifflin & Co.; pp. 385; price $2.50. Portsmouth: sold by M. Goodrich.

Gov. Harriman was a war democrat. Reared in the democratic party of New Hampshire, he followed the fortunes of the party, accepted its offices, lent it his eloquence and the force of his example until the rebellion caused him to take a different view of political issues from that of his former associates. He was independent in thought and action, but withal a good democrat, and had been of great service to his party. President Pierce told him he had as good a reputation as a public speaker as any man in the state. The democrats never forgave their former associate for cutting loose from the party's restraints and turning his guns upon their friends in the south. Mr. Hadley, the biographer, was for many years connected with the press in this state, and resided at Concord, which place as far as the battle of politics of New Hampshire related, may have been regarded as the "seat of war." The book gives the genealogy of Harriman, tells of his youth, his entering the ministry, his early political and mercantile life, his public positions, his oratory upon the political stump, and his canvass for the governorship, as well as his war record. Liberal extracts are given from his speeches, and his editorial writings in the Manchester Union in the early part of the war.

Gov. Harriman was a natural orator. He had the ability to say the proper thing to arouse his auditors, and to retain them in sympathy with his discourses. He was never above the comprehension of his hearers, but seemed to hold the listeners throughout his entire speech. He was earnest, and at times eloquent. He had a clear, ringing voice, a commanding presence, and delivered his speeches as if he enjoyed the occasions as much as the most enthusiastic listener, and always in a cheerful, hopeful strain, even the darkest hours of the rebellion. In Mr. Hadley has given a fair and truthful sketch of the political situation in New Hampshire during the rebellion. He has done justice to his subject. He has appreciated the patriotism, integrity and value of the deceased governor, and has told us much that is interesting to know of the New Hampshire born man in his career from school-boy to governor—one of those men such as his subject delighted to picture, in the lines of Sir William Jones, with which those who have frequently listened to the General have heard him round out his speech—

"Who their duties know,
But know their rights, and knowing, dare maintain."

Gov. Harriman was known as an eloquent political orator, not only throughout his native state, but in very many others in which he had been invited to make political addresses in stirring campaigns. As an orator at the hustings, he had no equal in his time in our state. He was self-possessed, not easily thrown out of gear by interruptions, but ready with repartee which effectually silenced the most blatent intruder upon the proprieties of the occasion.

The work is a valuable addition to the political history of our state, and will we predict be largely read by our people. The boys in blue will appreciate the old ring which made his voice such a welcome sound, whether in the din of battle or at the camp-fires after peace had succeeded the restoration of the Union to its integrity.

PERSONAL.

The Misses Foster of Richards avenue leave the city this forenoon for an extended tour in Europe.

Mrs. William J. Mendum and daughter, of Winchester, Mass., arrived in this city on Monday afternoon, accompanied by Mrs. Mendum's sister, Miss Nellie M. Freeman, who has been visiting Mrs. Mendum for several weeks.

Mr. George A. Perkins and wife, who have been in Florida for several months, arrived home on Wednesday of last week. Mr. Perkins we understand proposes to sell his business here, and settle permanently in Florida.

A citizen of Rye, who is possessed of more cash than conscence, sold a poor, worn out horse to a tribe of Gypsies last Saturday for a trifle, instead of giving the faithful old servitor a merciful death and decent burial on the land his toil had enriched. The animal was so infirm from old age and disease that even the Gypsies were afraid to drive the dilapidated beast through town, when they folded their tents and silently stole away into Kittery Monday morning, abandoning the feeble old creature to his fate. Late in the afternoon a benevolent lady reported the case to Dr. May, secretary of the N. H. S. P. C. A., and an agent visited the gravel pit on Lafayette road afterwards, where the suffering animal was found lying in a pool of water and exposed to the storm. A pistol shot soon ended a career of misery.

King & Franklin's new Colossal Shows and Wild West will exhibit in Yeaton's field, Richards avenue, on Thursday, June 14th, giving performances afternoon and evening; admission will be twenty-five cents.

Superintendent C. S. Mellen of the Boston & Lowell railroad has resigned. He will take an important position on a western line, it is said.

The Boston & Maine railroad is to furnish the rails for the proposed Bartlett & Albany road in this state, under an agreement by the terms of which the new road is to pay for the same at the end of fifteen years.

Jack and Jill each took a pill,

Smiles will supersede many frowns, and many discomforts will be unknown, when Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets entirely supersede, as they bid fair to do, the large and less efficient pill of our forefathers. Every day they gain new laurels! Most popular when most ills abound!

To Save Life

Frequently requires prompt action. An hour's delay waiting for the doctor may be attended with serious consequences, especially in cases of Croup, Pneumonia, and other throat and lung troubles. Hence, no family should be without a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has proved itself, in thousands of cases, the best Emergency Medicine ever discovered. It gives prompt relief and prepares the way for a thorough cure, which is certain to be effected by its continued use.

S. H. Latimer, M. D., Mt. Vernon, Ga., says: "I have found Ayer's Cherry Pectoral a perfect cure for Croup in all cases. I have known the worst cases relieved in a very short time by its use; and I advise all families to use it in sudden emergencies, for coughs, croup, &c."

A. J. Eidson, M. D., Middletown, Tenn., says: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral with the best effect in my practice. This wonderful preparation once saved my life. I had a consistent cough, night sweats, was greatly reduced in flesh, and given up by my physician. One bottle and a half of the Pectoral cured me."

"I cannot say enough in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral," writes E. Braxton, of Palestine, Texas, "believing as I do that, but for its use, I should long since have died."

OFFICIAL NOTICE!

— OF —

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co.

— FROM THE —

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we respectfully request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

30,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Silver-ware, Window Shades, Drapery, Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Stoves and Ranges, Feathers, Feather Pillows, Spreads, Blankers, Chamber Sets, Parlor Suits, Carpets, Lounges, Easy Chairs, Mattresses, Springs,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the

Furniture, Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET, PARLOR SUIT, Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. There are items worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time, We have invariably paid out the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We wish to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

KITCHEN RANGE, or a CHAMBER SET, or PARLOR SUIT, or CARPETS, WINDOW SHADES, DRAPERY CURTAINS,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of these Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell these same and shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. The notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store, Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

Respectfully, the Public's Ob't Servants,

THE ATKINSON HOUSE FURNISHING CO.,

Headquarters Cor. Pearl and Middle Streets, Portland, and Branches at Auburn, Rockland, Bangor and Biddeford, also Bar Harbor for a short time.

BRUTAL MURDER.

Two young men named Hammond and Stimson, living on Freeman's point, when coming to their work in this city about 6:30 o'clock Monday morning over the Dover railroad track, saw on the rocky beach at Noble's Island, near the old Rice blacksmith shop, the dead body of a man, evidently murdered.

They at once notified the police, and the body, which was only a few feet from high water mark, was guarded by the officers until the coroner arrived and directed its removal. The victim was recognized as Henry T. Whitehouse of No. 9 Union street, a young man about twenty-two years old, employed by the Electric Light Co. He had passed Sunday evening in the company of Miss Cora Fernald of Kittery, to whom he was engaged to be married, and started for this city at about 11:30 o'clock, so as to reach his work at midnight; and from that time he was not seen alive, so far as is known, except by his murderer.

From appearances he was attacked at the corner of the blacksmith shop, struck down with a hammer or other weapon, and afterward repeatedly struck on the head with the same or some other weapon. The cowardly assassin then dragged the body down the bank to near the water's edge, and there cut the throat to the bone, apparently endeavoring to cut the head off, then pushing the body overboard. The face, and the top and left side of the head, were shockingly cut and disfigured.

A hammer, such as is used at electric light stations, was found some sixty feet out from the shore, opposite the body, and was recognized as belonging to James Palmer, formerly an engineer in the employ of the Electric Light Co., who was discharged for stealing tools, and who it was said had made threats against Whitehouse for exposing him. Palmer was arrested during the forenoon at the shoe factory by Sheriff Coffin, and locked up; he showed no signs of excitement or surprise when arrested, but was as cool and collected as though merely called to dinner. The question of his guilt or innocence is not for us to determine, but public opinion is strongly against him.

Coroner Whittier summoned Jerome C. Butler, John Knowlton and C. Dwight Hanscom as a jury, and their first session was held at four o'clock Monday afternoon.

The coroner and Dr. A. B. Sherburne made a post-mortem examination of the body in the forenoon, and the skull was found to be fractured from the right temple across the temporal bone to the back of the head, a distance of five inches; a similar fracture existed upon the opposite side; and upon the back, a portion of the bone had been forced in upon the brain, and was easily removed with the fingers. The assassin evidently struck with all his force, and with venomously murderous intent.

Whitehouse, the murdered man, is spoken of in the highest terms by all who knew him; he was a son of Charles E. Whitehouse, mason, of Union street, a most worthy man and citizen. Of Palmer, the alleged murderer, we have only been able to learn that he was discharged from the service of the Electric Light Co. on an apparently well supported charge that he was a thief.

THE HORSE RAILROAD.

Mr. Editor: I see by the public notice given, that it is proposed to run the racks of the horse railroad which it is intended to build between the railroad station and the Hotel Wentworth at Newcastle, through Vaughan street. The route as specified is "through Deer, Vaughan, Congress and Islington streets," etc., down to the Rye line on Sagamore road. What need is there of running the tracks through Vaughan street? Why not make the lay-out of the line read "through Deer, Bridge, Islington" and other streets, instead of as in the published notice? Vaughan street is and for many years has been—ever since the establishing of the railroads—too narrow for the amount of traffic passing through it; and to cut up and further blockade such a narrow and crowded thoroughfare, needlessly, with the tracks of a horse railroad, will be worse than a crime—it will be a blunder on the part of those who forward and sanction it. By the route I have specified, through Deer and Bridge streets to Islington, several minutes will be saved on the trip between the depot and the Wentworth, and the great amount of heavy teaming which daily passes through Vaughan street will be left with whatever advantages that narrow and contracted thoroughfare now affords. VAUGHAN STREET.

NOTICE TO WAR VETERANS.

HEADQUARTERS STORER POST, No. 1,
DEP'T NEW HAMPSHIRE, G. A. R.
PORTSMOUTH, N. H., May 24th.

In accordance with a vote of Storer Post, all veterans, survivors of the late war, residing in this vicinity, are cordially invited to join with this Post in the observation of Memorial day, Wednesday, May 30th. Post assembles in G. A. R. hall, No. 5 Daniel street, at one o'clock P. M. sharp.

ABEL JACKSON, Comdr.
M. M. COLLIS, Adj't.

APPEAL FOR FLOWERS.

The Flower Committe of Storer Post desire to call the attention of our citizens to the probable limited supply of flowers for Memorial day, and earnestly request that all who can, will contribute whatever they can spare. Our Nation's Dead are multiplying exceedingly fast; the demand for flowers is increasing each year. Please send your contributions to the Court House on Tuesday afternoon, or early Wednesday morning.

THOMAS TREDICK, JR., Chairman.

MEMORIAL DAY.

The following is the programme of exercises for Memorial day, May 30th:

ROUTE OF PROCESSION.

Line will be formed at two P. M.; procession will move at 2:15. The different organizations taking part will report to the chief marshal on Market square at 1:30 o'clock, when the procession will be formed on Congress street, right resting on Pleasant street. It will move through Pleasant, State and Middle streets and Richards avenue to the South cemetery, where the formation for the ceremonies will be in column, en masse, by divisions, at the head of the pond.

EXERCISES AT THE CEMETERY.

Selection by the band.
Prayer by the post chaplain.
Reading of general orders by the adjutant.
Selection by the band.
Ritual of the G. A. R.
Decoration of graves.
Recall.
Decoration of Soldiers' Memorial.
Closing hymn by band and audience.
Volley of musketry by marines.

Reform on main avenue, and return through South, Pleasant, Court, Middle and Congress streets to Market square, when a dress parade will be held by the marine corps. Immediately thereafter the parade will be dismissed.

EVENING EXERCISES, MUSIC HALL.

Fantasia, by the band.
Remarks by President G. E. Hodgdon.
Prayer by Rev. O. S. Baketei.
Singing by male quartette.
Reading, "Dandy Fifth," Mrs. Sarah Neal Harris.
Singing, "Gone to their rest," Miss Nellie Salome Thomas.
Oration, Hon. Charles H. Burns of Nashua.
Selection by band.
Singing, "Angel of Peace," by chorus of school children under directions of Mr. G. D. Whittier.
Reading, "The old sergeant," Wetherell.
Song, Miss Thomas.
Selection, male quartette.
Reading, Mrs. Harris.
Song, "Anchored," Wetherell.
Singing, "Star spangled banner," solo by Miss Thomas, chorus by quartette and audience.

The committee on evening exercises have endeavored to place before the public as good an entertainment as could be had, and their success is beyond a doubt. Miss Thomas as a vocalist always charms and thrills her hearers; the high order of Mrs. Harris as a reader, all are conversant with, and, together with the other talent, insures a first-class concert. In consequence of the expense to which the committee are put in procuring the talent, they have found it necessary to make the admittance twenty-five, fifteen, and ten cents. Tickets now on sale at Goodrich's store.

Widows of soldiers and sailors of the rebellion who have not been supplied with tickets for the exercises in Music hall Memorial evening, can secure them by applying to M. M. Collis at his store on Market street.

Col. Simon R. Marston has been selected marshal of the day, with Col. T. E. O. Marvin as chief of staff, and John S. Perry, Joseph W. Randall, Herman W. Oxford, W. W. McIntire and Benj. Rowe as aids.

THE RAILROAD-CROSSING GATES.

Editor of Chronicle: I see that a hearing was had last week in the common council room, before the late board of county commissioners, on the question of ordering gates to be established at the Creek street crossing of the Concord & Portsmouth railroad. The order to erect gates there was passed by the city government, if my memory serves me fair, in 1886; the railroad appealed, and now, after two years, a "hearing" is had on the order and appeal—with what result?

The city solicitor, who is also solicitor of Rockingham county, and I believe the youngest man who ever held either position, was all ready with the city's case. [This young fellow, Mr. Editor, was not my choice for either place named. I voted against his party when it carried the city election which made his appointment as city solicitor possible, and I voted against him directly when he was the candidate of his party for county solicitor; but if he keeps on doing the duties of his dual positions as he has done, I fear that at the next election I may carry a "scratched ticket" for county solicitor, unless the republican candidate is a man of superlative qualifications.] But the railroad, after two years of time in which to prepare, was not ready; one of the railroad lawyers was "unavoidably absent," and in consequence a postponement was had, against the remonstrance of the city solicitor, for something over a couple of months, when another postponement will probably take place, if the railroad requests it.

But this communication is not intended as a "boom" for the youthful but energetic "Sam." What I wish to illustrate, and object to, is the folly of the city in attempting to force a railroad to do anything beyond what the management pleases to do of its own accord. Years ago, how many I do not remember, it was so long ago, the city government after due deliberation ordered the Eastern railroad to erect and maintain gates at the Green street crossing of that road. Whether the order was a judicious and proper one, or not, has nothing to do with the case; the order was made. The railroad combatted it, and it was carried to the law term of the supreme court, sent down to the trial term, and carried up to the law term on new questions, year after year, all the time, of course, at much expense to the city. Finally, after most of the persons who remembered the initiation of the affair had probably passed to their reward, the law term sent down to the lower court a rescript—I believe that is what they call it—directing the lower court to issue a mandamus to the county commissioners to locate the gates asked for, on application in court by the city; but that application was never made. After having prosecuted the question to a final victory, at a cost to the tax payers of many hundreds of dollars, and when all that remained for the city to do was to make a formal request that the court issue its mandamus, the request was not forthcoming, and the case was stricken from the docket on application of the railroad's counsel, because after notice of several days, the city did not appear!

Viewing the present case in the light of the former one, of what earthly use is it for the city to keep on with it? The gates will not be put up, no matter what the county commissioners may decide, and the whole business will result only in a barren expenditure of money by the city.

ANGULAR.

BASE BALL.

The game between the Nashua and Portsmouth clubs on the South street grounds, Monday afternoon, was interrupted by the rain. Three innings only were played, neither side scoring a run, and only one base hit being made, and that one by Nashua.

Rev. James Lade, pastor of the Congregational church in Eliot, tendered his resignation on Sunday last.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

Distress After Eating

Sick Headache

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." "There is no gain so certain as saving what you have." Why then destroy valuable garments by using common and impure soaps upon them? Prof. Genth, of the University of Pennsylvania, says: "I find the Ivory to be a very superior soap. It "gives a fine lather, and it can safely be used upon any fabric."

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

SIBERIA.

Its Secrets Revealed—George Kennan's Wonderful Journey.

MOST interesting contribution to secret history will be the illustrated papers on "Siberia and the Exile System," by George Kennan, which begin in the May Century magazine. They will embody the results of what is believed to be the first successful attempt by a competent investigator to make a thorough study of the Russian exile system. Before undertaking his arduous journey of 11,000 miles, in the interest of The Century, Mr. Kennan, author of Tent Life in Siberia, etc., had spent four years in Russia and Siberia, was thoroughly conversant with the people and the language, and had reached the conclusion that the Russian Government had been misrepresented, and that the exile system of Siberia was not so terrible as was supposed. Knowing that Mr. Kennan held these views, the Russian Government gave him every facility for a thorough of Siberia—the most thorough that had ever been made by a traveler. Armed with letters from the Russian Minister of the Interior and other high officials, Mr. Kennan went everywhere, inspecting mines and prisons, convict barges and hospitals, and traveling with chained exiles along the great Siberian road. He made the intimate personal acquaintance of more than three hundred exiled "liberals" and Nihilists, many of whom wrote out their histories for his use. The actual facts, as revealed by this searching investigation, were far removed from Mr. Kennan's preconceived ideas, as this thrilling narrative of fifteen months' exploration and adventure will show.

As is already known, the publication of Mr. Kennan's preliminary papers has resulted in his being placed by the Russian Government, and copies of The Century containing them have the objectionable article torn out by the custom officials before being allowed to enter the Czar's dominions.

"I expected, of course," says Mr. Kennan, in a recent interview, "to be put on the Russian black list. I am only thankful that I succeeded in crossing the frontier with all my material and papers coming this way. I became satisfied before I got half through Siberia that I should never be permitted to go there again, and that after the publication of my papers no other foreigner would be allowed to make investigations there, and I lost no possible opportunity to secure accuracy and thoroughness. I brought back more than fifty pounds of notes, papers and original documents, many of the latter from secret Government archives, besides five or six hundred foolscap pages of manuscript, prepared for me by political exiles in all parts of Siberia, and covering the most noteworthy episodes of their lives. I can regard the black listing, therefore, with a certain degree of complacency. The stable-door is locked, but the horse has been stolen—and I've got him."

BOARDING A CONVICT BARGE.

Mr. G. A. Frost, artist and photographer, accompanied Mr. Kennan, and it is expected that the results of his work will form the most interesting series of pictures of Russian and Siberian life and scenery ever made.

THE LATEST DISCOVERY.
A Prominent Physician Reveals Some New and Startling Secrets.

"Do you know," said Dr. Bodfish, of Boston, at the club, one evening recently, "what the starting point of most physical troubles is?"

"No, indeed," replied a circle of anxious enquirers, as they crowded about the doctor.

"Tea and coffee," answered the eminent physician.

There was a look of horror on the faces of his listeners. The doctor continued:

"Men, and women even more, drink tea and coffee constantly, and wonder why they feel dull and stupid, have headaches, a bad taste in the mouth, pains in the limbs and about the body and irregularity of the secretions. Nine cases out of ten these things are caused by too free a use of tea and coffee. These drinks clog the system, weaken the tissues and destroy the most important organs. Few men or women who drink tea and coffee regularly have clear urine, but on the contrary, sediment, scum and brick dust, all of which invariably mean coming disease or death."

"But what are we to do, Doctor? Shall we give up tea and coffee altogether?"

"No. I do not advise that, but regulate it. Keep the kidneys clear and active. There is nothing in the world so good for this as the well known and popular Hunt's Remedy. Any one who uses this medicine regularly can drink tea and coffee moderately without fear. The reason is that Hunt's Remedy flushes or washes out the kidneys, and keeps them free and healthy. Any number of prominent men and women can confirm what I say, among the number scores of doctors and ministers, Gen. Butler, Gen. Monroe and Miss Alcott."

It was plain that the warning and advice of the doctor had made a deep impression on his listeners, as it also should upon the millions of men and women who are shortening their lives by the use of these drinks.

Books, Magazines, Etc.

Before the Curfew, and other poems, chiefly occasional, by Oliver Wendell Holmes. Boston: Houghton, Mifflin & Co.; price $1.00. Portsmouth, sold by M. Goodrich.

This little volume of 110 pages contains poems, most of them read by the gifted poet on occasions which happily evoked the muse, and were enjoyed by gratified listeners to the fullest extent. They will now be read, possibly without the zest of appreciating listeners, but with the knowledge that Dr. Holmes never prints what is not well worth reading. To have heard some of these beautiful lines read by the writer on festive occasions was of course one of those rare treats which befalls the Bostonian. But all of us cannot be permitted to live in the modern Athens, and we outside her walls, to whom has not been vouchsafed the honor of a seat at the festival where many of these lines had their inspired birth, must be content to peruse the volume and enjoy by our own firesides the many excellent lines between its attractive covers.

We have also received from Messrs. Houghton, Mifflin & Co. the following:

"The Argonauts of North Liberty," by Bret Harte. Price $1.00.

"John Ward, Preacher," by Margaret Deland. Price $1.50.

"Tenting at Stony Beach," by Maria Louise Pool. Price $1.25.

These books are on sale at Mercer Goodrich's bookstore.

Salvation Oil, the greatest pain-cure on earth, is compounded of the best and purest drugs known to medical science. It is guaranteed to contain nothing of a mineral or poisonous character. Price twenty-five cents a bottle.

Two prominent citizens of Pittsburg, Pa., were killed while driving over a railroad crossing May 24th.

The Postmaster,

Winchester, Mass., says: I am personally acquainted with Mr. and Mrs. Carleton, and was astonished at the remarkable effects of your Sulphur Bitters in curing their son, and its large sale is undoubtedly due to the fact that it is an honest medicine. I know of many others who have been cured by its use, and I do not think too much can be said in its praise.—Yours truly, Geo. P. Brown, P. M.

Reuben Drake and his wife, and two grandchildren, were found murdered in their new home at Viola, Richmond county, Wisconsin.

In chronic diseases, medicines should be restoring, and not debilitating, in their action. The wonderful strengthening and curative effects, realized from the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, sustain the reputation of this remedy as the most popular blood purifier.

Germany and Austria are negotiating with each other for the adoption of common customs reprisals against Russia.

Malarial poisons contain the germs of dangerous diseases. If these poisons accumulate in the system, typhoid, bilious, intermittent or chill fever in sure to follow. Ayer's Ague Cure is a warranted specific for malaria.

The new commander of the British forces in Canada, Lieut. Gen. Sir John Ross, has come over from England.

The popular blood purifier, Hood's Sarsaparilla, is having a tremendous sale at this season. Nearly everybody takes it. Try it yourself.

The Philadelphia & Reading company has placed $26,000,000 four per cent. bonds with a strong syndicate.

Be wise to-day. 'Tis madness to neglect a cough or cold, however slight. Consumption may follow, and though Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry has frequently cured this much dreaded disease, it almost invariably cures the primary diseases of the throat, lungs and chest, where other remedies fail.

The village of Harlan, Roumania, has been burned. Four hundred families are homeless.

The universal use of them proves their merits. Hop Plasters, clean, safe, effective against pain.

Mr. Powderly has set out to stir up Congress on the postal telegraph subject.

They are the only reliable pain-killing plasters known—soothing and strengthening—the Hop Plasters.

John Swinton declines to be the socialistic candidate for the president.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam for coughs and colds does, is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles are 50c. and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption. tjc23

honestly admit that they can't cure Rheumatism and Neuralgia. Others say they can but—don't. Athlophoros says nothing but—cures. That's the secret of its success. Years of trial have proved it to be a quick, safe, sure cure.

Concord, N. H., Sept. 3, 1887

In my own family Athlophoros was used as a last resort, the user having suffered from rheumatism for years and having been treated for the disease by different physicians in this State and Massachusetts without even temporary relief. If You Fear An Attack

Of fever and ague, or billious remittent fever, don't resort to quinine, a cumulative and pernicious drug that has ruined many constitutions. Use without delay a remedy which the leading physicians of America have recommended for over thirty years past—Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Dumb ague and ague cake, no less than the actively febrile forms of malarial disease, are promptly relieved and ultimately uprooted by it. In the tropics, where febrile complaints of this sort are more virulent than in the temperate zone, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has established a reputation for preventive and remedial efficacy which competition has not been able to affect prejudicially—nay, has even served to strengthen. Disorders of the stomach and bowels, particularly those to which malaria gives rise, are speedily relieved by it. Kidney complaints, rheumatism, nervousness and sleeplessness, sick headache and constipation yield to it. Appetite and sleep are both improved by it.

Lieutenant D. D. V. Stewart, Surgeon W. H. Jones, Ensign Henry B. Ashmore and Sailmaker John A. Long, are ordered to the Pensacola.

For Over Three Months

My son suffered night and day with rheumatism; so much so that he was unable to feed himself. Your Sulphur Bitters cured him, and I am truly thankful to say that they are an honest medicine.—Mrs. W. H. Carleton, wife of Deacon Carleton, First Baptist church, Winchester Mass.

Lorenzo Mund, Providence, R. I., writes: "I contracted a severe cold which settled on my lungs, causing inflammation and distress. I had night sweats and fever for eight or nine days; lost my appetite; and friends said I was in consumption. After considerable doctoring, from which I received no benefit, I was advised to try Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam, and the result is my appetite is good, night sweats and fever have left me, am gaining in flesh and getting to feel like a new man."

Capt. F. H. Harrington, U. S. M. C., is ordered to command the marine guard on the flagship Richmond of the North Atlantic squadron

A Convention.

The herbs of the wildwood held a convention to determine which was the greatest benefactor to mankind. Each gave many cogent reasons why he should be considered as such. After the arguments were all concluded, Chief Justice Oak arose, and said, "While all have done well, he who removes evils from the blood, gives tone to the system, and by imparting health and vigor gives a freshness and zest to life must receive the palm," and upon the Mandrake he placed the white crown of blessing. It is from this herb that is prepared the Ingalls' Mandroke Compound, a safe and sure cure for dyspepsia, stomach and liver troubles, etc. Sold by druggists generally.

First Lieut. Samuel Mercer, U. S. M. C., is ordered to temporary duty at the Washington navy yard.

It is a Curious Fact

That the body is now more susceptible to benefit from medicine than at any other season. Hence the importance of taking Hood's Sarsaparilla now, when it will do you the most good. It is really wonderful for purifying and enriching the blood, creating an appetite, and giving a healthy tone to the whole system. Be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla, which is peculiar to itself.

Passed Assistant Engineer C. J. Habighurst is ordered to assume duty as inspector of machinery of the dynamite gunboat Vesuvius at Philadelphia.

I have been afflicted with catarrh for twenty years. It became chronic and there was a constant dropping of mucous matter. It extended to my throat, causing hoarseness and great difficulty in speaking, indeed for years I was not able to speak more than thirty minutes, and often this with great difficulty. I also, to a great extent, lost the sense of hearing in the left ear, and of taste. By the use of Ely's Cream Balm all droppings of mucous has ceased and my voice and hearing has greatly improved.—Jas. W. Davidson, attorney at law, Monmouth, Ill.

An Ear for Music.

A fine ear for music is no rarity, yet peculiarities are occasionally noticed that attract attention. It is said that expert musical conductors can tell which one of thirty or forty instruments should come in at given points in orchestral work, or in minute technicalities who is wrong. Ability to name a keynote is also sometimes noticed; that is, some people on hearing a chord upon piano or organ, can tell without seeing the instrument or player, what key has been struck, or what is the signature of a chord or concerted piece. This is quite rare, but a more peculiar faculty is sometimes exhibited. Some time ago two people were walking near a railroad crossing, in the evening. The man had at one time been a switchman on the railroad. His companion said as a train was heard approaching:

"Is that the Chicago express?"

"No," he answered, "that's a wildcat, with engine 236."

"How do you know?"

"I know by the sound of her bell."

His companion was skeptical, so he said:

"Now, you stand here till that train comes in sight, and see if I'm not right."

And sure enough a minute later a light engine, No. 236, passed under the electric light at the crossing, tolling her bell meanwhile.

"I learned to do that when I was switching nights," the man explained. "I had thirty trains to let into the train house between 7 p. m. and morning. There were nine tracks for them to go in on, and I learned to know which was switch—with a smile—by the tone of their bells."

Such a faculty is a rare one, and cannot be acquired where it does not exist, but can be greatly cultivated by its fortunate possessor.—Springfield Union.

Poison in Respired Air.

Messrs. Brown-Sequard and D'Arsonval have communicated the results of some interesting physiological experiments, which tend to show that an organic substance of a poisonous character is contained in the air expired by both human beings and animals. The object of the experimentalists was to prove that expired air participates largely in the production of pulmonary tuberculosis. They state that air to which 1 per cent. of carbonic acid has been added is by no means so injurious as expired air containing the same amount of that gas, and that the ammonia always present in expired air will not account for the symptoms produced by inhaling the latter.

The injection into the veins of animals of a liquid obtained by passing the expired air either of human beings or dogs through water was followed invariably by certain symptoms, including slightly dilated pupil, a marked slowing of respiratory movements, a considerable paralytic weakness, especially of the hinder limbs, and a rapid lowering of the temperature. Although the heart is not much affected at first, after three or four days it acquires a morbid activity. Larger injections of the liquid give rise to excessive contraction of the pupil, increased paralytic weakness and a choleriform diarrhœa. The authors of the paper believe that it is to this poisonous principle, of which the exact nature is as yet undetermined, that the dangerous character of expired air is due. The liquid used in the above experiments had neither an acid nor an alkaline reaction, so that the principle would appear to be neutral in character.—Scientific American.

Proper Way to Drink Milk.

"What did you drink?" asked the doctor.

"Nothing that could have made me sick, I am sure," replied the patient. "Only a glass of milk."

"Did you drink it quickly?"

"No quicker than usual."

"I thought so. Now let me give you a word of advice. Many persons complain that they cannot drink milk without being 'distressed by it.' The most common reason why milk is not well borne is due to the fact that people generally drink it too quickly. If a glass of it is swallowed hastily it enters the stomach and then forms in one solid, curdled mass, difficult of digestion. If, on the other hand, the same quantity is sipped, and three minutes, at least, is occupied in drinking it, then, on reaching the stomach, it is so divided that when coagulated, as it must always be by the gastric juice while digestion is going on, instead of being in one hard, condensed mass, upon the outside of which only the digestive fluids can act, it is more in the form of a sponge, and in and out of the entire bulk the gastric juice can freely play and perform its function. Milk may be rendered more digestible, and, for many, of a more agreeable taste, if prepared by slowly adding a few drops of dilute hydrochloric acid to it, drop by drop, while stirring it at the same time. By this means the curd is broken up, and it is in a more favorable state to be acted upon by the digestive fluids. You follow my advice and you will have no more attacks of sickness such as the one you are troubled with today. Two dollars, please. Good day."—New York Mail and Express.

A Mythical Snake.

The glass snake is a widely believed in myth. Even well educated people I have found to implicitly accept the stories told of being fractured into innumerable pieces and reuniting itself again little the worse of the experience. It was my good fortune one evening to see a fully accredited "glass" or "joint" snake, certified to by a white man and a negro. We were walking on a tramway one evening in the summer, when I espied a snake, about fifteen inches in length, in the dust of the road. I carried a small gum switch, with which I struck it a smart blow, when it broke in three pieces.

The snake was very prettily marked, and the forward half proportionately large for a snake of its length. Seeing it was about to wriggle away, I struck it again, disabling it, and then examined the section carefully, but without finding any indications that the fracture was different from that which would follow a hard blow in the case of any small snake. This specimen, and several others which I afterward killed by breaking, did not reunite the several parts.—Country Gentleman.

The Butcher Bird.

Of all the birds of Florida there is one that will afford an idler lots of amusement if he will spend an occasional hour watching closely. It is the shrike or butcher bird. A few days ago I was in an orange grove a few rods from the house, where an old negro, with the assistance of a mule, was plowing and a butcher bird was flying from tree to tree, following up the newly plowed furrow, looking for insects. Every few minutes he would go to pick up a beetle or insect, and for some time he simply swallowed his victim.

After a little he seemed to have enough to eat, and just then a little flock of larks were seen running along in the newly turned furrow, at times almost touching the old negro's heels. Now and then they would come across an insect too large for them to easily manage, and then would begin a little scuffle. Then the butcher bird would swoop down in the center of the little flock, snatch up the insect and fly off with it before the larks knew what had happened. The butcher bird had eaten all he wanted, and so, with the beetle in his beak, he flew to the nearest orange tree, and, selecting a long, sharp thorn, he impaled the insect upon it.

I watched this bird put at least ten insects on different thorns. During an hour, besides numerous large insects, the butcher bird captured two snakes, the largest of which was two feet long and very lively. These snakes, although they squirmed and twisted, were taken with difficulty to an orange tree and, after a good bit of hard tugging, they were left with a thorn through their bodies. When the butcher bird is not looking for food or for victims to stick on thorns, he is generally looking for other birds for the purpose of fighting them, and so he keeps busy from daylight till dark.—The Naturalist.

Few Cook Stoves in Manitoba.

In the northern section of Manitoba, which is remote from any railroad, one rarely sees a cook stove; the box stove and open fireplace reign supreme. Fancy cooking is therefore out of the question, but to compensate for that we get a bountiful supply of venison and small game and our unrivaled "Manitoba whitefish," which can be cooked by simple methods.

For bread, when we can obtain yeast, we cook it in a bake kettle (a shallow kettle with close fitting lid), which we place in the hot sand of the fireplace and cover with coals and allow it to remain for one hour, when the bread turns out beautifully browned, perfectly cooked, and as light as a feather. But in winter the cold is so intense that it is a hard matter to prevent the sponge from getting chilled or frozen when rising over night. Some abandon yeast bread for bannocks or gilettes, the "half breed" bread, made of flour, salt and warm water, with generally a little grease added, and this makes a good, wholesome, palatable bread, especially good for traveling with, as it is easy to thaw at the camp fire and very satisfying. The method of making it is as follows: Use warm water, in which dissolve grease, say a piece the size of a walnut to one pound of flour; knead thoroughly, adding flour until the sponge is fairly dry, but not too dry; then roll out into cakes about half an inch thick and bake; if in an oven, not too quick a one; for an open fire we put the cake in a frying pan and turn until stiff, and then prop it up before the fire and turn regularly until cooked. For baking on top of a box stove, the cake must be rolled thinner and requires constant attention to prevent burning, and forcibly reminds one of the story of "King Alfred and the Cakes."

One of the difficulties we encounter in winter cooking is that everything gets frozen as solid as a rock and is very difficult to prepare, and takes much longer to cook in consequence.—Manitoba Cor. Detroit Free Press.

Secret of Crystallized Figs.

One of the cleverest mercantile dodges that has been played in this town in many a day is the new crystallized fig racket. Cheap, marvelously cheap, crystallized figs have recently invaded the fruit stores, the groceries, the street stands. The usual price for crystallized fruit is from 70c. to 80c. a pound. This new variety of figs sells at 20c.

When you try them they are not very delicate in flavor, but still they are not bad, and answer the purpose with people wanting something sweet very well, and they are having an immense sale because the combination of the words "crystallized figs" with "20c." was so remarkable it gave them a big "ad." The cleverness comes in in the fact that they are not crystallized figs at all.

A firm of confectioners got the idea from a girl in their employ, it is said, of running a cheap sort of fig jam or paste into molds roughly resembling a fig, coating them with sugar and calling them crystallized figs. The jam or paste is a good enough cheap confection, but they might have spent years and fortunes trying to get it on the market without achieving the success they have made now without the expenditure of a penny in advertising.—New York Graphic.

Resemblances in Hunchbacks.

I have practiced medicine and surgery for forty years, and I do not recall a disease or case of any particular kind that has not come under my observation, But one thing that I have made a sort of study in the way of close observation is the striking resemblance to each other of what is commonly called the hunchback. It does not take a close observer to see that they all look alike in the face, more so even than if they were full brothers. There is something strange about this resemblance, yet it is all due to that physical condition. About 99 out of 100 are so near alike that if the 100 were standing in a row, with their heads poked through slits in a sheet, you could not pick out your brother if you had one who was a hunchback. Few people would notice this remarkable fact, but if they do they will find how singularly true it is.—Physician in Globe-Democrat.

Counting our chickens before they are hatched would not be so bad did we first "candle" the eggs.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

March, April, May

Are the best months in which to purify your blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best blood purifier.

At no other season does the human system so much need the aid of a reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla, as now. The impoverished condition of the blood, the weakening effects of the long cold winter, the lost appetite, and that tired feeling, all make a good spring medicine absolutely necessary. Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiarly adapted for this purpose, and increases in popularity every year. It is the ideal spring medicine.

"I must say Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine I ever used. Last spring I had no appetite, and the least work I did fatigued me ever so much. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and soon felt that I could do as much in a day as I had formerly done in a week. My appetite is voracious." MRS. M. V. BAYARD, Atlantic City, N. J.

ELIOT ITEMS.

ELIOT, ME., May 28th.

Daniel Junkins died very suddenly on Thursday, May 17th. He had been sick for some time with dropsy, but got quite smart again, so that he went out around the buildings. His wife was taken sick soon after his recovery, and was on the mending hand. She said to Mr. Junkins "I wish I could have a few potatoes for dinner," to which he replied, "I will get you them." He went down cellar from the bulkhead outside, and was gone so long that Mrs. Junkins mistrusted something had happened, and going down cellar found Mr. Junkins lying dead on the cellar bottom. Mr. Junkins is greatly missed in his home; he had lived to quite an old age, sixty-eight years.

On Wednesday, May 16th, F. M. Dixon, photographer at South Berwick, was at Rosemary cottage, or the Little Wanderers' Home, near Eliot depot, took a photograph of the place, and is to furnish a number of pictures of it on the 31st of May, at the dedication. It is to be dedicated to the Little Wanderers of Boston; a company of fifty are expected on that occasion from Boston, and will be entertained at the home; there will be exercises in singing, declamations of young and older persons, etc. We hope that all who possibly can attend on that day will do so, and believe all will be well paid for so doing.

Edward H. Adams is at home from Kent's Hill, Me., for a short time, on account of ill health; we wish him a speedy recovery.

Mr. Maurice Goodwin, who has officiated in opening graves on the deaths of people since the year 1850, has reached the number of 69ff up to this date. Mr. Goodwin has the record of each death, the time of death, the person's name, place of residence, etc. This is a very large number for one man to have laid in the earth for the past thirty-eight years; and is not considering any other's experience besides his own.

Rev. W. F. Marshall went to Biddeford on Monday, May 21st, for his wife and son. We shall be pleased for them when they get settled; they have been making repairs on the parsonage.

G. Everett Hammond was thrown from his carriage on Saturday night in Portsmouth, and was taken up unconscious and very badly bruised, but fortunately no bones were broken. The horse was frightened by an engine standing in the coal yard at the Concord railroad wharf. Mr. Hammond is slowly improving.

The republicans of this town held their caucus on Saturday evening at the town house, for the purpose of electing delegates to attend the state convention to be held at Portland on June 12th, and to appoint a republican town committee. The following delegates and committee men were elected: Delegates, William Hill, Timothy Dame, George O. Athorne; town committee, William Hill, Timothy tiful mahogany bay, seven years old this present month, stands 15 1-2 hands high, weighs 1025 lbs., sired by William H. Allen, 223 1-4, by Volunteer, by Rysdyk's Hambletonian, dam Lady Emma, by One-eyed Hunter, the sire of the once famous mare Flora Temple. Hardscrabble has never been handled for speed, but is a resolute, up-headed driver, can show a '40 clip any day, and has left some very excellent colts.

The stallion "Delightful" is a golden sorrel, six years old in June, stands 15 hands high, weighs 980 lbs., a brother to Hardscrabble; was driven one year ago last fall by Mr. C. F. Pendergast of New Market, N. H, a quarter mile at a rate of 2:45; is a steady and level-headed horse, and is marked off for a trotter.

The bay gelding "Cleveland," by Hardscrabble, is a nice bay with black points, four years old this month, 15 1-2 hands high, weighs 1000 lbs., is a very handsomely built animal, and has been harnessed a few times, shows a clean, open gait, and no doubt will make a strong going and speedy business horse.

"St. George," by Hardscrabble, is a bright bay with black points, three years old in June, weighs 900 lbs., shows a nice, clean gait by the halter, and is marked for a great roadster, if not a trotting horse. These horses above-named are all clever in stable and harness; can be handled with safety by any one used to handling horses. For further information apply to Mrs. Ellen J. Clark, administratix of the estate of Samuel Clark, near Eliot depot. HARRY.

AFFAIRS IN KITTERY.

KITTERY POINT, ME., May 28th.

The season is unusually backward this year. The grass and trees are not nearlyas forward as usual. The cherry trees are not even yet in bloom. The native wild flower are numerous and beautiful as usual.

The season at the hotels opens in June. Hotel Parkfield has received improvements both inside and out. A carefully tended flower garden will be quite as novel as charming during the summer months, when hotel guests usually have to depend on the roadside garden or the garden spots around the cottage homes of the village for glimpses of floral beauty. Mr. and Mrs. Frisbee do all that can be done to make their place home-like.

Samuel Lewis, son of Luther and Melissa Lewis of Brave Boat Harbor, died Sunday after a lingering sickness.

Rev. L. W. Phillips of Rye preached at the Christian church yesterday. The altar was decorated with beautiful flowers from "God's garden," the wild-woods. Mr. Edwin Phillips of Raymond, N. H., is to settle with that church in June.

Mrs. Hodgdon, formerly Miss Ida Perry, spent Sunday with her parents. She is now a resident of South Berwick.

Planting is not yet over. The crops will be taken later this year than for several years past. AUNT MOLLY.

The democrats of the national house met in caucus on Saturday evening to consider proposed amendments to the Mills bill. Mr. Randall was not present. Several changes were made in the bill, a number of articles being removed from the free list.

The secretary of state has been informed by the United States consul at Port au Prince, Hayti, that fears are entertained of another revolutionary outbreak. The report was of such a character that it was deemed advisable to send a naval vessel to the island for the protection of American citizens.

Meetings were held in various places in Ireland last Sunday to protest against the papal rescript. John Dillon, at Kildare, denounced the bishops who support the papal rescript, and said the nationalist party was not afraid of any bishop's threats nor any mandate from the Vatican. William O'Brien addressed a meeting of 20,000 people at Limerick.

One man was killed and ten fatally injured by a stroke of lightning at Milenburg, La., May 28th. They were all in one tent.

In the senate on Tuesday afternoon Mr. Manderson of Nebraska presented a bill reviving the grade of general, to expire with the death of Lieutenant General Sheridan. It required unanimous consent, and it remained for a "Confederate brigadier," Berry of Arkansas, to object. The bill, therefore, was placed on the calendar.

McKinley, of Ohio, is mentioned as a not impossible "dark horse."

To Save Life

Frequently requires prompt action; hour's delay waiting for the doctor may be attended with serious consequences, especially in cases of Croup, Pneumonia, and other throat and lung troubles. Hence, no family should be without a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has proved itself, in thousands of cases, the best Emergency Medicine ever discovered. It gives prompt relief and prepares the way for a thorough cure, which is certain to be effected by its continued use.

S. H. Latimer, M. D., Mt. Vernon, Ga., says: "I have found Ayer's Cherry Pectoral a perfect cure for Croup in all cases. I have known the worst cases relieved in a very short time by its use; and I advise all families to use it in sudden emergencies, for coughs, croup, &c."

A. J. Eidson, M. D., Middletown, Tenn., says: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral with the best effect in my practice. This wonderful preparation once saved my life. I had a constant cough, night sweats, was greatly reduced in flesh, and given up by my physician. One bottle and a half of the Pectoral cured me."

"I cannot say enough in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral," writes E. Bragdon, of Palestine, Texas, "believing as I do that, but for its use, I should long since have died."

OFFICIAL NOTICE!

— OF —

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co.

— FROM THE —

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we respectfully request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

80,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Silver-ware, Window Shades, Drapery, Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Stoves and Ranges, Feathers, Feather Pillows, Spreads, Blankers, Chamber Sets, Parlor Suits, Carpets, Lounges, Easy Chairs, Mattresses, Springs,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the

Furniture, Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET, PARLOR SUIT, Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. There are items worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time, We have invariably paid out the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We wish to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

KITCHEN RANGE, or a CHAMBER SET, or PARLOR SUIT, or CARPETS, WINDOW SHADES, DRAPERY CURTAINS,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of these Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell the same and shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. This notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store, Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

Respectfully, the Public's Ob't Servants,

HARRY STUBBS, C. of. R.

DEATH OF DR. GODDARD.

Dr. William Goddard, who was the oldest living graduate of Harvard, died last Sunday at the Waverly house in Charlestown, Mass. He was born in this city April 22d, 1796, and fitted for college at one of Portsmouth's schools, and then entered Harvard, where he graduated in 1815. No member of the succeeding class, 1816, is alive, and but four graduates of 1817 survive, two of the latter being Hon. George Bancroft and Mr. Samuel E. Sewall. In 1820 Dr. Goddard received the degree of M. D. at the Harvard Medical school, and after that practised in various cities and towns of New England and New York. For a time there was considerable doubt as to who had the honor of being the senior alumnus of Harvard, but it was ascertained last year that Dr. Goddard was the graduate in question, and that he was also the oldest surviving graduate of the medical school. He was notified of this fact, and in answer wrote: "Your polite and kind letter of Oct. 15th, informing me that I am the oldest surviving graduate of Harvard college and medical school, is received. This I was somewhat surprised to learn. My brother, Rev. Warren Goddard of Boston, of children. My brother was born in September, 1800. My faculties, I think, are not much impaired, but this long confinement has so reduced my strength that I am now extremely weak and probably cannot continue a great while longer, for which continuance I am not anxious for my own sake, as I have no fear of death." Dr. Goddard leaves two children, a daughter, who resided with him, and a son, Dr. Charles W. Goddard of Boston.

His grandfather was John Goddard of Brookline, Mass., who constructed the fortifications at Dorchester Heights. His maternal grandfather was Rev. Samuel Langdon, D. D., who was president of Harvard college during the Revolutionary war, as well as chaplain of Washington's army while stationed at Cambridge. Dr. Goddard, having for some time previous laid aside his practice and devoted his time to attending medical lectures at Harvard university and at the Massachusetts general hospital, resumed practice in this city in 1838, and continued here for several years. He subsequently removed to Massachusetts, and of late years has resided in the Charlestown district.

THE WHITEHOUSE MURDER.

The inquest by Coroner Whittier and a jury as to the manner in which Henry T. Whitehouse came to his death was continued on Tuesday in the common council chamber. By order of County Solicitor Emery, all spectators were excluded, and witnesses only admitted. After a long forenoon session adjournment was taken to eight o'clock in the evening, when the taking of testimony was resumed, the inquest at about eleven o'clock being adjourned to nine o'clock Wednesday morning.

It has been developed that about eleven o'clock Sunday night Herman G. Spinney of South Eliot, on his way home from this city, was accosted near the Rice blacksmith shop on Noble's island by a man whom he did not know, who had on a Scotch cap and an ulster with the collar turned up so as to conceral his features, and who walked across Portsmouth bridge with him, and as far as Butler's crossing in Kittery, when he turned back toward Portsmouth. Shortly afterward, about 11:45 o'clock, two young men of Kittery, named Jackson and Kimball, while crossing Portsmouth bridge from this side, met the man described by Spinney, near the Portsmouth end of the bridge, and a few rods farther on met Whitehouse, who was walking rapidly, and with whom they exchanged greetings. None of the parties knew the man with the ulster, his face being concealed by the ulster. Mr. Spinney noticed that he kept his right hand in his coat pocket all the time, and that he spoke very low, but he thought nothing particular of it at the time. Young Whitehouse's hat has been found on Portsmouth bridge, which would indicate that the first assault was made there, and not by the blacksmith shop near where the body was found.

Sheriff Coffin and Asst. Marshal Hurley on Monday afternoon searched the house of Mrs. Thomas Rutter, mother of James Palmer, the suspected murderer, and found a pair of trowsers that were wet and muddy around the bottoms of the legs, and stained from the knees down with what appeared to be blood. In the evening Officer Hurley again went to the house, and found an ulster corresponding with the description of the one worn by the unknown man met on the bridge; the garment was wet, but on becoming dry was found to be spattered with blood, or what appeared to be blood, from top to bottom. The coat was placed on Palmer, Tuesday, in presence of Kimball and Jackson, and they were confident he was the man they met on the bridge. A cap similar to the one worn by the unknown man has been found at Palmer's home, and it also is stained. An expert will examine all the stains on the several garments, to decide if they are human blood. If Palmer is not a murderer of the worst sort, he is at present the victim of a most unfortunate chain of circumstances.

OBITUARY.

A despatch was received in this city on Monday announcing the death of Major John Parsons at Bay Port, Florida, on that day. Major Parsons was a native of Rye, and was a brother of Col. Thos. J. Parsons and Doctor Warren Parsons of that town. He went to Florida when a young man, and has resided there most of the time since, usually coming north every summer.

THE SAGAMORE ROAD WORK.

Mr. Editor: Last week my attention was called to a very sensible communication in the Chronicle from "Another Tax Payer," alluding to the Sagamore bridge or road improvement. In common with a number of other tax payers I signed a petition to have the road straightened, but feel safe in stating that not one of those who signed that petition would have done so had he supposed for one on in such an unusual manner. I rejoice at any improvement to Portsmouth, especially when it furnishes employment to our own citizens, but I do not approve of petitioning for a specific purpose, and then for one or two to carry out plans of their own without any sanction whatever.

The gentlemen representing the leaders of the democratic party do not manage their business as this work is managed, and I am satisfied that were they aware of the fact, that they would be the first ones to condemn this reckless expenditure. Without asking for bids and without competent supervision, a gigantic work is being carried on. I am told that lumber is purchased from $20 to $21 per thousand, when as good can be furnished for $14 to $15 per thousand; that piles are being bought at $9.25, which could be purchased for $6.00; in fact, that in many other ways money is extravagantly used. By what authority such an amount of money as "Another Tax Payer" claims will be expended ($25,000) I am at a loss to understand, but I certainly feel that the reckless manner in which the work is being done so far as the question of money is concerned should cause the tax payers to take some immediate action towards placing the work under such supervision as will at least insure satisfactory results.

Without hesitation I predict that some of the timber now used in that bridge will require to be replaced in less than two years, while proper care in its selection would have saved much money in the original cost and a still larger sum which will now be required for repairs, within almost a few months. Our city government should feel sufficient interest in the proper direction of the work, and by all means let us have it without delay.

PETITIONER.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Ralph L. Reinewald and daughter, of Salem, Mass., are visiting Mrs. Reinewald's parents, Mr. Josiah F. Adams and wife, of Washington street.

Cards are out for the wedding of Miss Nellie Stillings, formerly of this city, but now of Aspen, Colorado, to Mr. William H. Leffingwell of New York, on Saturday afternoon, June 2d, at one o'clock, in Christ church at Aspen.

The engagement is announced of Miss Alice C. Warde, daughter of the late Hon. David A. Warde of Concord, and Mr. Clarence H. Wilkins, travelling agent for the Granite State Fire Insurance Co. of this city.—Penny Post.

MARITINE NOTES.

The London Field discusses the deed of gift of the America's cup with uncomplimentary reference to the New York yacht club.

The U. S. S. Leyden sailed from the New York navy yard on Tuesday, with stores for the naval station at Newport, R. I., and for the Boston and Portsmouth yards.

A number of members of Washington Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, of this city, went to Exeter in a barge on Tuesday evening to visit the chapter there.

The densest fog of the season enveloped the city Tuesday evening.

A man who came here with an Uncle Tom's Cabin company recently, and left it here, cleared out from his boarding house Tuesday morning, taking a fellow boarder's overcoat and another one's umbrella, and departing for Boston on the early Pullman train.

In the democratic convention of the first congressional district of Maine, held at Portland on the 29th inst., William Emery of Alfred was nominated for Congress and Samuel L. Lord of Saco for elector; L. A. Stevens of Wells and D. W. True of Portland were chosen delegates to St. Louis.

We understand that M. C. Foye will not be able to move to his new store, No. 4 Market squre, until June 15th, as he is having extra store fittings put in.

Have you seen that lot of Challi Dress Goods at 10 cts. per yard? If not, go to Lewis E. Staples' dry goods store, No. 7 Market street.

Mr. Charles A Grant of the Sea Cottage, at Long beach, York, is having a four-seated buck-board built by the same parties who make the famous Bar Harbor buck-boards. It will be drawn by four horses, and will outrival anything seen at York this season. Mr. Grant has had his Concord coach repainted, to run between his house and the Long Beach station of the York Harbor & Beach railroad. Sea Cottage is being newly painted throughout, and fifteen new rooms have been added since last year.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

Distress After Eating

Sick Headache

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." Golden Medical Discovery cures Consumption (which is Scrofula of the Lungs), by its wonderful blood-purifying, invigorating, and nutritive properties. For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, Asthma, and kindred affections, it is a sovereign remedy. It promptly cures the severest Coughs.

For Torpid Liver, Biliousness, or "Liver Complaint," Dyspepsia, and Indigestion, it is unequalled superior. Sold by druggists.

"There is no gain so certain as saving what you have." Why then destroy valuable garments by using common and impure soaps upon them? Prof. Genth, of the University of Pennsylvania, says: "I find the Ivory to be a very superior soap. It "gives a fine lather, and it can safely be used upon any fabric."

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory'!" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS. The easiest organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of $22 TO $900.

In these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all GRAND & UPRIGHT, others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

SIBERIA.

Its Secrets Revealed—George Kennan's Wonderful Journey.

MOST interesting contribution to secret history will be the illustrated papers on "Siberia and the Exile System," by George Kennan, which begin in the May Century magazine. They will embody the results of what is believed to be the first successful attempt by a competent investigator to make a thorough study of the Russian exile system. Before undertaking his arduous journey of 15,000 miles, in the interest of The Century, Mr. Kennan, author of Tent Life in Siberia, etc., had spent four years in Russia and Siberia, was thoroughly conversant with the people and the language, and had reached the conclusion that the Russian Government had been misrepresented, and that the exile system of Siberia was not so terrible as was supposed. Knowing that Mr. Kennan held these views, the Russian Government gave him every facility for a thorough of Siberia—the most thorough that had ever been made by a traveler. Armed with letters from the Russian Minister of the Interior and other high officials, Mr. Kennan went everywhere, inspecting mines and prisons, convict barges and hospitals, and traveling with chained exiles along the great Siberian road. He made the intimate personal acquaintance of more than three hundred exiled "liberals" and Nihilists, many of whom wrote out their histories for his use. The actual facts, as revealed by this searching investigation, were far removed from Mr. Kennan's preconceived ideas, as this thrilling narrative of fifteen months' privation and adventure will show.

As is already known, the publication of Mr. Kennan's preliminary papers has resulted in his being placed by the Russian Government, and copies of The Century containing them have the objectionable article torn out by the custom officials before being allowed to enter the Czar's dominions.

"I expected, of course," says Mr. Kennan, in a recent interview, "to be put on the Russian black list. I am only thankful that I succeeded in crossing the frontier with all my material and papers coming this way. I became satisfied before I got half through Siberia that I should never be permitted to pass again, and that after the publication of my papers no other foreigner would be allowed to make investigations there, and I lost no possible opportunity to secure accuracy and thoroughness. I brought back more than fifty pounds of notes, papers and original documents, many of the latter from secret Government archives, besides five or six hundred foolscap pages of manuscript, prepared for me by political exiles in all parts of Siberia, and covering the most noteworthy episodes of their lives. I can regard the black listing, therefore, with a certain degree of complacency. The stable-door is locked, but the horse has been stolen—and I've got him."

BOARDING A CONVICT BARGE.

Mr. G. A. Frost, artist and photographer, accompanied Mr. Kennan, and it is expected that the results of his work will form the most interesting series of pictures of Russian and Siberian life and scenery ever made.

THE LATEST DISCOVERY.

A Prominent Physician Reveals Some New and Startling Secrets.

"Do you know," said Dr. Bedfish, of Boston, at the club, one evening recently, "what the starting point of most physical troubles is?"

"No, indeed," replied a circle of anxious acquaintances, as they crowded about the doctor.

"Tea and coffee," answered the eminent physician.

There was a look of horror on the faces of his listeners. The doctor continued:

"Men, and women even more, drink tea and coffee constantly, and wonder why they feel dull and stupid, have headaches, a bad taste in the mouth, pains in the limbs and about the body and irregularity of the secretions. Nine cases out of ten these things are caused by too free a use of tea and coffee. These drinks clog the system, weaken the tissues and destroy the most important organs. Few men or women who indulge in tea and coffee regularly have clear urine, but on the contrary, sediment, scum and brick dust, all of which invariably mean coming disease or death."

"But what are we to do, Doctor? Shall we give up tea and coffee altogether?"

"No. I do not advise that, but regulate it. Keep the kidneys clear and active. There is nothing in the world so good for this as the well known and popular Hunt's Remedy. Any one who finds this medicine regularly can drink tea and coffee moderately without fear. The reason is that Hunt's Remedy flushes or washes out the kidneys, and keeps them free and healthy. Any number of prominent men and women can confirm what I say, among the number scores of doctors and ministers, Gen. Butler, Gen. Monroe and Miss Alcott."

It was plain that the warning and advice of the doctor had made a deep impression on his listeners, as it also should upon the millions of men and women who are shortening their lives by the use of these drinks.

The Origin of "Telegram."

Comptroller Durham has promulgated a recent decision beside which another famous ruling of his sinks into insignificance. The comptroller holds, and so instructs the secretary of the treasury and other cabinet officers, that of the appropriation for "fuel, lights and water for public buildings," the miscellaneous items required by the janitors and firemen in the proper care of public buildings embrace soap and towels for the janitor and his forces only. The ruling last year was that in public buildings of the United States only officials under the treasury department should be allowed to wash their hands at the public expense, while in public buildings containing post-offices, court rooms, etc., post-office officials, judicial officers and employes under the department of justice should be debarred the privilege. The late decision compels all treasury, as well as other officials and employes, except janitors, if they have occasion to be cleanly in the conduct of their business, to be so at their own expense.—Boston Advertiser.

The Postmaster,

Winchester, Mass., says: I am personally acquainted with Mr. and Mrs. Carleton, and was astonished at the remarkable effects of your Sulphur Bitters in curing their son, and its large sale is undoubtedly due to the fact that it is an honest medicine. I know of many others who have been cured by its use, and I do not think too much can be said in its praise.—Yours truly, Geo. P. Brown, P. M.

In chronic diseases, medicines should be restoring, and not debilitating, in their action. The wonderful strengthening and curative effects, realized from the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, sustain the reputation of this remedy as the most popular blood purifier.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam for coughs and colds does, is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles are 50c. and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption. lje3

Capt. Barclay Won a Prize in a Lottery.

Capt. William H. Barclay, the pension agent at Pittsburgh, has drawn a $75,000 prize from The Louisiana State Lottery. He said: "Some time ago I purchased two half tickets at $5. Yesterday I was notified that ticket No. 12,618 had drawn the capital prize of $150,000, and as that is the number of one of my half tickets, I am entitled to half that amount and $25 besides, inasmuch as all tickets ending with the number 18 are good for $50 each. I understand that the other half of the capital prize was won by five Philadelphia mechanics.—Indianapolis (Ind.) Journal, April 22d.

If You Fear An Attack

Of fever and ague, or billious remittent fever, don't resort to quinine, a cumulative and pernicious drug that has ruined many constitutions. Use without delay a remedy which the leading physicians of America have recommended for over thirty years past—Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Dumb ague and ague cake, no less than the actively febrile forms of malarial disease, are promptly relieved and ultimately uprooted by it. In the tropics, where febrile complaints of this sort are more virulent than in the temperate zone, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has established a reputation for preventive and remedial efficacy which competition has not been able to affect prejudicially—nay, has even served to strengthen. Disorders of the stomach and bowels, particularly those to which malaria gives rise, are speedily relieved by it. Kidney complaints, rheumatism, nervousness and sleeplessness, sick headache and constipation yield to it. Appetite and sleep are both improved by it.

The anarchist defense committee are still working to secure the release of the convicts.

Malarial poisons contain the germs of dangerous diseases. If these poisons accumulate in the system, typhoid, bilious, intermittent or chill fever in sure to follow. Ayer's Ague Cure is a warranted specific for malaria.

A Convention.

The herbs of the wildwood held a convention to determine which was the greatest benefactor to mankind. Each gave many cogent reasons why he should be considered as such. After the arguments were all concluded, Chief Justice Oak arose, and said, "While all have done well, he who removes evils from the blood, gives tone to the system, and by imparting health and vigor gives a freshness and zest to life must receive the palm," and upon the Mandrake he placed the white crown of blessing. It is from this herb that is prepared the Ingalls' Mandrake Compound, a safe and sure cure for dyspepsia, stomach and liver troubles, etc. Sold by druggists generally.

THE HOLLOW.

The hollow in the old oak tree,
Where happy children play,
Where woodbines climb and cling amid
The roses' clustering spray.

The hollow in the old oak tree,
Where happy lovers meet,
To linger long and whisper low
Upon its mossy seat.

This hollow in the old oak tree,
Where old men feebly come
To tell their tales and crack their jokes
Or ere they totter home.

The hollow in the old oak tree—
One haunts it when the moon
Gleams on the dewy wood walks, close
Beside the streamlet's tune,

Upon the roughened bark to spend
Hot kisses, passionate tears;
To murmur to the old oak tree
Life's griefs for Love's lost years.

—All the Year Round.

"CRUNCHER'S NIECE."

Owen Stanley, huddled in the corner of a third class carriage, was going from Manchester to Chatburn, where a position in a lawyer's office awaited him. The prospect was not cheerful, but it was the only means Owen had of earning his bread since the unlucky misunderstanding with Uncle Raymond. Also, if Uncle Raymond never would see the rights of that miserable affair, the work at Chatburn would be a stepping stone to a better place.

Owen's thoughts were decidedly gloomy, and there was nothing to enliven them in the contemplation of his fellow travelers. These were two shy, awkward, country maidens; the high and mighty valet of a gentleman in another compartment, a thin young man, with a wide strip of black plaster obliquely traversing his nose; and a wizened little old woman in a rusty bonnet, upon which the dejected feathers were so arranged as to make it suggest a molting hen. During the entire journey, this old lady had observed a sphinx-like silence, until, as they neared the Chatburn station, she gave vent to the sudden and unexpected statement, addressed to no one in particular: "Crunchers lives in that red house yonder, with them yeller chimney pots. They say he uses that piece of his orful a-starvin' an' a-beatin' of her in a way as never was."

Nobody replied to this gloomy revelation, and the old lady relapsed into her former silence. Mr. Stanley smiled grimily to himself as he wondered if many of his future townspeople bore such enviable reputations.

"Chatburn!" roared the guard, and Owen descended. When he presented himself at the office whither he was bound, he was informed that his services were not required. Mr. Topham, the head of the establishment, was unexpectedly obliged to accompany his daughter to a milder climate on account of her health, and the office was to be virtually closed for three months. Mr. Topham regretted exceedingly a mistake that had prevented a telegram from being sent to Mr. Stanley telling him of this change of plan.

"This leaves me in a pretty fix!" muttered Owen to himself, as he turned away. "What next? is a question fate must answer. I have, let me see—seven shillings, three pence and a postage stamp, in available cash—and no prospect of a farthing more, unless I earn it. Not enough to set up a monkey and barrel organ. I'm too old for a newsboy or bootblack, and too big for chimney sweep. Plainly, I must not be squeamish about anything that offers."

As he walked aimlessly down the street, he read the name, "Cruncher, Attorney," beside a dingy office door, with "Clerk Wanted" chalked underneath.

Cruncher—that was the name of the oger the old gossip denounced in the train. Could this be the same man?

"Here, Bob, take this letter down to the red house on the east road; it's for Mrs. Cruncher. The house with the yellow chimney pots; you can't mistake it, unless you try," called a young man from the window to a country lout just quitting the house.

No longer any doubt in Owen's mind of this being the Mr. Cruncher accused by the oracle in the bedraggled bonnet. Should he take warning and shun the place, or dismiss the old woman's maunderings from his mind altogether? or, another view of the case, should he watch if there were perchance means of helping a fair damsel in distress—befriending Cruncher's unlucky niece? He presented himself before Mr. Cruncher, and, after a sharp cross questioning, was engaged to fill the post vacant in the office.

From a fellow clerk Owen soon gleaned all there was to gather concerning the history of his employer. He was not liked in the place; he and his family kept closely to themselves in their house outside the town; they had no visitors, and people let them alone. There was a niece, a pretty looking girl of the name of Lee; Jackson, the clerk, had heard some tales of her being ill treated, but he supposed it was idle gossip.

Owen was inclined to believe that these rumors were not mere gossip, since he had had the pleasure of making Mr. Cruncher's acquaintance. He was a cold, fish like man, with a cruel, shallow, light blue eye, and a manner that kept children and dogs at a discreet distance. Owen, not having much food for thought during his leisure hours, was prepared to believe old Cruncher capable of any depravity.

The following Sunday the young man had an opportunity of seeing the entire Cruncher household in church. When the service was over, Mr. Cruncher stalked grimly forth, followed by the silent members of his family, each and all evidently in great awe of him.

"Louise, hold Tommy's right hand tight. You stupidly let him trip on the step, last Sunday!" said Mrs. Cruncher, in petulant tones, with a look to match, as her niece as they passed Owen.

It was consolation to have learned her name. Louise Lee—it was a pretty name, and suited her. Was her life made unhappy by that solemn brute of an old man? Owen longed for money and power and influence, and all the good things of this life, to take her away from her present bondage and give her a home fit for a princess. But none of these blessings came to him, and he had to content himself as best he might with seeing Louise once a week at church.

He had observed that it was Louise's habit, sanctioned by the elders of the family, to draw pictures for the amusement of the youthful Tommy during the sermon—a practice probably considered more beneficial to the young gentleman than slumber. Neither Tommy's parents nor the Abigail took the least interest in these works of art, and they were quietly inspected and destroyed by Tommy only each Sunday.

One morning Owen lost his way hopelessly in the labyrinths of the hymn book. As he was struggling to recover himself a pretty hand in a shabby glove—Louise's hand—held toward him a book with the place marked by a scrap of paper. Owen was uncomfortably conscious of blushing as he accepted the offered civility; but it was so more than charming to be noticed, even in the most commonplace way, by her.

The bit of paper between the pages was folded in two. He idly pressed it apart with his thumb, and to his astonishment read these words, evidently written in furtive haste: "Look, to-morrow, in my uncle's hat lining when he comes to the office."

This appeared, indeed, like the beginning of a most interesting adventure, and the overture made by a girl whom he feared ignored his very existence! How he sat quietly through the sermon, and passed the rest of the day and night until old Cruncher appeared at his usual post next morning, Owen never knew. When he saw his patron deeply absorbed in a pile of letters, Owen, like a coat and umbrella thief, stole out into the passage where such articles were deposited, and possessed himself of the old gentleman's sedate looking hat.

There, as he expected, he found stowed away in the lining a tiny little note. With trembling fingers the now hopeful lover laid smooth the complicated folds of the paper and read:

Please do not think me forward or presuming in making the following request: I am in great trouble. To-morrow evening at 7 I shall not be missed for half an hour. Will you meet me at the end of the lane leading past our house—where the wood begins? L. L.

For the first time since the young man's arrival at the office Mr. Cruncher had occasion to complain of his inaccuracy and inattention in his work. The head of the establishment was, however, guarded in his reproof, for Stanley was a valuable assistant, in the main, and seemed content with astonishingly little pay.

The following evening Owen was at the place of rendezvous fully half an hour too soon. As he was beginning to despair of Louise's coming she appeared, breathless and greatly agitated.

"What must you think of me," she began, "making an appointment with you, almost a stranger, at dusk, in this theatrical manner?"

"I'm sure the motive for all your actions is good," replied Owen, gallantly.

"I have a strong motive in this case, certainly," continued Louise. "I wish to ask your advice on a matter of the utmost importance to me. I have studied your face as much as I dared in church"—Owen's heart gave a bound of delight. Then she had looked at and thought about him!—"and I think I can trust you, and call you my friend. I have no other."

She looked so lovely with the tears in her eyes, as she said this, that Owen longed to take her in his arms and kiss her, instead of declaring himself her devoted servant in plain words.

"Let us sit down on this fallen tree and I will begin my story at the beginning. You men of the law are impatient of unnecessary preamble," Louise went on, with a bright smile for a moment dispelling the melancholy clouding her face. "Last February, now nearly four months ago, I was traveling alone from here to Clover Hill on an errand for my aunt. My companions in the compartment were a very pretty old lady, an ordinary looking gentleman of about five-and-forty, and a younger man, not at all ordinary looking. He had large black eyes, with a wild look in them, and his dress and manners were quite different from those of the people I was accustomed to seeing. He sat opposite me, and soon after the train started began staring at me in a most annoying way."

"The impertinent rascal! How I wish I had been there to punch his head!" exclaimed Owen, with warmth.

"He perhaps did nothing to merit quite such severe punishment, but he was certainly then, and has been since, indirectly the cause of a great deal of misery to me. He amused himself for some time with casting what I supposed were admiring glances at me, pressing his hands to his heart and sighing profoundly. Then suddenly, to my utter amazement, he threw himself on his knees before me, declared, in very bad English, that he loved me to distraction, and, most startling of all, tore off his very handsome watch and chain and flung them into my lap."

"The man was mad, of course."

"Yes; we learned of this for a fact afterward. I looked at our traveling companion—the middle aged man already mentioned—in helpless fright. He started up, and, with what I then thought admirable presence of mind, exclaimed, angrily, 'How dare you insult my wife, sir?'

"This strong language had the desired effect, and the man seemed to shrink into himself and become quiet as a lamb. I suppose believing me to be the wife of somebody else shattered his hopes."

Here again the rare, sweet smile lent a new charm to Louise's face.

"Try as I might," she continued, "I could not prevail upon him to take back his watch, and at the next station the gentleman who called me his wife gave my admirer, with his watch, into the hands of a policeman, as mad. That was the last we ever saw of him, but we heard later that he was a Pole and incurably insane. The old lady in the coupe with us looked inquiringly at my rescuer, who laughed and murmured something I did not understand. I thanked him as I descended at my destination, never dreaming that he was to cross my path again."

Here Louise broke off, and the rest of her narrative was told less glibly.

"You perhaps know, Mr. Stanley, that I am an orphan, dependent on my uncle for everything, and consequently in his power for good or evil."

"More evil than good, I fancy," Owen wished to say, but refrained till he should have heard the end of the story. If he could sit thus forever on the mossy old log, listening to Louise's sweet voice,

Mr. Blaine Will Not Be a Candidate.

Hon. James G. Blaine has written a letter to Whitelaw Reid, saying he will not under any circumstances again be a candidate for president. The democratic editors who have for months been howling at Mr. Blaine, on the assumption that his word is as worthless as Cleveland's, will have to find some other outlet for their venom.

Hon. Patrick Collins, of Massachusetts, has fled from Washington to seek some quiet nook in the land, where he may forget the president's veto of the pet measure of the Boston congressman, and devise a speech which will contain the requisite blarney to convince his fellow adopted citizens that the votes of Irishmenshould be enthusiasticallyhanded in for the best friend of England and her interests, in the United States, as the democratic candidate for president. The democratic national committee, after a careful survey, have decided that Patrick is the best "man for Galway," and he will preside at the St. Louis convention, and commend on the rostrum the man he so often is compelled to condemn in his heart of hearts.

The other vessels of the North Atlantic squadron, the flagship Richmond and corvettes Ossipee and Yantic, sailed from Port Royal bay for Lynn Haven roads on Monday morning, the 28th.

FOLK LORE OF AMERICA.

Its Study to Be Undertaken on a Scientific Basis—The Difficulties.

The establishment of the American Folk Lore society, under the efficient presidency of Professor Francis J. Child, of Harvard college, indicates that the study of our native rural tales, legends and superstitions, hitherto conducted after a desultory and fitful fashion, is about to be undertaken on a scientific basis. Owing to inevitable changes in the character of the earlier settled portions of the country the relics of old English folk lore, comprising ballads, tales, superstitions, dialect, and the like, are disappearing so rapidly that by the commencement of the next century there may be little left worth collecting and preserving. The same remissness has been noticeable in the Old World, and it was not until 1812 that the Grimm brothers, by publishing their "Kinder und Hausmarchen," laid the foundation of the present scientific study of popular tales. The very phrase folk lore is scarcely forty years old. But as it is never too late to mend, or scarcely ever, we are led to hope that the investigations of the American Folk Lore society may materially assist the development of this long neglected but very important branch of study.

And the undertaking has been commenced not a moment too soon. The oral traditions brought to America by the English colonists, and to which they tenaciously cling for generations, have been well nigh forgotten, and the same may be said of the ballads they used to recite, although of these a few have been recorded and are still available. Of nursery tales scarcely one has been recorded, although a century ago they were familiar by scores to mothers and nurses. As to superstitions, there is more hope. They linger in the agricultural districts, and are not uncommon in the neighborhood of large cities. An otherwise intelligent New England farmer will pin his faith on the signs of the zodiac or on the necessity of planting his peas in the first quarter of the moon. What may be called the minor elements of folk lore still exist in considerable abundance. They are observable in children's games, attended by song and rhyme, and particularly in what are known as counting out rhymes. The game of marbles still retains the phraseology attaching to it in Shakespeare's time. Finally, in many parts of the states which form our eastern seaboard, there are enough quaint expressions and archaic words in use to indicate from what part of the fatherland the original colonists came. The rescue from oblivion of our old English folk lore is by no means a hopeless task, but it is obvious that the work should be commenced without further delay.

With the negro dialect, tales, songs and superstitions, the case is very different. Thanks to the labors and foresight of Mr. Joel Chandler Harris, Col. Charles C. Jones, Jr., of Georgia, Mr. Thomas Nelson Page and others, we have a fairly good foundation for systematic inquiry. The southern negroes are still in a comparatively primitive state, and their retentive memories and delight in singing have aided in preserving such a mass of material as to render comparatively easy the labors of the ethnologist or mythological investigator. A more promising field of folk lore exploration could scarcely be desired.

The collection of the folk lore of the American Indians may be regarded as perhaps the most important, as it is the most picturesque, of the subjects to be considered by the society. Unfortunately, the hard headed and unimaginative settlers of New England and the Atlantic states in general made no record of the Indian legends which were once associated with every valley, lake or stream, and the race wilted away before them with little enough of its folk lore recorded. Within the last sixty years a more intelligent and philosophic spirit had succeeded to the previous indifference, and the traditions and superstitions of the aborigines of the Mississippi valley and west of it have occupied the attention of many clever men, notably Henry Rowe Schoolcraft, the first scientific investigator of Indian myths. But the Indians of the west are rapidly decreasing in numbers, and great changes in their condition are impending. It is important, therefore, that, if any inquiry in their folk lore is to be made, the work should be commenced at once, while the materials are at hand in tolerable abundance. The zeal which prompted Mr. Frank Cushing to live for several years among the Zuni Indians of Arizona for the purpose of studying their myths and traditions, should inspire other investigators. —New York Sun.

Lunar Influence on Cattle Brands.

It has been legally settled in Texas that the moon has an immense influence in enlarging the brand on cattle. A lawsuit was pending relative to the ownership of a herd of cattle, and the solution depended upon the proof of the brand, which was found on comparison to be three times as large as the branding iron which the claimant used. Thirteen witnesses were introduced, all of them experts in branding and cattle herding. They all swore that when cattle were branded in the dark of the moon the brand will never, no matter how large the animal may grow, get larger than the dimensions of the iron used. On the other hand, when either grown cattle or calves are branded in the light of the moon the scar will spread, and the lighter the moon the larger will be the spread. And the suit, involving several thousand dollars' worth of cattle, was settled on this testimony. So the question is legally settled that it is the moon that does it.—Boston Budget.

Not Bad for the Eyes.

There is a common notion that electric light is bad for the eyes. The only foundation I can think of for such a notion is that it is trying to the eyes to gaze directly at the bright electric light. It is bad to gaze long at any source of light, and the brighter the source of light gazed at the worse for the eyes, the sun being the worst of all. I have seen more than one person whose eyes were permanently injured by gazing at the sun, during an eclipse or otherwise. As a matter of fact, nothing short of sunlight is better than the incandescent electric light to read by or to work by.—Professor David Webster, M. D.

The residence of Mrs. Lee Jerome at Wichita, Kansas, was entered Tuesday night, May 29th, the inmates chloroformed, and $10,000 worth of diamonds and jewelry carried off. There is no clue. Mrs. Jerome is worth $500,000, and is the lady who made a sensation a few weeks ago by marrying a head waiter in a hotel there.

Talks to Young Men (with asides to young women,) by Rev. Robert Collyer, minister of the Church of the Messiah, New York. Boston: Lee & Shepard; price $1.25; sold by M. Goodrich.

Mr. Collyer's little book, which is dedicated to that excellent man, William H. Baldwin, president of the Young Men's Christian Union in Boston, contains twelve lectures upon subjects of interest not only to young men, but to persons of all ages and both sexes. These talks, as they are termed, are full of interest. They abound in advanced thoughts, and healthful ideas. Readable and attractive as well as instructive, they are as the name purports "talks," that is, they do not in a didactic manner undertake to lecture to, but the reverend author converses pleasantly with, the young men upon subjects of interest, and gives in his dozen different discourses, truths as a brother might talk to a brother. Every one of its 233 pages will be read with keen zest, and can be re-read with profit.

To Save Life

Frequently requires prompt action; an hour's delay waiting for the doctor may be attended with serious consequences, especially in cases of Croup, Pneumonia, and other throat and lung troubles. Hence, no family should be without a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has proved itself, in thousands of cases, the best Emergency Medicine ever discovered. It gives prompt relief and prepares the way for a thorough cure, which is certain to be effected by its continued use.

S. H. Latimer, M. D., Mt. Vernon, Ga., says: "I have found Ayer's Cherry Pectoral a perfect cure for Croup in all cases. I have known the worst cases relieved in a very short time by its use; and I advise all families to use it in sudden emergencies, for coughs, croup, &c."

A. J. Eidson, M. D., Middletown, Tenn., says: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral with the best effect in my practice. This wonderful preparation once saved my life. I had a constant cough, night sweats, was greatly reduced in flesh, and given up by my physician. One bottle and a half of the Pectoral cured me."

"I cannot say enough in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral," writes E. Bragdon, of Palestine, Texas, "believing as I do that, but for its use, I should long since have died."

OFFICIAL NOTICE!

— OF —

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co.

— FROM THE —

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we respectfully request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

30,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Silver-ware, Window Shades, Drapery, Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Stoves and Ranges, Feathers, Feather Pillows, Spreads, Blankers, Chamber Sets, Parlor Suits, Carpets, Lounges, Easy Chairs, Mattresses, Springs,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the

Furniture, Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET, PARLOR SUIT, Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. There are items worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time, We have invariably paid out the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We wish to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

KITCHEN RANGE, or a CHAMBER SET, or PARLOR SUIT, or CARPETS, WINDOW SHADES, DRAPERY CURTAINS,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of these Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell the same and shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. This notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store, Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

Respectfully, the Public's Ob't Servants,

THE ATKINSON HOUSE FURNISHING CO.,

Headquarters Cor. Pearl and Middle Streets, Portland, and Branches at Auburn, Rockland, Bangor and Biddeford, also Bar Harbor for a short time.

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, May 31st, Mayor Hodgdon in the chair; absent, Ald. Boynton.

Request of Mrs. J. A. Grace for relay of sidewalk in front of No. 8 Richards avenue was referred to committee on streets.

Petition of Rienzi Ridge for a sewer on Newcastle avenue was referred to the committee on sewers.

Petition of Moses H. Goodrich S. F. E Co., No. 4, to have that engine reinstated in the engine house on Court street, where it was formerly located, was referred to committee on fire department, with power.

Bills to the amount of $4240 were ordered to be paid.

The committee to whom was referred the petition of F. E. Potter and others for continuation of the sewer from Cass street to the Jones brewery, recommended that the petition be granted. Adopted.

Samuel P. Treadwell was appointed collector of taxes for 1888.

Voted that the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. be ordered to at once remove the cable now extending across Market square.

Adjourned for two weeks.

BASE BALL.

Owing to the state of the weather and the grounds on the morning of Memorial day, it was uncertain until eleven o'clock in the forenoon whether the game announced to be played on the South street ball field would take place or not, but it did, and was witnessed by 600 spectators, who saw a good game. The score by innings was as follows:

Innings.	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Portsmouth,	0	5	0	0	0	0	4	2	—11
Dover	1	1	1	0	0	0	0	1	0—	4

In the afternoon the Portsmouth club played the Dovers on the grounds of the latter, and again won, the following being the score:

Innings.	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9

The afternoon game Memorial day, on the South end grounds, between the Congress street and Market street nines for the benefit of the Cottage Hospital, resulted in a victory of twenty-two to nine in favor of the former. The attendance was but little over two hundred.

A match game of ball was played at the Plains on the afternoon of Memorial day between the Electrics of Portsmouth and the Bradleys of Dover, resulting in a victory for the former by a score of fifteen to nine.

Between two and three hundred Portsmouth people went to Dover on the afternoon of Memorial day, to witness the game between the Portsmouth and Dover clubs. The attendance at the ground is said to have been about 1700.

Morton, who played second base for the Dover club Memorial day forenoon on the Portsmouth grounds, had his left arm broken while riding from the grounds in a barge. He was leaning with his hand over the side when the barge was being driven through the gate, and the driver ran against the fence and caught his arm, breaking it short off.

Harry Brown of Salem, Mass., aged nineteen years, son of Ex-Alderman Edward F. Brown of that city, was killed while watching a game of base ball at North Salem on Memorial day by being struck in the head at the base of the brain by a bat which slipped from the hands of a striker. He was taken to his home in a carriage, but died in about an hour. He was employed in the Five Cent savings bank, was a member of the Salem Cadets, and a graduate of the Salem high school.

The Massachusetts legislature adjourned at 11:15 o'clock on Tuesday evening, May 29th.

FIRE-ALARM TEST.

During the regular monthly test of the fire alarm this forenoon, boxes 29, 35, 14, 24 and 17 will be struck.

THE WHITEHOUSE MURDER.

James Palmer, the suspected murderer of Henry T. Whitehouse, was taken before Judge Batchelder at four o'clock Wednesday afternoon on a charge of murder, pleaded not gullty, and the bearing of the case was continued to Thursday, June 7th.

The coroner's jury were in session again on Thursday. In the afternoon Prof. Angell, chemical and micros copical expert, examined the stains on Palmer's ulster, and pronounced them to be human blood. The inquest was not finished.

A despatch of May 29th from Lawrence, Mass., to the Boston Post, says: "James Palmer, who is accused of the murder of Henry T. Whitehouse at Portsmouth, was formerly a resident of this city, and worked in the Edison Illuminating company's works, part of the time as lineman and part of the time as engineer. He left to go to Portsmouth about a year ago. His friends and acquaintances say he was an exemplary young man in all respects, and the last one to do such a crime as he is charged with."

Mrs. G. A. Cobbett and Miss May Cobbett, of Northwest street, are visiting friends in Portland.

Mrs. Thomas Gammon of Court street, and her daughter, Mrs. William A. Plaisted of State street, start this morning for Chicago to pass the month of June with a son of Mrs. Gammon.

RAILROAD ELECTIONS.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Concord railroad was held in Concord on the 29th ult., and Fred Symth and Walter M. Parker of Manchester, Josiah Minot, Benjamin A. Kimball, John H. Pearson and John A. White of Concord, and Alpha J. Pillsbury of Tilton, were re-elected directors, each receiving 13,304 votes to 231 scattering. A resolution was unanimously adopted favoring a union with the Boston, Concord and Montreal railroad, and requesting the directors to take steps to bring it about. The directors re-elected Ex-Governor Smyth president, and William M. Chase of Concord clerk.

The Northern railroad stockholders held their annual meeting at Concord on May 31st, and elected Alvah W. Sulloway and George E. Nesmith of Franklin, Josiah H. Benton, Jr., Silas Pierce, Benjamin P. The Concord & Claremont railroad stockholders on May 30th elected directors as follows: Dexter Richards of Newport, A. W. Sulloway of Franklin, D. W. Johnson of Claremont, J. H. Benton, Jr., of Boston. C. E. Stearns of Boston, George E. Todd of Concord, A. E. Scott of Boston. The board organized with Dexter Richards as president; C. P. Sanborn of Concord, clerk; G. A. Kettell of Boston, treasurer; G. E. Todd of Concord, assistant treasurer.

FRIGHTFUL PROSPECT.

The picnic seasons in preparation, as may be seen from a new receipt for sandwiches. Spread rye bread with butter, and put between the slices a good layer of raw beef chopped very fine, and a slice of two of chopped raw onions and green leeks. This sandwich will make the dullest picnic an appetizing occasion.—Exchange.

This new picnic sandwich will no doubt taste very nice, but what a breath that picnic will have when it gets home, especially should the usual picnic beverage be abundant, and its imbibing be followed by a smoke of the historic T. D., or average picnic cigar. Every seaside resort should at once pass an ordinance compelling the picnic party to keep to leeward this year, when homeward bound.

The funeral services of Henry T. Whitehouse took place on Thursday afternoon at the residence of his father on Union street, and were attended by a large number of relatives and friends, and about forty of the Improved Order of Red Men, of which he was a member. At the close of the services the remains were placed in the receiving tomb, with the services of the order of Red Men. They will later be taken to the family lot in Newcastle for interment.

Latest summer novelties at Mrs. Tebbetts'; see her June window to-day.

The funeral of Dr. William Goddard, a native and for a number of years a medical practioner of this city, who was at the time of his death the oldest living graduate of Harvard college, took place at two o'clock Tuesday afternoon of this week at the Waverly house, Charlestown, where he had of late resided. The services, which were conducted by Rev. Warren Goddard, Jr., of Providence, R. I., a nephew of the deceased, consisted of a prayer and a fitting eulogy. The burial was at Forest Hills cemetery.

C. C. Bunce of Dover, Great Sachem of the Grand Lodge of New Hampshire, Improved Order of Red Men, and E. S. Grogan of Dover, Worthy Sachem of the Grand Lodge, were in this city on Thursday, in attendance on the obsequies of Bro. Henry T. Whitehouse of Massasoit Tribe of this city.

Cooks of Olden Time.

Cooks of old were considered a sacred race; even their fingers were consecrated to the deities. The thumb was devoted to Venus, the index finger to Mars, the middle finger to Saturn, the next to the sun, and the little one to Mercury. Imagination has so much to do with pleasures of the palate that impudence, conceit and bonstfulness were held to be necessary qualities to the profession. Hear one modest cook: "I may say I have discovered the principle of immortality, and that the odor of my dishes would recall life into the nostrils of the dead." Bechamel claimed that with a sauce he had invented a man would have no compunction in eating his own grandfather.

Great and grateful stomachs have not hesitated to bestow marks of appreciation upon the minds that catered to them. It is claimed that women don't know a good dinner when they see it, or, rather, when they eat it. An contraire, it was Cleopatra who went into such ecstacies over a certain repast that Antony gave the cook thereof a city. Coming down to the conquest, William was so enchanted with a fine white soup his chef invented that he made him lord of the Manor of Addington. The Emperor Alexander took off his own finger a superb diamond ring to place it on Cavenie's. It is said the latter burst into tears of gratitude and the Austrian cooks burst into tears, too—of jealousy. English noblemen and judges of the bench have from time to time been so seduced by culinary charms that they have led the presiding genius of the pots and pans from the kitchen to the altar, and in so doing have frequently got a poor wife in exchange for a good cook.—New York Press.

A Malay Running Amuck.

The nearest thing in nature to a Malay running amuck is the conduct of an elephant who goes "must." Both do all the violent mischief in their power without notice or warning. Neither is usually spared, when he returns to a calmer frame of mind, by way of seeing whether his reformation will endure or whether he will relapse. The peculiarity of amuck is that, though the result of a momentary passion, it seems to depend, in the Malay's mind, on a reasonable belief that to run amuck is, in certain circumstances, the right thing to do. It is inconceivable that sudden news of the death of a relative should naturally prompt any man to murder every human being he meets. No; amuck is a convention, though a queer one, like poetry, or any other art. Civilized man writes "In Memoriam" where the Malay runs out and slices all and sundry. Both performances are charms against grief, and at the same time are expressions of emotion. But when civilization wears mourning and writes poetry, and when most uncivilized tribes also wear mourning, blacken their faces, tear their clothes, and perhaps hack themselves with knives, the Malay—and he alone—hacks other people.—The Saturday Review.

A Pleasant Person.

It seems easiest to describe a pleasant person by negatives, although assuredly his pleasantness affects us as a most positive quality. To begin with, such a person must not be too much "shut up in his own individuality," to use the phrase of an English writer. That is, he must not be very reserved and concentrated in his emotions and affections, but have a certain expansiveness of nature and openness of manner. He must not be too fastidious, but able to take people for what they are and what they are worth to him for the passing moment and the needs of the social hour. He must not be of too intense a nature, nor so preoccupied with the serious aspects and duties of life that he is unable to put them aside temporarily and lend himself to lighter thoughts and lighter people.—Atlantic Monthly.

The London & Northwestern Railway company has begun to lay rails along the Shropshire canal, in order to try the substitution of locomotives for horses for canal boats.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

Distress After Eating

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." GEORGE A. FAGE, Watertown, Mass.

AFTER EXERCISE.

When men and maidens seek the sport,
They find around the tennis court;
Or when upon the diamond field
Their bats the champion players wield.
When walks, or rides, or bending oars,
Bring perspiration from the pores,
Then people all should bear in mind
The best and purest soap to find,
For after some such exercise
The system most in danger lies,
Absorbing then both swift and sure
The poisons found in soaps impure,
And those who keep for face and hands
Or general use as time demands,
The IVORY SOAP, need have no fear
From exercise throughout the year.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture in these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world. $22 TO $900.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS. Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all GRAND & UPRIGHT pianos. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

Uses of Electricity.

It is a comparatively short time since the hidden powers of electricity were brought to light, and thus it may be safely said that its possibilities have not yet been learned or dreamed of, yet how much we owe to it at the present time.

It gives us the brightest light, the highest temperature, the swiftest messenger, and the most potent chemical agent that we possess. It is used for curing the sick, it has been proposed as a substitute for the "cat," or even for the gallows. By its means the voice can be transmitted to distances infinitely beyond the reach of a speaking tube. It enables us to hear the footsteps of a fly, to detect base metal in a coin, or the presence of a bullet in the body. We can use it to separate the fine metallic particles from a powdered rock, to propel a boat, or drive a car. Energy from a water course can be carried to a distant workshop and be used to plate a spoon with silver, to copy an engraving, or to extract a metal from its ore. Finally, it has recently been proposed to utilize the same power for the killing of cattle, and for the treatment of sewage.

Will it stay here? If it did it would be the most potent energy on earth, yet its greatest feats, we believe, are yet to come, and the eyes of the world will open wider and wider as the brainy men of the nineteenth century guide the powers that once were but Jove's own.—Newburyport News.

GLYCEROLE! A PRESERVATIVE OF LEATHER.

For Oiling and Dressing Boots, Shoes, Etc.

Ever since the now dispensable article of Shoe Dressing came into existence, it has been the source of constant trouble to parties using it, because it hardened and cracked the leather; to the dealer, because of the complaints of his customers. Conscientious Shoe Dealers have often dissuaded their patrons from using any Shoe Dressing whatever and advised the application of oil, as it is universally known that oil is the only preservative of leather, while all other substances harden, crack and destroy it.

It was claimed for most Dressings heretofore in use that they do not crack leather, but it has never before been claimed that an Oil Dressing could be produced, the composition of which was considered to be an impossibility. After years of patient work however, we have succeeded in solving the problem of producing an oil, which in addition to its softening and preserving qualities gives also an elegant lustre to leather goods.

Glycerole is a veritable oil and the only one in existence which answers the purpose of oiling, and at the same time, dressing leather. It is perfect in its composition, does not rub off or soil dresses or skirts, and imparts to worn goods a soft, oily lustre which positively preserves the leather and protects it from water.

We do not pretend that a single application of Glycerole will improve a shoe already dried and hardened by numerous coats of common shoe dressing, but we do warrant that all shoes oiled and dressed only with Glycerole will be positively improved in wearing quality, as this oil by penetrating into the pores of the leather will make it more supple and add to its durability.

THE LATEST DISCOVERY. A Prominent Physician Reveals Some New and Startling Secrets.

"Do you know," said Dr. Bodfich, of Boston, at the club, one evening recently, "what the starting point of most physical troubles is?"

"No, indeed," replied a circle of anxious enquirers, as they crowded about the doctor.

"Tea and coffee," answered the eminent physician.

There was a look of horror on the faces of his listeners. The doctor continued:

"Men, and women even more, drink tea and coffee constantly, and wonder why they feel dull and stupid, have headaches, a bad taste in the mouth, pains in the limbs and about the body and irregularity of the secretions. Nine cases out of ten these things are caused by too free a use of tea and coffee. These drinks clog the system, weaken the tissues and destroy the most important organs. Few men or women who indulge in tea and coffee regularly have clear urine, but on the contrary, sediment, scum and brick dust, all of which invariably mean coming disease or death."

"But what are we to do, Doctor? Shall we give up tea and coffee altogether?"

"No. I do not advise that, but regulate it. Keep the kidneys clear and active. There is nothing in the world so good for this as the well known and popular Hunt's Remedy. Any one who uses this medicine regularly can drink tea and coffee moderately without fear. The reason is that Hunt's Remedy flushes or washes out the kidneys, and keeps them free and healthy. Any number of prominent men and women can confirm what I say, among the number scores of doctors and ministers, Gen. Butler, Gen. Monroe and Miss Alcot."

It was plain that the warning and advice of the doctor had made a deep impression on his listeners, as it also should upon the millions of men and women who are shortening their lives by the use of these drinks.

IMMIGRANTS FROM ICELAND.

Characteristics of the Icelanders—Settling in New England.

The older states have received some of the characteristics impressed upon them by their first settlers. The influence of the French in Louisiana, the Huguenots in South Carolina, the Dutch in New York, the Puritans in New England yet clearly appears, as does that of the cavaliers in Virginia and the Quakers in Pennsylvania. Immigration now scatters, and the result is a quicker blending of different nationalities. The tide is immensely greater, but it sooner loses its distinctive color, as the Mississippi and the Amazon finally are lost in the great ocean, though retaining for many leagues the colors of the soils they have washed.

For 1,000 years the Icelanders have in their frozen island retained certain marked characteristics. Several thousand of them have immigrated to northern counties of Dakota, where there are already Finns, Swedes, Norwegians, Danes and Russians. Nationalities that were one centuries ago, and then separated, come together again, and all become American. All of these people are called Yankees by persons who have expanded that word to include all persons living in northern states, though they have as little relation to the simon-pure Yankee as they have to the East Indians, and less, for it is claimed that they are descendants of the Northmen, who originally came from Asia to Scandinavia.

In 1874 the Icelanders celebrated the 1,000th anniversary of the first settlement of their island, which led to much literature about the country and people by persons who attended the celebration. The world was astonished to find that in that bleak and treeless island there existed in many respects a high degree of civilization. Education was more general than in any other nation of the world. Every child was taught to read. But the isolated condition of the people had begotten certain strange notions of the outer world, and some were found who thought Iceland was the loveliest land the sun shone upon. Two Icelanders who had been brought to New York a few years since begged to be returned before they died from excessive heat. Such people naturally regard north Dakota as in the banana zone. It is now proposed to remove all the people of Iceland—about 75,000—to this country. Some day this stream from Iceland will meet another from Italy and flow on so different after the junction that the river thereafter will be distinctively American. Never before did so many and such different streams unite in one common great flood, whose outlet seemed to be a freedom as boundless and chainless as the ocean. Iceland, which was "the last asylum of pagan faith and Scandinavian literature," is the last contributor to the population of Dakota.—Chicago Times.

For Over Three Months

The French minister of finance announces that the bank of France is not responsible for forged notes.

I have been afflicted with catarrh for twenty years. It became chronic and there was a constant dropping of mucous matter. It extended to my throat, causing hoarseness and great difficulty in speaking, indeed for years I was not able to speak more than thirty minutes, and often this with great difficulty. I also, to a great extent, lost the sense of hearing in the left ear, and of taste. By the use of Ely's Cream Balm all droppings of mucous has ceased and my voice and hearing has greatly improved.—Jas. W. Davidson, attorney at law, Monmouth, Ill.

The United Presbyterian general assembly decided that ministers may use tobacco, but ought not to.

In chronic diseases, medicines should be restoring, and not debilitating, in their action. The wonderful strengthening and curative effects, realized from the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, sustain the reputation of this remedy as the most popular blood purifier.

Mrs. Corner, the Christian Scientist, was held in $5000 on the charge of manslaughter.

A Great Battle

Is continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. A good reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla is the weapon with which to defend one's self, drive the desperate enemy from the field, and restore peace and bodily health for many years. Try this peculiar medicine.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam for coughs and colds does, is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles are 50c. and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption. 1e23.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. mon.wed.fri.ctjal

Why not start for yourself? Why not secure at once some of the low-priced but very fertile and well located lands adjacent to railroads now to be obtained by those going to Northern Dakota and Minnesota, where you can make a larger return per acre than on the high-priced or worn-out land you now occupy? SOME DOCTORS honestly admit that they can't cure Rheumatism and Neuralgia. Others say they can but—don't. Athlophoros says nothing but—cures. That's the secret of its success. Years of trial have proved it to be a quick, safe, sure cure.

Concord, N. H., Sept. 5, 1887. In my own family Athlophoros was used as a last resort, the user having suffered from rheumatism for years and having been treated for the disease by different physicians in this State and Massachusetts without even temporary relief. Upon my recommendation scores of people have used this remedy with the same results claimed for it. C. H. WILSON.

Dubuque, Iowa, Jan. 3, 1888. Athlophoros has completely cured me of nervous headache, and I feel thankful for all the good it has done me. MRS. LOUISE SHERRY.

If You Fear An Attack

Of fever and ague, or billious remittent fever, don't resort to quinine, a cumulative and pernicious drug that has ruined many constitutions. Use without delay a remedy which the leading physicians of America have recommended for over thirty years past—Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Dumb ague and ague cake, no less than the actively febrile forms of malarial disease, are promptly relieved and ultimately uprooted by it. In the tropics, where febrile complaints of this sort are more virulent than in the temperate zone, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has established a reputation for preventive and remedial efficacy which competition has not been able to affect prejudicially—nay, has even served to strengthen. Disorders of the stomach and bowels, particularly those to which malaria gives rise, are speedily relieved by it. Kidney complaints, rheumatism, nervousness and sleeplessness, sick headache and constipation yield to it. Appetite and sleep are both improved by it.

The president has vetoed several pension bills.

Malarial poisons contain the germs of dangerous diseases. If these poisons accumulate in the system, typhoid, bilious, intermittent or chill fever is sure to follow. Ayer's Ague Cure is a warranted specific for malaria.

THE POLICE OF BERLIN.

Every Man of the Force a Trained Soldier—Surveillance.

The German police are, in effect, a wing of the German army. Every man in the force is a trained soldier, disciplined by service in the ranks or as a commissioned officer. The Berlin police number about 5,000 men. The chief of this force, or president, as he is there called, ranks as an army colonel. There are 18 captains and 138 lieutenants, who rank correspondingly with army captains and lieutenants, and receive higher pay. There are 801 sub, or non-commissioned officers, and over 4,000 privates. Then there are one first secretary, five assistants, ten councilors, twenty chiefs of precincts or department clerks, forty-five assistants, twenty-five cashiers or bookkeepers, and 172 bureau employes or laborers. A private in the police must first have served nine years in the army and received honorable discharge. After a certain period of police service officers and privates are retired and pensioned. This is but one of several rewards offered the German policeman for good behavior and efficient service.

The Berlin police on duty are like statues, silent and immovable. They stand in the middle of the streets or sit on horses, apparently like machines, and oblivious to everything but their own line of performance. But there is very little information desired by the ordinary mortal not to be obtained from the Berlin policeman for the asking. He will not be aware of your existence unless you accost him with an inquiry. Then, he is all attention, intelligence and civility. Speak to him in English and he will immediately answer in German, at the same time interpreting, with his hands and eyes, until you are sure to comprehend, and learn all you want to know. The policemen are as neat in person and well uniformed as the army. The detective branch of police wear the civilian dress.

No stranger, man or woman, enters Berlin and stops twenty-four hours who is not registered by the police. It is easy to look up the person if at a hotel, where he is asked to register his name, residence, birthplace, occupation, destination, and whether he travels for pleasure or on business, and the nature of his business. If the person is not ready about giving this information he is asked for his passport. In the boarding houses, most of them kept by women, the police officer asks the landlady to furnish this information about her boarders. Every boarding house is visited on an average of once a week by a police officer in civilian dress. There is a quiet formal politeness about these visits that goes far to divest them of all semblance of intrusion or inquisitiveness. But there is also an authoritative ceremony not to be misunderstood. This system of surveillance is no disadvantage to the ordinary honest stranger. Not only could he not get lost in Berlin, but he could not lose his friends there either. One has only to go to police headquarters to learn the whereabouts of every non-resident visitor or stranger in Berlin.—New York Sun.

Cruelty in the Cradle.

Superintendent Charidi, of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, would have his hands full if complaints could come from the cradle. The baby's torture begins directly after birth. It is soaped and soaked, sopped and scrubbed, wiped and wabbled and walloped, all to get it clean. Then it is bound in strong bandages so that it will not burst in crying. The bandage about the loins is pulled as tightly as possible and pinned. Swaddling napkins, flannel underclothes and skirts are then girted around it, and pulled as tightly as they can be pulled. The head is combed and curried and smeared with some sort of ointment, and then the little sufferer is wound up in woolen wraps and laid away. It is so bound up and wrapped up and covered up that it can scarcely get breath to squall. Pins prick and it kicks with pain. Then come the paregoric and soothing syrup, castor oil, molasses and whisky. It is rubbed and rocked, trotted and tossed, and dosed with drug stuff to cure the supposed colic. If there be no one about with any common sense, the chances are good for a child's funeral.—Thought of the Times.

The Oldest American Writer.

George Bancroft, at 88, still rides horseback, gives but never goes out to dinner parties, and writes a little of history every day. He graduated from Harvard sixty-one years ago, was collector of the port of Boston fifty years ago, secretary of the navy forty-three years ago, and minister to Great Britain forty-two years ago.

Only last year Mr. Bancroft accomplished the journey to Nashville, where he visited Mrs. Polk, the venerable widow of his old chieftain in politics. He is not afraid of any horse. Within a year he bought a new and untried steed, and mounted and rode with entire confidence. Not long ago, while riding with Senator Gibson, of Louisiana, the historian was thrown.

"Are you hurt?" the senator asked in great alarm as he ran to the old man.

"No," was the answer, as Mr. Bancroft got up from the soft turf. "Don't tell the newspapers or they will say I have forgotten how to ride." Mr. Bancroft is the father of the American republic of letters.—Washington Cor. Boston Globe.

Profit Sharing in Paris.

The late M. Bord, the piano maker of Paris, left to every one in his factory who has worked there for five years, $200; to every one who has worked there for six years, $200, and so on, increasing $60 for each year that the recipient has worked. The system of profit sharing was introduced into M. Bord's factory in 1864; it included all the employes, and the distribution of profits was annual and complete; 10 per cent. was first set aside to cover the risks of trade and provide interest on the employer's capital. This was reckoned as the wages of capital. The remainder of the profits was then divided in the ratio of the wages received, the wages of the capital being reckoned in so that M. Bord received a share of this second division. The dividend is said to have amounted on several occasions to from 20 to 24 per cent. on the wages, though during the last few years the pressure of foreign competition has reduced it.—Boston Transcript.

IN A PHOTOGRAPHER'S STUDIO.

Peculiarities of His Patrons—Vanity the Cause of Good Trade.

"Is it true that most people have their photographs taken simply to gratify a vain desire to see their miniatures on cardboard?" was asked of a Union square photographer a few days ago.

"Yes," replied the knight of the camera, "it is true of the majority of people, but there are many well meaning folk to whom the charge of vanity would be falsely applied and slanderous. The sole incentive which prompts such persons to sit for a likeness is to oblige their friends, and thus kill for a time that fiendish request which friends make when they ask for your picture. Many modest persons have been driven almost to the point of self destruction by their unthinking friends, who ever and anon are demanding the portrait of their unfortunate victim, until the latter, pushed to the verge of despair, throws himself upon the tender mercies of the photographer and his instrument of torture, and gets 'took.'

"My observations have led me to believe," continued the artist, as he deftly snipped off the superfluous margins of a batch of unmounted photos, "that the people of the present age are not characterized by the traits of extreme modesty or excessive reserve, and a photographer's atelier is one of the best places in the world in which to study certain phases of human nature, and to watch the display of that streak of egotism which runs so largely through the whole human family."

"Then you believe that we are all more or less worshipers of self?"

"Yes, if the actions and conversation of the thousands who have passed through my studio are a just criterion. One thing I do know, that nine-tenths of my patrons are vain, silly people, who receive a childlike pleasure in seeing their too often unprepossessing countenances reflected on a scrap of paper. I have several regular customers who come to me at least once a month for a sitting. They often order as many as three dozen photos at one time. What they do with them heaven only knows. One foolish old man wanted me not long ago to place his portrait in a conspicuous position in my showcase on the sidewalk, and offered me quite a sum if I would agree to his proposition. He was terribly put out when I refused point blank to comply with what he was pleased to call a 'very slight request.' There are lots of folk, however, who would just as quickly pay me to remove their likeness if they found it exposed to the public gaze."

"Has there been any great reduction in the prices of photographs since the introduction of the instantaneous process in most of the photographic establishments?" queried the writer.

"Yes, there has been a great fall in prices of late, but it is not owing to the advent of the new method. We can't command the prices which prevailed in former years, because the public have discovered that the photographers' profits are enormous, and they consequently refuse to pay big prices for what seems to be the product of so little labor. Those who are not conversant with the technique of the profession imagine that they do not get the worth of their money when a photographer charges $10 for a portrait which it took him perhaps only three hours to make and seventy-five cents or $1 worth of material to complete.

"But it is neither the time nor material used that the photographer charges for. It is the acquired skill which enables him to manufacture a beautiful picture—skill which it has cost him years of patient toil and study to attain. In this respect my profession is similar to that of a physician or lawyer. Patrons pay for the expert service rendered and the quality of the workmanship, and not for the quantity—he is of photographs, medicine or law.

"Tintypes? Yes, I make a few. None but the poorest people ask for them now. My largest trade in them is done on Thursdays and Saturdays, when the servant girl and her beau are out for a lark. No, there is no profit in tintypes. They are made very quickly, however, and those who buy them are not, as a rule, fastidious persons. I believe the day is not far distant when a tintype portrait will be as great a rarity as the daguerreotype is at present."—New York Press.

Our Forefathers' "Iron Rule."

The boys and girls of today have little knowledge of the repression which their grandfathers endured in their childhood. A venerable lady who died lately said: "I never sat down in the presence of my parents before I was married without a formal invitation to do so."

One of the foremost statesmen in the country during the early part of this century, when asked in his old age what had been the pleasantest event in his life, replied promptly:

"The day when my father and mother summoned me to their presence and told me they considered me now old enough to consult about a proposed investment. I was then 25 years of age, but for the first time felt myself a man. No success of my life ever gave me the keen delight which that recognition from them that I was no longer a boy, afforded me."

Whether the "iron rule" of our forefathers or the system of moral suasion adopted by American parents of the present day produces the better results we leave to our readers to decide by their lives as men and women.—Youth's Companion.

Slaves of the Opium Habit.

Coleridge has been blamed, too severely, perhaps, for his opium bondage. He began its use as a relief from palpitation of the heart and the pains and inflammation of rheumatism. "My sole sensuality was not to be in pain. In an evil hour I procured it. It worked miracles; the swellings disappeared, the pains vanished. I prescribed the newly discovered panacea for all complaints. Alas! it is with a bitter smile, a laugh of gall and bitterness, that I recall this period of unsuspecting delusion, and how I first became aware of the maelstrom, the fatal whirlpool, to which I was drawing." He says De Quincy boasted with morbid vanity of what was his misfortune; for he had been warned, yet willfully struck into the current. "Heaven be merciful to him."—Herald of Health.

Jerrold called a thin literary rival "a pin without head or point."

Were all wise enough to heed this advice in season, a world of suffering would be avoided. If you suffer from impure blood, scrofula, dyspepsia, biliousness, headache, take

March April May

Are the best months in which to purify your blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best blood purifier. At no other season does the human system so much need the aid of a reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla, as now. The impoverished condition of the blood, the weakening effects of the long, cold winter, the lost appetite, and that tired feeling, all make a good spring medicine absolutely necessary. Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiarly adapted for this purpose, and increases in popularity every year. It is the ideal spring medicine.

"I must say Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine I ever used. Last spring I had no appetite, and the least work I did fatigued me ever so much. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and soon felt that I could do as much in a day as I had formerly done in a week. My appetite is voracious." MRS. M. V. BAYARD, Atlantic City, N. J.

The Pope and Ireland.

A despatch of May 31st from Dublin, Ireland, says: "One hundred nationalist farmers, encouraged by the papal rescript, have bought turf from Landlord Hussey's bog at Ahabeg, in county Kerry. Hussey had been rigidly boycotted for four years. The Irish Catholic archbishops and bishops have issued an address, declaring that the Pope's decree, relative to Irish affairs, affects morals only, and does not interfere with politics. They warn the people and the Land League leaders against speaking with irreverence of the Pope, who has assured them that he does not intend to injure the Irish national movement, but desires to remove the obstacles in its way. United Ireland praises the declaration."

The Boston Pilot has received the following from its special correspondent at Rome: "It is understood here that the Pope will send a friendly and comforting letter to the Irish bishops, expressive of his constant purpose to abstain from anything which could in the, least check the true interests of the Irish national movement. The Propaganda considers the conduct of the London Times and the Tablet (the latter is the organ of the English tory Catholics), in misconstruing the papal rescript for the purpose of irritating the Irish, extremely blamable."

Cleveland's "Business Methods."

Cleveland has vetoed the bill for a public building in Youngstown, Ohio, on the ground that it is not needed, while at the same time he has approved a bill for a similar building in Ashville, North Carolina. Let us see about the "business method" of these things:

The village of Asheville has a population of 2593. To meet the wants of this small southern village Mr. Cleveland seems to have thought a public building proper and necessary. Youngstown has in the city proper a population of 15,435, and in the township outside the city about 6000 more. Youngstown contains eleven churches, an endowed academy, one daily and four weekly newspapers, a handsome opera house, four rolling mills, seven blast furnaces, two foundries, a street railway and thirty coal mining companies. For this prosperous northern city, with its large population and varied industries, Mr. Cleveland thinks that a public building would be a reckless extravagance.

What is the matter with Youngstown? It happens to be in the district of Congressman McKinley, one of the most vigorous opponents of the President's tariff policy. That is all. Allentown, Pa., could not have a public building because its democratic congressman, Mr. Sowden, opposed the Mills bill. The Washington mouthpiece of the administration has declared that "there is an Allentown for every Sowden." So there appears to be a Youngstown for every McKinley. While the mugwump organs are piping the praises of Mr. Cleveland for his "business methods" and his conception of "public office as a public trust," that great-minded statesman is using the executive prerogative to wreak petty revenges upon men who happen to disagree with him.

It Comes High.

The expenses of the Methodist general conference, during its session of about a month in New York, have been about $2000 a day. This covers the rental of the Metropolitan opera house, which has been increased by extra sessions from the sum of $5500, originally agreed upon, to $7500, and the travelling expenses and hotel bills of the delegates and bishops. The entire cost of the conference is about $75,000, or $20,000 in excess of the sum provided for this purpose by the collections in the churches. Delegates go to the hotels selected for them; the limit of expense being $2.50 per day. However, any delegate may, if he choses, accept $60 for the month and board where he likes. Some have used this privilege, and made a snug little profit by putting up at a five-dollar-a-week boarding house.

An Effective Trap.

The Berlin Homœopathic society recently learned that it was the custom of many druggists to put up on homœopathic prescriptions merely some simple compound, and label it whatever was wanted. To test this, eighty different burlesque prescriptions were written out in Latin and sent to as many different druggists. Seventy-seven of the eighty swallowed the bait, and put up what purported to be the dose required by the bogus prescriptions. The other three sent the prescriptions back, with the remark that they did not understand them.

No Wonder He Wanted a Divorce.

At Chicago, June 1st, while Mrs. Meckie L. Rawson was waiting in court for the divorce case of her husband, the banker Rawson, to be called, she fired four shots from a pistol at her husband's attorney, Col. H. C. Whitney. Two of the bullets hit the lawyer, and it is thought he is fatally injured. Mrs. Rawson emptied her revolver at Whitney before she could be captured. She was arrested and taken to jail.

Temperance in Philadelphia.

A despatch of June 1st from Philadelphia says: "At midnight last night the Brooks law went into operation, and over 4000 liquor stores were closed for good in this city. All the liquor dealers did a big business yesterday, and continued to sell and give liquor away until closed. This morning instead of having over 6000 saloons in Philadelphia, there are only 1840."

WHERE THE CROWS ROOST.

Scenes at a Rookery—Habits of the Sable Coated Bird—Night Time.

The first of these two rookeries is situated about two miles east of Syracuse, N. Y., in a woods known as "Tamarack swamp," and lying between the Central and West Shore tracks. The second is situated in Arlington cemetery, at Washington. Both rookeries are nearly equal in size, the one at Syracuse covering about fifteen acres and that at Arlington from ten to twelve.

A visit to these roosts in the daytime is interesting in the extreme, while another paid at dusk when the birds are coming in is even more so. Shortly after daybreak the vast throng of black bestirs itself; first a loud clamor betokens that the birds are awake, then with a shake or two they launch forth in quest of the morning's breakfast. Leaving singly, in pairs, by dozens and in flocks of hundreds, each group wings its way to where the previous day's meals were secured, or starts in search of new feeding grounds. After they are gone the roost is a sight indeed. On every hand the trees and ground beneath are literally covered with the excreta of the birds, having much the appearance of having been plentifully bespattered with whitewash. The air is foul with the odor mingled with that of the putrefying bodies of the dead ones that here and there dot the snow, while among the branches as well as on the ground are numbers of individuals too weak, emaciated or otherwise disabled to participate in the daily flight. These are readily approached, and are often to be caught in the hands.

A drive through the surrounding country will now give a glimpse of their daily life during winter. Anywhere and everywhere they may be seen, each in search of that which alone will sustain life, but with the usual frozen condition of the ground this, as a rule, is difficult to obtain. Up to about 3 o'clock the birds are busy feeding, and the average person would hardly believe that within an hour or even less these same birds will be miles away, and in company with tens of thousands of the same species. Having traced them through their daily wanderings, it is in order to visit the roost again at nightfall and w tch them come in. At the hour above mentioned they began to arrive either singly or in flocks, tarrying at times at some near at hand feeding grounds, but soon seeking the vicinity of the roost. Strangely enough, instead of repairing at once to their night's resting place, they gather in immense multitudes on the surrounding hills; coming as they do from all quarters of the country, the numbers increase until the fields, the trees and the fences are covered with them. Long after the sun has set they continued to arrive. The noise is deafening, and when at times they rise and circle about in the air it seems as if the heavens themselves were about to fall. As darkness begins to settle, first a few of the bolder ones enter the roost. These are followed by small bunches of fifty or so, and these in turn by other companies interspersed with stragglers. Suddenly, with a noise as of a hurricane, a vast host arises and makes a dive for the roost. These are closely followed by another, and still another, until finally the numbers on the hill sides begin to show some signs of thinning out.

As the darkness deepens, they come in any way; down they come pell mell, brushing past the face, almost flying against one, alighting on the first branch they strike against (for they are now almost unable to see, and it is amusing to see hundreds flopping about waiting for luck to throw a branch in their way), often within arm's reach. Every tree and branch seems packed with them, and still they continue to pour down, finding a roosting place somewhere and adding clamor to the deafening babel already existing. Finally all appear to have arrived, and are busy settling themselves for the night. Utter now but so much as a syllable, and the entire army with renewed cries, and in the direst confusion, takes wing and seeks another part of the woods, only to renew the performances should the operation be repeated. I have never as yet remained in a roost long enough to ascertain whether or not the birds became absolutely quiet.—E. M. Hasbrouck in Scientific American.

A project said to be much needed is the starting of American schools in Paris for the education of American girls under home influence. Girls educated in Paris become shy, helpless, and often awkward, like French girls, who always have everything planned and managed for them and are supposed to have no will or judgement of their own. It is becoming realized more and more that American girls should be educated to take a natural part in American society.

Boston has a most imperfect and unsatisfactory system of sewerage. The only drain that works with a regular flow is that of the taxpayers' money which comes from the city treasury under the skillful manipulations of a set of irresponsible members of the city government. These men are assessed a poll tax. They make a good thing out of their offices, and yet want to be paid salaries! Such is Boston under democratic rule, attained by the aid of mugwump free-trade votes.

To Save Life

Frequently requires prompt action; hour's delay waiting for the doctor may be attended with serious consequences, especially in cases of Croup, Pneumonia, and other throat and lung troubles. Hence, no family should be without a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has proved itself, in thousands of cases, the best Emergency Medicine ever discovered. It gives prompt relief and prepares the way for a thorough cure, which is certain to be effected by its continued use.

S. H. Latimer, M. D., Mt. Vernon, Ga., says: "I have found Ayer's Cherry Pectoral a perfect cure for Croup in all cases. I have known the worst cases relieved in a very short time by its use; and I advise all families to use it in sudden emergencies, for coughs, croup, &c."

A. J. Eidson, M. D., Middletown, Tenn., says: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral with the best effect in my practice. This wonderful preparation once saved my life. I had a constant cough, night sweats, was greatly reduced in flesh, and given up by my physician. One bottle and a half of the Pectoral cured me."

"I cannot say enough in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral," writes E. Bragdon, of Palestine, Texas, "believing as I do that, but for its use, I should long since have died."

OFFICIAL NOTICE!

— OF —

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co.

— FROM THE —

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we respectfully request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

30,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Silver-ware, Window Shades, Drapery, Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Stoves and Ranges, Feathers, Feather Pillows, Spreads, Blankers, Chamber Sets, Parlor Suits, Carpets, Lounges, Easy Chairs, Mattresses, Springs,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the

Furniture, Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET, PARLOR SUIT, Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. There are items worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time, We have invariably paid out the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We wish to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

KITCHEN RANGE, or a CHAMBER SET, or PARLOR SUIT, or CARPETS, WINDOW SHADES, DRAPERY CURTAINS,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of these Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell the same and shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. This notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store, Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

Respectfully, the Public's Ob't Servants,

THE ATKINSON HOUSE FURNISHING CO.,

Headquarters Cor. Pearl and Middle Streets, Portland, and Branches at Auburn, Rockland, Bangor and Biddeford, also Bar Harbor for a short time.

ISAAC C. ATKINSON, Gen. Manager.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT.

The treasurer of the Cotage Hospital would acknowledge with thanks the receipt of nineteen dollars and forty-four cents, being the proceeds of the base ball game on Memorial day by the Congress street and Market street clerks.

BASE BALL.

The Portsmouth club managers overstepped their agreement to only pay their men $650 a month. Their salary list is over a thousand. What's the use to play with such a club as that? Haverhill and Nashua want to throw them out of the league for breaking their agreement; Dover and Rochester should consent at once. Fun is fun, but when the Portsmouth people, who were so anxious to fix the $650 limit, are the first to break it, they should be taught a lesson. What's the use of putting a club that costs $650 a month against one that costs $1000? Leonard, that won't do.—Dover Democrat.

Squealing already, Dovers, are you? If it don't cost more than $650 a month to hire a nine that includes such players as Jordan, Brennard, Moriarity and Dunn, then we'll treat to a mess of clams dug from the flats of our base ball grounds.

The Dovers will play on the South street grounds this afternoon at four o'clock. They have been strengthened since Memorial day by the addition of three new players, and have secured a new battery in Dunn and Moriarity. Dunn caught for Manchester in '86 and '87; he is a remarkably good back stop and thrower. Moriarity is a left handed pitcher; he pitched for Savannah, Ga., in '86, upon one occasion letting the Detroits down for three hits; last season he was with Minneapolis, and played a few games the latter part of the season with Dover. The addition of this battery will prove a tower of strength to Dover. Carrigan, late of Easton, Pa., team, will play the out field; he is a good fielder, a heavy left handed batter, and a good base runner. O'Conner and Canavan will be the battery this afternoon for Potsmouth.

PERSONAL.

Miss A. E. Junkins of Newburyport, Mass., and Mrs. Amy F. Williams of San Francisco, Cal., are visiting the family of Carpenter Nathan H. Junkins, U. S. N., at Kittery.

Mr. Stephen Decatur went to New York last Thursday to be present at the interment of the remains of Major John Parsons in Woodlawn cemetery.

The Misses Foster of Richards avenue sailed from New York for Hamburg on Thursday last, in the Hamburg line steamship Hammonia.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner John J. Hanson, Stevens master, one of the Dover Navigation Co.'s vessels, arrived at this port on Friday from Norfolk, Va, with 954 tons of coal to J. Albert Walker.

Mr. Allison Phinney, late assistant janitor of the custom house building, on Friday morning took charge of the engine of the Isles of Shoals steamer Pinafore.

The U. S. S. Saratoga arrived at Newport, R. I., on Friday.

Captain Edgar R. Taylor of Boston has resigned his position as commander of the steamer Gate City of the Boston and Savannah line, and will shortly enter business. Captain Taylor was the youngest man in command of an ocean steamer sailing from Boston. On his last trip out his steamer was run down and considerably damaged by a big schooner, and on the return trip her cargo took fire.

DEDICATION OF ROSEMARY COTTAGE AT ELIOT.

"Rosemary Cottage" at Eliot, Me., was dedicated on Thursday afternoon last, the exercises commencing about two o'clock. There were fully 400 people present, including a number from this city, and some seventy from Boston, who came down in a special car. Mr. M. F. Keefe presided, and the occasion was one of great interest. The building is large and finely situated, and is a memorial gift from Mrs. Moses G. Farmer of Eliot for a summer home for "tired and weary mothers and their feeble children;" it is furnished throughout, and is a noble gift. The exercises were as follows:

Singing of Doxology;

Prayer, by Rev. Hugh Elder of Salem, Mass.;

Singing, "Lift thine eyes," trio;

Reading of scripture, Rev. W. F. Marshall;

Singing "Open the door for the children;"

Reading, by Rev. Henry Holmes, of letter from Rev. Josiah B. Clark;

Singing of hymn written by Mrs. Mary T. Webber;

Address by Rev. H. Elder;

Singing of hymn written by Mrs. Caroline A. Mason;

Address by Rev. P. A. Hanaford, (read by Mrs. Snell;)

Singing of hymn written by Miss Sophia L. Larkin;

Address by Charles Carleton Coffin;

Delivery of keys by Mrs. Moses G. Farmer;

Address of acceptance, by Hon. Arthur W. Tufts;

Prayer, by Rev. D. W. Waldron;

Singing of consecration hymn;

Address by Rev. D. W. Waldron;

"Offerings for Rosemary Cottage;"

Hymn, "Coronation;"

Benediction, by Rev. D. S. Hebbard.

When the offerings for the cottage were called for, the response was instant and liberal. One gentleman said he would give and put up a flagstaff; another said he would give a suitable flag, with name; others pledged themselves to supply settees, etc.; ladies gave their names for extra napkins, change linen, etc.; a South Berwick jeweller volunteered the gift of a hall clock; and in fact the entire throng seemed imbued with the most generous spirit.

After the exercises an excellent and abundant banquet, furnished by the local branch of "The King's Daughters," was served in tents on the lawn.

On or about June 13th forty-two children from the Baldwin Place Home for Little Wanderers, Boston, will occupy the cottage, and remain two weeks, when they will give place to another party from the same institution.

A DOVER POINT RUMOR.

A correspondent of the Dover Republican, writing from Dover point says:

It is a very unusual thing to see the Dover Point house closed at a time of year when formerly all has been bustle and activity preparatory to opening the hotel. The point never looked better than at present, and everyone who appreciates the natural beauties of the place will regret to know that there is no enterprising man in the house to open it this summer — and it is very doubtful if there will be.

It has been rumored—and we suppose there is as much truth in it as of rumor—that the Dover Point house site was purchased for a different purpose than it was thought to be; that it is the intention of a certain syndicate,—Messrs. Jones and Sinclair at the head—to erect here large whaves and coal and freight sheds, put in side tracks, and make it a receiving place, from whence freights may be shipped by rail to points north.

That such a thing might be done is reasonable to suppose. There is not room enough in Portsmouth to make the extensions necessary to the increase of general business, and the good depth of water and excellent railroad facilities here, would be favorable to such an enterprise. That it would make business lively on the point there is no doubt, but it would also destroy, completely, the natural charms which have made the Dover Point house resorted to by many, year after year.

The correspondent winds up by saying: "However, this is merely a rumor, and but little depen lence can be placed in it."

THE SPIRIT OF THE PAST.

The twilight hour descends upon the land,
And with a solemn moan the mighty deep
Rolls on the beach and lulls me into sleep:
And while I dream I feel a gentle hand
Upon my arm, and, coming from the strand,
A sweet, sad voice bids me to ever keep
My purpose true and adds, "Thou ye may reap
Ye first must sow; 'tis by divine command."

Then lo! as from a troubled sleep I wake,
A silent form I see, which from my gaze
With noiseless steps retreats and fadeth fast
Among the shadows where the white caps break
Upon the shore; and through the misty haze
I recognize the spirit of the Past.

—E. Almore Brown in Boston Advertiser.

Not a Modern Idea.

Records of building associations—that is, societies for enabling subscribers to build or purchase dwelling houses—date back as far as 1781 in Birmingham, England. The number and cost of houses built depended upon the number of shares owned by the subscriber. The rents of the houses were paid to the treasurer of the building association. Lands intended for building purposes were laid out in lots, bid for by subscribers, and let to them on long leases. Members paid monthly dues. A committee of management was elected annually. The number of building societies now existing in England is well on to 8,000, with funds and securities approaching £75,000,000.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

Practical Art for Girls.

Think of 500 girls painting egg shells! These shells are suspended from windows and mantels by silken threads or they are used as breakfast or German favors. It is alleged that decorative painting is more remunerative than any other branch of art and is at the present time more popular in refined society than piano playing or dancing. Another fad is embellishing the table china with portraits of the family and relatives. At one of the large art institutions I found that another branch of remunerative art was the designing of quaint and artistic costumes not alone for the stage, but for indoor occasions of fashionable persons.—Boston Post.

What a Prison Warden Says.

The great difficulty in the case of all well disposed ex-convicts would be removed if the system under which they are sentenced and discharged could be changed. If criminals were sent to the penitentiary under a system by which they would be kept there if found to be incorrigible, and thus permanently secluded from society, or if found corrigible released on parole, employment being provided for them in all cases before they were paroled, I am satisfied that a large majority could be thus saved to society and would become self supporting citizens in due time.—Chicago Times Interview.

Oysters at Feeding Time.

Oysters cannot be kept without a knowledge of their habits. They feed twice in a day of twenty-four hours, and then just at that stillness preceding the turn of the tide. At no other time, except when feeding, do they open their mouths. When taken out of the water they naturally attempt to feed at regular intervals, and as soon as their mouths are open the liquor is all lost, the air takes its place, and the oyster is covered with a thick coating of slime. This is the first stage of decomposition, after which the oyster is of no account.—Seattle (W. T.) Post-Intelligencer.

The French Soldier's Defects.

A French military writer, M. De Fletres, in an essay on the education of the French infantry, makes some very serious charges against the French soldier. The latter, he says in effect, has serious moral as well as physical defects; grossly abuses his officers when out of hearing, is careless and slovenly, has no heart for military service, and, when opportunity comes, conceals all trace of its insignia.—Scientific American.

Water Famine in England.

There is an alarming scarcity of water in many of the large towns of Great Britain, and Liverpool and Manchester are threatened with a water famine. In view of this state of things it is proposed to bring sea water to be used for baths, closets, watering streets, flushing sewers and extinguishing fires. The scheme meets with much favor.—Chicago Herald.

Birds for the Milliners.

The trade in birds for women's hats was so enormous last year that a single London dealer admitted that he sold 2,000,000 of small birds of every kind and color. At one auction in one week there were sold 3,000 birds of paradise, 6,000 Impeyan pheasants, 400,000 humming birds and other birds from North and South America, and 800,000 feathered skins from India.—New York Sun.

The American Thoroughbred.

Like his master, the America thoroughbred horse is fast becoming a distinct species. Like him, too, the best strains may come from his English prototype, but the air of the western world has toughened his muscle, stimulated his nerve and made him distinctive.—Judge Tourgee in "Black Ice."

Passed Asst. Engr. John A. Tobin is detached from the Swatara, and given three months sick leave.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

Distress After Eating

Sick Headache

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." The case of John Murphy vs. the Boston & Providence Railroad company, which was this week on trial for two days in the second session of the superior court at Boston, was withdrawn from the jury and settled. Mr. Murphy was one of the passengers on the train that went down with the Bussey bridge on the morning of March 14th, 1887, and was one of the most injured. Before the accident he was a strong and healthy man, a machinist, and he is now a helpless cripple. The damages claimed were $40,000, and it is understood that a settlement was effected for about $20,000.

In the history of the politics of this country there probably has never before been an instance where a convention has been called to nominate a candidate for president whom so many members of his party did not desire, as will be the case at the democratic convention at St. Louis.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS. The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture in these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all the great World's Industrial Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all GRAND & UPRIGHT others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

Uses of Electricity.

It is a comparatively short time since the hidden powers of electricity were brought to light, and thus it may be safely said that its possibilities have not yet been learned or dreamed of, yet how much we owe to it at the present time.

It gives us the brightest light, the highest temperature, the swiftest messenger, and the most potent chemical agent that we possess. It is used for curing the sick, it has been proposed as a substitute for the "cat," or even for the gallows. By its means the voice can be transmitted to distances infinitely beyond the reach of a speaking tube. It enables us to hear the footsteps of a fly, to detect base metal in a coin, or the presence of a bullet in the body. We can use it to separate the fine metallic particles from a powdered rock, to propel a boat, or drive a car. Energy from a water course can be carried to a distant workshop and be used to plate a spoon with silver, to copy an engraving, or to extract a metal from its ore. Finally, it has recently been proposed to utilize the same power for the killing of cattle, and for the treatment of sewage.

Will it stay here? If it did it would be the most potent energy on earth, yet its greatest feats, we believe, are yet to come, and the eyes of the world will open wider and wider as the brainy men of the nineteenth century guide the powers that once were but Jove's own.—Newburyport News.

GLYCEROLE!
A PRESERVATIVE OF LEATHER.

For Oiling and Dressing Boots, Shoes, Etc.

Ever since the now dispensable article of Shoe Dressing came into existence, it has been the source of constant trouble to parties using it, because it hardened and cracked the leather; to the dealer, because of the complaints of his customers. Conscientious Shoe Dealers have often dissuaded their patrons from using any Shoe Dressing whatever and advised the application of oil, as it is universally known that oil is the only preservative of leather, while all other substances harden, crack and destroy it.

It was claimed for most Dressings heretofore in use that they do not crack leather, but it has never before been claimed that an Oil Dressing could be produced, the composition of which was considered to be an impossibility. After years of patient work however, we have succeeded in solving the problem of producing an oil, which in addition to its softening and preserving qualities gives also an elegant lustre to leather goods.

Glycerole is a veritable oil and the only one in existence which answers the purpose of oiling, and at the same time, dressing leather. It is perfect in its composition, does not rub off or soil dresses or skirts, and imparts to worn goods a soft, oily lustre which positively preserves the leather and protects it from water.

We do not pretend that a single application of Glycerole will improve a shoe already dried and hardened by numerous cases of common shoe dressing, but we do warrant that all shoes oiled and dressed only with Glycerole will be positively improved in wearing quality, as the oil by penetrating into the pores of the leather will make it more supple and add to its durability.

THE LATEST DISCOVERY.

A Prominent Physician Reveals Some New and Startling Secrets.

"Do you know," said Dr. Bedlloch, of Boston, at the club, one evening recently, "what the starting point of most physical troubles is?"

"No, indeed," replied a circle of anxious enquirers, as they crowded about the doctor.

"Tea and coffee," answered the eminent physician.

There was a look of horror on the faces of his listeners. The doctor continued:

"Men, and women even more, drink tea and coffee constantly, and wonder why they feel dull and stupid, have headaches, a bad taste in the mouth, pains in the limbs and about the body and irregularity of the secretions. Nine cases out of ten these things are caused by too free a use of tea and coffee. These drinks clog the system, weaken the tissues and destroy the most important organs. Few men or women who indulge in tea and coffee regularly have clear urine, but on the contrary, sediment, scum and brick dust, all of which invariably mean coming disease or death."

"But what are we to do, Doctor? Shall we give up tea and coffee altogether?"

"No. I do not advise that, but regulate it. Keep the kidneys clear and active. There is nothing in the world so good for this as the well known and popular Hunt's Remedy. Any one who uses this medicine regularly can drink tea and coffee moderately without fear. The reason is that Hunt's Remedy flushes or washes out the kidneys, and keeps them free and healthy. Any number of prominent men and women can confirm what I say, among the number scores of doctors and ministers, Gen. Butler, Gen. Monroe and Miss Alcot."

It was plain that the warning and advice of the doctor had made a deep impression on his listeners, as it also should upon the millions of men and women who are shortening their lives by the use of these drinks.

FARMING IN SWITZERLAND.

But Work to Eat Every Foot of Available Ground—Primitive Implements.

From the extreme cold and bitter rigor of the climate one turns to the country in Switzerland. Arable land is very limited and commands $300 per acre, while the choice vineyard lands range from $1,500 to $2,000 per acre, every square foot of which is reckoned to produce annually two tuns of wine. From the lowlands three grass crops are obtained yearly, in May, July and October. Stock is not permitted to pasture in open fields, the grass being mown and fed to the animals throughout the summer, as an economy. This rapid grass growth is, aside from the constant fertilizing and extraordinary care in cultivation and draining, assisted by the moist climate, the average rainfall, including snow, being eighty inches every year—about double that of the United States.

Then the peasant must apply the highest order of intelligence and good management to secure productive results from his little farm. The haphazard guess work and go-as-you-please methods would soon bring him to starvation. He is an eminently conservative purchaser, his economy is discerning, and he does not take readily to new ideas that do not assure him a better result for his hard earned money. While the land is cut up into such small divisions that it has the cultivation of a garden, it is on too small a scale and labor is too cheap to justify any outlay in modern agricultural implements; for cutting, threshing and winnowing purposes the scythe, flail and winnowing basket are used; the scythe is apparently an exact counterpart of that which is seen in the hands of "Time" in the school primer; the plow would adorn an archæological collection, and instead of the harrow or cultivator after the ground is plowed, a number of women and children, armed with clubs, go over and pulverize the surface.

But the attention of the Swiss peasant is not so much directed to agriculture in the American sense as to the rearing of cattle and the produce of the dairy—tending kine and making cheese. No one fails to observe the affectionate care and gentleness with which the herdsman treats his animals, and their superior condition and kindly disposition bear ample testimony to the fact. In the spring it is a pretty sight to see the groups of cows with tinkling bells start for the mountains, where they will browse and shake their mellow bells upon the green Alps. The queen cow leads the procession; she wears a finer collar and larger bell than the others, and seems proudly conscious of the distinction she enjoys, and also of the way she is to go.—Minister Winchester in Courier-Journal.

For Over Three Months

My son suffered night and day with rheumatism; so much so that he was unable to feed himself. Tarrant's Sulphur Bitters cured him, and I am truly thankful to say that they are an honest medicine.—Mrs. W. H. Carleton, wife of Deacon Carleton, First Baptist church, Winchester Mass.

The Austrian government has abandoned its intention of renewing the anti-anarchist law, and will henceforth fight the anarchists by administrative decrees.

I have been afflicted with catarrh for twenty years. It became chronic and there was a constant dropping of mucous matter. It extended to my throat, causing hoarseness and great difficulty in speaking, indeed for years I was not able to speak more than thirty minutes, and often this with great difficulty. I also, to a great extent, lost the sense of hearing in the left ear, and of taste. By the use of Ely's Cream Balm all droppings of mucous has ceased and my voice and hearing has greatly improved.—Jas. W. Davidson, attorney at law, Monmouth, Ill.

It is believed that the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railway will default its interest in June on the general consolidated bonds.

In chronic diseases, medicines should be restoring, and not debilitating, in their action. The wonderful strengthening and curative effects, realized from the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, sustain the reputation of this remedy as the most popular blood purifier.

The Stiletto, the new torpedo boat, has been formally placed in commission by the government officials, and will hereafter be part of the United States navy.

A Great Battle

Is continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. A good reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla is the weapon with which to defend one's self, drive the desperate enemy from the field, and restore peace and bodily health for many years. Try this peculiar medicine.

The Prophet's Birthday in Algiers.

The "assaoui" assembled under a great olive, and formed a circle of about thirty musicians, most of whom played rhythmic and deafening music on large tambourines. There was a general call for a certain Mohammed, one of their regular half witted dancers and fanatics. He appeared, bareheaded and the upper part of his body almost naked. He crouched with the musicians, and began nodding, first with the measure of the music, then, with groans of "Allah! Allah! Mohammed!" he became half frantic, jumping to the center of the ring, his head swinging all the while as if tied on his shoulders with strings. As he sank to the ground from exhaustion his friends made several efforts to replace his dirty rags by a clean white gown, which they thought him justly entitled to, but it was all in vain; he fought against it, preferred his rags, and went away in them. An old man near us was also suddenly seized with such violent emotions that he fell, shaking and screaming to such an extent that his brethren, not wishing him, for some reason, to get up and dance, held him down, with their knees on his chest and legs, until the fury of his religious convictions had subsided.

This emotion seemed genuine, and we were assured that it was, although other parts of their religious services, or rather feats, appear to be accompanied with jugglery and deception. Several other members of their sect entered the circle moved by some inspiration to dance off their frenzy, one of them crying out for a red hot shovel, which he bent with a blow on his forehead, licked with his tongue, and bent again by slapping with the palm of his hand; he then turned his heel on it until his flesh burned like a horse's hoof being shod, giving out a similar odor. This performance ended, another asked for a cactus leaf and a piece of glass; these he bit into, devoured half the leaf with the long thorns, chewing and apparently swallowing the glass, and took his seat again in a swooning condition, moaning after his excitement. What gave a local character to the whole scene, where the thousands were packed in amphitheater round the howling assaoui, was the high pitched "You-you-you-you-you!" uttered by the women at intervals as the animated actions below progressed in interest and intensity.—F. A. Bridgman in Harper's Magazine.

Literature Makes the Man.

Yet the very points that have made the Light Brigade famous are the loss and the readiness—the sending of a cavalry command to ride "into the jaws of death," to ride to certain and inevitable slaughter, and the soldierly readiness to go where they were sent. Our men over and over did the same thing; did it, as the losses prove, in cases where the danger was greater and the ready courage equal; yet the trumpet of fame is filled with the name of the Light Brigade and our heroes are forgotten. This is the justice of glory, but a common incident enough.

An ancient once observed that other men had fought as well as Achilles, and wondered why the world always talked about him; and the answer was that the other men had no Homer. Our regiments were in fact rather worse off than to be merely without a Tennyson. For the component parts of the glory of the Light Brigade are a little fighting and a good deal of literature. The soldiers did their part there and here—the literary men did the rest for the Light Brigade. Our men fought for a nation that is practically indifferent to literature. England is a literary as well as a military nation. —New York Express.

Engineering Operation of Birds.

A New York paper speaks of a couple of orioles that have built a nest in a tree at Central park. In order that no animal able to climb a tree might reach their nest, they built their habitation at the extreme end of a light branch, and when the work was half done they saw that the little house was bending the branch so far toward the earth that when the house was full of young ones it would be so near the ground that dogs and cats might reach it.

Here is where the reasoning power showed itself. The birds sat on the branch studying their house for a time, and then flew off in search of a string. They found some twine in the park, and with it they united the too elastic boughs to a sturdy branch overhead, resuming their nest building after the string had been firmly woven. The branch can now sag only to the limits of this cleverly contrived stay, and will not bend far enough toward the earth to expose their young to danger from cats or other predatory animals. There are brains in that engineering operation.—Hall's Journal of Health.

To Keep Water Cool.

An excellent device for keeping the contents of the water jug cool is to make a sack of some strong, close stuff, large enough to make a space of two inches under and around the jug, which space is packed with sawdust. Put a string around the jug at the bottom. The length of this string, plus six inches, will be the proper measure of the sack at that point. In the same way the proper measure of the sack along the curve of the jug can be obtained. The bottom of the sack is cut by placing the jug on the cloth and cutting around, two and one-half inches from the jug. The sides of the sack are best made in four pieces. Sew these pieces to the bottom and together for two or three inches. Then pack in the sawdust as far as the pieces are sewed together, and make another sewing, etc. The sack must be sewed close around the handle and the lips of the jug. Water in this jug will be cool after an exposure of six hours to the hot sun.—American Agriculturist.

Lincoln's Faith in Grant.

He peremptorily refused to remove Gen. Grant from the command at Vicksburg at a time when the clamor was loudest for his dismissal on the ground that he would not fight. This was in the month of May, 1863. Lincoln said to Gen. Singleton, of Quincy, Ills., who is yet alive to confirm it: "Senators Wade, Henry Wilson and Grimes were the most infuriated men I ever saw. Even Elihu B. Washburne, who had done more towards Grant's elevation than any other man, and seemed so devoted to his fortunes, came to me and demanded his removal. Grant assures me," replied Lincoln, "that he will take Vicksburg by the 4th of July, and, by jing! (his usual oath) he shall have a chance. I have confidence in him as a great military genius, and I believe that he will do as he says. But I am the only friend he seems to have left." Lincoln also thus expressed himself shortly before his death: "If I had done as my Washington friends, who fight battles with their tongues at a safe distance from the enemy, would have had me do, Grant, who proved himself so great a captain, would never have been heard of again."—Ward H. Lamon.

SOME DOCTORS

honestly admit that they can't cure Rheumatism and Neuralgia. Others say they can but—don't. Athlophoros says nothing but—cures. That's the secret of its success. Years of trial have proved it to be a quick, safe, sure cure.

Concord, N. H., Sept. 3, 1887

In my own family Athlophoros was used as a last resort, the user having suffered from rheumatism for years and having been treated for the disease by different physicians in this State and Massachusetts without even temporary relief. Upon my recommendation some of people have used this remedy with the same results claimed for it. G. H. WILSON.

Dubuque, Iowa, Jan. 3, 1888.

Athlophoros has completely cured one of nervous headache, and I feel thankful for all the good it has done me.

Weary and Worn.

When the tired factory operative, the weary out-door laborer, the overtasked bookkeeper or clerk seeks a medical recompense for expenditure of bodily force, where shall he find it? Could the recorded experience of thousands of workers be voiced, the verdict would be that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters renews failing strength, stimulates the jaded mental powers to fresh activity, and relaxes undue nervous tension as nothing else does. Digestion, a regular habit of body, appetite and sleep are promoted by it, and it is an admirable auxiliary in the recovery of health by convalescents. A fastidious stomach is not offended by it, and to persons of both sexes in delicate health who occasionally feel the need of an efficient tonic, the whole range of the pharmacopœia and the catalogue of proprietary medicines does not present a more useful, safer or more decisive one. It is also incomparable for fever and ague, rheumatism and kidney troubles.

Mrs. Ella Donnaud Bently, vice president of the Louisiana press association, is scarcely thirty years of age. She is a wideawake, clever writer, and is very popular with the members of the newspaper fraternity throughout the state.

The Postmaster,

Winchester, Mass., says: I am personally acquainted with Mr. and Mrs. Carleton, and was astonished at the remarkable effects of your Sulphur Bitters in curing their son, and its large sale is undoubtedly due to the fact that it is an honest medicine. I know of many others who have been cured by its use, and I do not think too much can be said in its praise.—Yours truly, Geo. P. Brown, P. M.

A manifesto which is being circulated in Bucharest expresses gratitude to Russia as the liberator of Bulgaria, and denounces Prince Ferdinand as a usurper.

Lorenzo Mund, Providence, R. I., writes: "I contracted a severe cold which settled on my lungs, causing inflammation and distress. I had night sweats and fever for eight or nine days, lost my appetite, and friends said I was in consumption. After considerable doctoring, from which I received no benefit, I was advised to try Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam, and the result is my appetite is good, night sweats and fever have left me, am gaining in flesh and getting to feel like a new man."

The New Orleans Pelican says that "Louisana is a state in which free speech, free elections and a fair count are unknown." This is democratic testimony right from headquarters, and it agrees with the record.

After trying numerous so-called catarrh remedies and receiving no benefit I was finally induced to try Ely's Cream Balm, and after using one bottle I take great pleasure in recommending it to all sufferers from catarrh.—N. L. Gorton, with S. Gorton & Co., Gloucester, Mass.

I was a sufferer from catarrh for fifteen years with distressing pain over my eyes. The disease worked down on my lungs. I used Ely's Cream Balm with gratifying results. Am apparently cured.—Z. C. Warren, Rutland, Vt.

Delicate Children, Nursing

Mothers, overworked men and for all diseases where the tissues are wasting away from the inability to digest food, or from overwork; should take Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites. IN THE MOONLIGHT.

Why languish o'er the youth, boys, that's flowing fast away?
Come, pass the wine and walnuts until the dawn of day.
We'll sing of youthful love, boys, the bliss that we did know
As we kissed the lips of maidens in the moonlight O
In the moonlight O, in the moonlight O:
Kissed the luring lips of maidens in the moonlight O

We'd fiddled and we'd danced, boys—pray was there any harm
In pressing velvet cheeks when the boyish blood was warm?
'Twas in the summer evening, where the leaves did thickly grow,
That we kissed the laughing maidens in the moonlight O!
In the moonlight O, in the moonlight O!
Kissed the luscious lips of maidens in the moonlight O

Live and love while yet you may, boys; old fogies may repent
Of youthful pranks and kisses—bah! But if the girls consent
And lean their longing cheeks to ours, I'd like for you to show
Why we shouldn't kiss the maidens in the moonlight O!
In the moonlight O, in the moonlight O!
Kiss the juicy lips of maidens in the moonlight O!

E PLURIBUS UNUM.

HILLSBOURN PLACE, Feb. 7.

DEAR JACK—The fur coat is a pronounced success. I saw you today when I was driving, and was forcibly reminded of Solomon in his glory. Have you forgotten your friends of old in their clothes also of old? One would think so, as it's been ten days since you were here.

The rest of the family are going to the Porters to-night, but I shall stay at home and console myself with Beethoven, Sidney Lanier and you, if you'll come, for I have something to show you. A woman's head, painted from a photograph, which I finished only yesterday. It isn't bad. Affectionately, CARA.

THE CLUB, Feb. 7, '88.

DEAR CARA—Yours just received. It seems almost unnecessary to tell you how glad I shall be to come. Devotedly, JACK.

"It isn't," says Cara a few hours later, as she pushes the ottoman to an easier distance, and turns a beautiful, fire flushed face toward Jack, "it isn't that this winter has been much worse than the other two, but I've been thinking, and as it's a luxury I don't often allow myself, I have mental dyspepsia as a result."

"Mental dyspepsia!" says Jack scornfully; "it's the result of sitting out all the square dances with Willoughby in that draughty conservatory of the Marston's."

"I refuse to understand," says Cara, smiling.

"You can't! Your intellect won't allow you."

"Speaking of intellect," viciously, "somehow makes me think of your friend, Miss Marston. How is she?"

"I don't know why it should. She's well."

"Do you intend to please your father and marry her?"

"I don't know, Cara. If the worst comes to the worst, I suppose I shall have to."

"I should think that would be an exact statement of the case—the worst coming to the worst."

"Don't be any more severe than you can help," says Jack, laughing. "You don't know what it is to be poor."

"I almost wish I did," Cara answers; "I might then have amounted to something as an artist."

"You need hardly wish that, for, as it is, you are the best amateur"——

"That's it," Cara breaks in impatiently. "Amateur, amateur, always amateur! I want to be an artist. Of late I have had thoughts of giving my money to found a home for other weak-minded women, and living in Paris on ten sous a day and the divine afflatus; only, as Hawthorne says: "The great obstacle to being heroic is the doubt whether one may not be going to prove one's self a fool.'"

"One doesn't like to be too precipitate after a remark of that kind," says Frank, meditatively, after a little pause, during which Cara has risen and seated herself at the piano, where she is lazily striking minor chords.

"Is that what has kept you from being too precipitate" Jack, what makes you so lazy?"

"Lack of incentive. Don't scorn."

"I wish I could make you feel your possibilities for yourself as I feel them for you."

"I asked you to try once and you refused." Jack laughs when he says it, but try as he will his voice falters as he speaks.

Cara blushes, and then says: "If we hadn't outlived a great deal of the nonsense of our lives, we could not be the thoroughly good friends we are now. Come and let me introduce you to a woman who, I think, is worth a man's love. She's over in the library. I remember your dislike to climbing and had her brought down."

Jack offers her his arm, and together they walk the whole length of the drawing room, across the hall to the library, the greater part of which is in shadow, the one bright light being directly over the picture.

Only a picture of a woman's head and the curve to the shoulders; ruddy chestnut hair that curls mistily around a face in which sweetness and firmness are strangely intermingled; great trised gray eyes—eyes with all the poetry and passion of Cabanel's Venus; a clear, almost delicately colorless skin, save for a warmth in mouth and cheek; and yet, with all the yielding beauty of womanhood, there is an intellectual vigor and strength in the face which one seldom sees save in the faces of men who have "suffered and been strong."

"It is by far the best thing you have ever done," says Jack, after a few moments of admiring silence. "May I see the photograph?"

"It's behind the Mona Lisa; not a very good one, but the best I could get."

"I should say it wasn't a very good one. It must have been done by some amateur photographer, judging from the finish. But, Cara, how much the eyes here are like your own!"

"They tell me so. Ah! Jack, I regret to see that you are regarding her more as a woman than as an artistic production."

"I'm afraid I am. Do you know her well? Why have I never seen her?"

"Now," says Cara, "you have made me jealous, and, like a wise woman, I night the five members of our art class are coming with Herr Blum to my box to hear Bernhardt. We will come to a little supper; you will sing us some Schubert. Eugenie will play us the Apassionata; you will meet your ideal; we will persuade ourselves that 'every loss has a gain to match,' and forget"—"how miserable we shall feel in the morning," Jack finishes for her.

"Pessimist!" says Cara, smiling; "will you come?"

"Do I ever refuse an invitation from you?" as he rises preparatory to taking his leave.

"Then it is settled. If you care to you may take the photograph with you."

"Thank you," he says, slipping it into the pocket of his great coat.

"Now I am going back to the bread and butter part of existence. There's something almost dreary in the persistency with which one and one are two, isn't there?"

"There have been cases"—what a coquette the girl is!—"there have been cases where one and one made one."

He has taken her hand to say good night, as she speaks, and a passionate light comes into his eyes at her words. "Ah, Cara," he says impulsively, "if it only thought"——

"Don't think," she answers, "consult the proper mathematical authorities."

On Thursday night Jack, having made a very careful toilet and mislaid everything with a cheerful sense of the entire responsibility of Betty, the chambermaid, takes a last look at the photograph which occupies the place of honor over his dressing case, before setting out to meet the original. "Something will probably have happened to keep her at home—or, something," he soliloquizes as he leaves the house.

It is the middle of the first act when he reaches the box. Cara smiles as he enters. The rest of the party are completely absorbed, but he can see that she is there. Her back is toward him, but surely only one woman could have hair like that, and wear black lace the way she does. Jack suddenly remembers his ideal costume for a woman has always been made of black lace.

And Cara? Well, Cara is a very beautiful woman, but then she could never give much love to any one, and what emotional gymnastics she would require of the man to whom she was married!

As the curtain falls the orchestra begins "Weber's Last," and Cara motions him toward her. "Eugenie," she says, leaning forward. "Eugenie, let me present my friend"—— Jack doesn't hear the rest, for the lady turns and he sees a fascinatingly ugly woman with a delightful directness of gaze, who acknowledges the introduction in the middle of a remark which she is making to Lieut. Willoughby. Jack glances appealingly at Cara, who is rather suspiciously engaged in a leisurely survey of the house through her glasses.

"There's Mrs. Dunbar," says Cara's aunt, leaning forward for a better view. "She has succeeded in engaging her daughter in the army."

"Did I hear you say," laughs Cara, "that her dearest wish is accomplished?"

"No," says Mrs. Lorrimer. "One doesn't say those things, my dear."

"Let us consider, then," says Cara, demurely, "that no one has spoken."

"I have been having something of that sensation all the evening," says the lieutenant. "Bernhardt's French must be provincial; I can't understand her."

There is a little laugh, in the midst of which Jack pauses abruptly; for in Mlle. Le Croix's face, as she smiles, he suddenly sees, almost ghostlike, an expression of the photograph. It is gone before he can be certain, and she has turned from him to Mrs. Lorrimer, who is saying plaintively: "I wish Bernhardt would play in English."

"If some one would suggest it to her," says Jack, "she would probably sit up late one night and learn the language."

"Did I ever tell you," says Eugenie, turning so that Jack again has a full view of her face, "of an experience I had when I was first learning your English? No? I was just at the point where I found for myself that you wrote one language and spoke another, when one evening I had the good fortune to meet Gen. Lawson. You know his reputation as a conversationalist, and I wished to convey to him an idea of the pleasure which I felt at meeting him, so I said impressively, in broken English, 'I ám glad to meet you, general, as I ám making a special study of American idiots.' His composure was superb. He never faltered for a moment. His face had all the calm of one eternal Sabbath, as he answered, suavely: 'This is the only time in life, mademoiselle, when I feel that I can fully justify a prejudged opinion.'"

Jack has watched her while she speaks, and again sees the subtle something that reminds him of the picture. A curve to the cheek, an expression in the eye, an indefinite something surely suggests it to him, and yet, as Cara sat listening with a half smile on her lips, she might herself have been the theme of which the painting was the finished harmony.

"If this thing keeps up," said Jack, "my mind will be a mosaic. I shall speak to Cara about it when I get an opportunity." But he doesn't get an opportunity, for just then Cara announces, "Ah! there is Helen, now, Eugenie, and our cousin is with her."

He takes a long breath and feels himself a sane man again. Here, at last, is a solution of the problem. A mutual cousin is the original; nothing more likely. He returns Cara's glance in a manner which intimates that he understands the situation at last, and awaits with interest the entrance of the two ladies. There is a little rustle just outside the box, a man's voice heard in a tone of remonstrance, a woman's low and self contained, and the lady herself stands at the door of the box. A woman in the prime of life, with that repose of manner which comes after one has found that things are neither white nor black, but only neutral tint, and has ceased expecting much—one whose social angles have been rounded into curves and who is seldom found holding those unsatisfactory opinions which we denominate "opposite."

"Mrs. Carter," says Cara.

"Delighted," murmurs Jack.

"Helen will be here in a few minutes. She stopped at the Marstons' box to settle about some engagement with them. Dick will bring her over here."

"She seems to have a great many en-

For The NERVOUS The DEBILITATED The AGED.

Inherited Diseases.

In the realm of disease the facts of inheritance are most numerous and are daily accumulating. Here, alas, they become terrible, fateful and overwhelming. No fact of nature is more pregnant with awful meaning than the fact of the inheritance of disease. It meets the physician on his daily rounds, paralyzing his art and filling him with dismay. The legend of the ancient Greeks pictures the Furies as pursuing families from generation to generation, rendering them desolate. The Furies still ply their work of terror and death, but they are not now clothed in the garb of superstition, but appear in the more intelligible but no less awful form of hereditary disease.

Modern science, which has illuminated so many dark corners of nature, has shed a new light on the ominous words of the Scriptures, "The sins of the fathers shall be visited upon the children unto the third and fourth generation." Instances of hereditary disease abound. Fifty per cent. of cases of consumption, that fearful destroyer of families, of cancer and scrofula, run in families through inheritance. Insanity is hereditary in a marked degree, but, fortunately, like many other hereditary diseases, tends to wear itself out, the stock becoming extinct. A distinguished scientist truly says: "No organ or texture of the body is exempt from the chance of being the subject of hereditary disease." Probably more chronic diseases, which permanently modify the structure and functions of the body, are more or less liable to be inherited. The important and far-reaching practical deductions from such facts—affecting so powerfully the happiness of individuals and families and the collective welfare of the nation—are obvious to reflecting minds, and the best means for preventing or curing these diseases is a subject of intense interest to all. Fortunately nature has provided a remedy, which experience has attested as infallible, and the remedy is the world-famous Swift's Specific, a pure vegetable compound—nature's antidote for all blood poisons. To the afflicted it is a blessing of inestimable value. An interesting treatise on "Blood and Skin Diseases" will be mailed free by addressing THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga.

Gen. Sheridan.

The national house on Friday, shortly after one o'clock, passed the senate bill reviving the office of general of the army. Before three o'clock President Cleveland had signed the bill, and appointed Philip H. Sheridan to the new rank; the senate had confirmed the nomination, and the commission had been signed and sealed, and handed to Gen. Sheridan. The general took the oath of office at once, and issued a general order appointing Major Michael V. Sheridan, Capt. Stanford P. Kellogg and Capt. Blunt, as sides-de-camp on his staff, with the rank of colonel.

A bulletin issued by the physicians at twelve o'clock Saturday night reported the general as sleeping quietly, with but little cough, and no fever.

But Mecklem Has a Vote.

Says the Traveller of the 1st inst.: "Right on the heels of the last epistle of the mugwumps on civil service reform comes the news that Mr. Cleveland's guillotine is at work on the scant remnant of old officials. This time it is the head of a female that is severed from the public force. Miss Berard, a lady of sixty years, was post-mistress at West Point. The position had been in the family for fifty years, and she was from a child familiar with its duties. She has served the nation with great acceptance, and had for personal friends Generals Scott, McClellan, Grant, Hancock, Burnside, beside many living officers. Her father was the tutor of General Sheridan, and she has always been told that she would be continued in the place she had so well filled. But while Sheridan lies in a struggle between life and death, the daughter of his old tutor is politically slaughtered, to make way for George Mecklem, a stranger to West Point. Thus, day by day, as this administration approaches the presidential election, we have forcibly illustrated the shining truth, that "Public office is a public trust."

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT.

The United States circuit court will be in session on Wednesday, when his honor Horace Gray, associate justice of the supreme court of the United States, will be in court with the circuit judge. Judge Colt has ordered the grand jury to re-assemble on the 26th inst. at ten o'clock A. M.

Workmen were engaged the latter part of last week in removing the portion of the old foundry on Mechanic street which was crushed by the weight of snow last winter, and boarding up the opening thus made. The dimensions of the old building are much curtailed, but it will be better able than before to stand the snows of another winter. Of what use it is to be put to we are not informed.

The first response to the invitation to be present at the dedication of the soldiers' monument was received last week, from Charles W. Sawyer Post, G. A. R., of Dover.

Hon. B. B. Smalley of Vermont did not go to St. Louis with Frank Jones last week. The reason was not that the collector of the port of Burlington was afraid of violating any of the laws concerning civil service, but because ill health prevented his being at the convention to endorse the free-trade platform.

The York Beach water works are now under way, and the beach will be supplied with pure water from an artesian well, now flowing through a six-inch tubing fifty-one feet out from a solid ledge. This well was put down by H. E. Evans at Evanston. The water is very cold, and clear as crystal. It will be pumped to a tank elevated forty feet on the highest point of land at the bluff, and can be carried with a good head to York harbor. The tower for the tank is now being raised, and the tank will be furnished and put in place by Lowell parties, and will have a capacity of 25,000 gallons. The main pipe will be four inches in diameter, and about three miles are required to be used, the laying of which will be under the charge of Mr. Evans. Already the proprietors of the Ocean, Rockaway and Atlantic hotels are making arrangements to put it in their houses, and a large number of cottages have subscribed. It is said that Massachusetts parties have sent a skillful hydraulic engineer to York to look at the plant, with a view of getting up a stock company.

The Providence line of steamers after to-day are to run in connection with a steamboat train from Boston, as was the case many years ago. The boats will leave New York at 5:30 P. M. on week days, and the trains for Boston will leave Providence at six A. M., reaching Boston at 7:15. The trains leave the Providence station in Boston at 6:30 P. M. This will be a favorite summer route to New York.

Mothers.

There are upon the skin of every human being, child and adult alike, 2,300,000 pores. Through these pores in the form insensible perspiration, is expelled more than one-quarter of the nourishment taken into the system. The importance of keeping open these perspiration valves upon a child's body, is second only to that of promptly digesting the food eaten. It was to open the pores of the skin and to assimilate the food that Dr. Pitcher formulated Castoria. Loose bowels, constipation, fevers and eruptions which are so constant among infants and children, and which kill one-third of all children before they are five years old, arise principally from these two causes. It is from the wonderful results attended upon the use of Castoria in regulating the stomachs and bowels and keeping open the pores of the skin, that Castoria acquired its world wide reputation. With plenty of water for the lungs and Castoria to assimilate the food, there need be no uncounted for sickness among children. Castoria is a vegetable prescription without morphine or other narcotic property. Thirty years extensive use has given it a history never attained by another medicine.

To Save Life

Frequently requires prompt action. An hour's delay waiting for the doctor may be attended with serious consequences, especially in cases of Croup, Pneumonia, and other throat and lung troubles. Hence, no family should be without a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has proved itself, in thousands of cases, the best Emergency Medicine ever discovered. It gives prompt relief and prepares the way for a thorough cure, which is certain to be effected by its continued use.

S. H. Latimer, M. D., Mt. Vernon, Ga., says: "I have found Ayer's Cherry Pectoral a perfect cure for Croup in all cases. I have known the worst cases relieved in a very short time by its use; and I advise all families to use it in sudden emergencies, for coughs, croup, &c."

A. J. Eidson, M. D., Middletown, Tenn., says: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral with the best effect in my practice. This wonderful preparation once saved my life. I had a constant cough, night sweats, was greatly reduced in flesh, and given up by my physician. One bottle and a half of the Pectoral cured me."

"I cannot say enough in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral," writes E. Bragdon, of Palestine, Texas, "believing as I do that, but for its use, I should long since have died."

OFFICIAL NOTICE!

— OF —

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co.

— FROM THE —

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we respectfully request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

30,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Silver-ware,
Window Shades,
Drapery,
Dinner Sets,
Toilet Sets,
Stoves and Ranges,
Feathers,
Feather Pillows,
Spreads, Blankers,
Chamber Sets,
Parlor Suits,
Carpets,
Lounges,
Easy Chairs,
Mattresses,
Springs,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the Furniture,

Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET,
PARLOR SUIT,
Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. There are items worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time, We have invariably paid out the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We wish to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

KITCHEN RANGE, or a CHAMBER SET, or PARLOR SUIT, or CARPETS, WINDOW SHADES, DRAPERY CURTAINS,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of these Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell the same and shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. This notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store, Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

Respectfully, the Public's Ob't Servants,

THE VERDICT.

The verdict of the coroner's jury in the case of Henry T. Whitehouse was signed by the jurors and coroner at 9:20 o'clock Saturday morning, and immediately furnished to the press. It is as follows:

The State of New Hampshire, Rockingham, ss.

An inquisition taken at Portsmouth in said county, the 28th day of May in the year 1888 before Samuel C. Whittier, one of the coroners of said county, upon the view of the body of Henry T. Whitehouse there lying dead, by the oaths of Jerome C. Butler and of Charles D. Hanscom and John Knowlton, all respectable persons, who being sworn and charged to enquire for the state, when, how, and by what means the said Whitehouse came to his death, upon their oath do say that the said Henry T. Whitehouse came to his death from the effects of a cut across the throat which severed the arteries and veins of the neck, thereby causing him to bleed to death, assisted by heavy blows on the head, said blows being so severe as to fracture his skull in several places and thereby assisting in producing death, the blows on the head having been made by some blunt instrument such as a hammer or hatchet. The cut across the throat was produced by a sharp knife, the blow being so forcible as to penetrate through all of the soft tissues and to penetrate to the extent of one-third of an inch into the spinal column between the bones of the neck. So the jurors aforesaid, upon their oaths aforesaid, do say that these blows and cuts were given by James Palmer. That the said James Palmer in manner and form aforesaid, then and there of his malace aforethought, did kill and murder against the peace and dignity of the state, and contrary to the will of the said Henry T. Whitehouse.

In witness whereof the said jurors have hereunto set their hands, the day and year first above written.

JEROME C. BUTLER, CHARLES D. HANSCOM, JOHN KNOWLTON, } Jurors.

In witness of the above written the said coroner hath hereto set his hand and seal, the same day and year.

S. C. WHITTIER, Coroner.

Coroner Whittier publishes a card in which he expresses his high sense of approval of the patience and attention of the members of the jury, which he says proved "equal to an occasion of extraordinary emergency, and their intelligent exercise of the juror's function has afforded me the highest satisfaction and pleasure." The coroner warmly compliments Sheriff Coffin, City Marshal Rowe, Assistant Marshals Hurley and Peverly, and Capt. Hobbs of the night watch, for their work in the case, and concludes as follows: "I am especially indebted to County Solicitor Samuel W. Emery, whose professional assistance has been invaluable. His well known singleness of purpose in the interest of law and order was never more pertinently displayed, and the general public will share with me a grateful appreciation of his most able service in this lengthy and exciting examination."

AN UNPLEASANT EXPERIENCE.

Capt. John Glenn of York, and Capt. Bert Baker, who was master of the schooner Mystery when she went on the rocks at Jerry's point, Newcastle, last spring, and became a total wreck with the loss of one of her crew, had an unpleasant and hazardous experience on Friday night of last week. They are members of the crew of the schooner Georgia A. Hagan, Capt. Nathan White of Newcastle master, and while tending trawls on Jeffries' ledge, Friday, lost their vessel in a dense fog which prevailed. After becoming satisfied that there was no hope of finding their own vessel or being picked up by any other, they shaped a course for York harbor, thirty-five miles away, and after pulling all night arrived there Saturday morning, safe but tired. They must have been more prudent than fishermen usually are, and had a compass in the dory, or else they were mighty lucky in making a landfall.

MAN HURT.

About half-past one o'clock Sunday morning Yardmaster Jones of the Boston & Maine railroad station, and Car Inspectors Glines and Cate, found a man named Frank J. Lyons in the depot, somewhat intoxicated, and with one leg evidently badly injured. He was taken to the Cottage Hospital and Dr. Folsom called, who found the leg to be broken and ankle dislocated. Lyons is a book agent for P. F. Collier, of No. 106 Sudbury street, Boston, and lives in East Boston. There are circumstances connected with the case which will no doubt be investigated by the city marshal, as they should be.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

The auction sale of the groceries in the Boyle & Norton store on Penhallow street was commenced by Sheriff Coffin on Saturday, and was continued to this forenoon at eleven o'clock. The sale will be continued until everything is sold.

BASE BALL.

"Are you there, Moriarty?" He was.

The Portsmouth club received their second defeat Saturday afternoon, at the hands of the Dover club, on the home grounds. The Dovers presented their new pitcher, Moriarty, and he did excellent work, Canavan being the only Portsmouth player who was able to find the bill, he being credited with three base hits, with a total of five bases, and making the only runs for the home team, two in number, while the Dovers scored three, in eight innings. O'Connor and Kitteredge were the battery for Portsmouth. The following is the score:

A despatch from Dover, on the evening of the 2d inst., says: "A glorious victory at Portsmouth, and the town is jubilant. Immediately after the game was over the manager telephoned home the result. The team went down in teams, and when they arrived at Pine, about three-quarters of a mile from the city hall, they found a courier waiting to tell them to stay there until further orders. In the meantime the Dover cornet band had been engaged, and they marched the players down town to the New Hampshire house for supper. The streets were decorated with flags, and fireworks and red fire was burned all along the route. The boys may feel proud of their victory, and it was blood from start to finish, and they did not make an error outside the battery. Moriarty pitched a great game; the only man that hit him was Canavan, and he received support that he should feel proud and thankful for."

"HERMINIE."

"Herminie; or, the Cross of Gold," will be produced at Music hall this evening by William Redmund and Mrs. Thomas Barry, and their strong supporting company. The play was written by Mr. Redmund, who in conjunction with John Douglass wrote the first version of "Michael Strogoff," which had so long a run. The story of "Herminie" is that of a sergeant in the French army under Bonaparte, and Herminie, his wife, a vivandiere in the same regiment. They are separated by capture on the part of the husband, and on the part of the wife through the machinations of a thief, and are brought together after suffering numerous trials and tribulations, and when the former sergeant has risen to a general's rank and count's estate. Of the histrionic ability of Mr. Redmund and Mrs. Barry nothing need be said; both are thoroughly known to Portsmouth theatre goers. Tickets at Goodrich's; see advertisement.

THE HORSE RAILROAD.

Wm. E. Pearson of Boston, one of the parties in interest, was in this city last Friday, and accompanied by officials of the Portsmouth Horse Railroad Co., picked out the following route: Starting from the foot of Daniel street, through Congress and Islington streets to the Creek, back through Cass, Middle, Cabot, Islington, Bridge, Deer and Vaughan streets to a junction with the line on Congress street. Branches were also located as follows: From Daniel street through Mulberry, State, Washington and Pleasant streets, and Newcastle avenue, to Newcastle bridge; from Market square through Pleasant and State streets to a junction at Washington street; and from Market square to Portsmouth bridge. A hearing on the location of the proposed tracks will be had at the court house on Tuesday of next week, June 12th, and all who have anything to advance either for or against the proposed lines should be present at that time, and not wait until complaint of construction or non-construction is unavailing.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

Distress After Eating

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." GEORGE A. FAGE, Watertown, Mass.

After passing through the principal streets the procession will proceed to the town hall, where at 10:45 literary exercises will begin, including prayer, readings, and an oration by Ex-Governor Charles H. MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of cabinet organs, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

$22 TO $900.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all GRAND & UPRIGHT pianos, others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and sustainment of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

GLYCEROLE!

A PRESERVATIVE OF LEATHER.

For Oiling and Dressing Boots, Shoes, Etc.

Ever since the now dispensable article of Shoe Dressing came into existence, it has been the source of constant trouble to parties using it, because it hardened and cracked the leather; to the dealer, because of the complaints of his customers. Conscientious Shoe Dealers have often dissuaded their patrons from using any Shoe Dressing whatever and advised the application of oil, as it is universally known that oil is the only preservative of leather, while all other substances harden, crack and destroy it.

It was claimed for most Dressings heretofore in use that they do not crack leather, but it has never before been claimed that an Oil Dressing could be produced, the composition of which was considered to be an impossibility. After years of patient work however, we have succeeded in solving the problem of producing an oil, which in addition to its softening and preserving qualities gives also an elegant lustre to leather goods.

Glycerole is a veritable oil and the only one in existence which answers the purpose of oiling, and at the same time, dressing leather. It is perfect in its composition, does not rub off or soil dresses or skirts, and imparts to worn goods a soft, oily lustre which positively preserves the leather and protects it from water.

We do not pretend that a single application of Glycerole will improve a shoe already dried and hardened by numerous coats of common shoe dressing, but we do warrant that all shoes oiled and dressed only with Glycerole will be positively improved in wearing quality, as this oil by penetrating into the pores of the leather will make it more supple and add to its durability.

A SCIENTIST'S WARNING.

Extracts From a Remarkable Lecture Delivered by Dr. R. E. Hammond, Before the National Scientist's Convention.

"We are startled constantly by the sudden death of some man who seemed the picture of health. He thought he was well. He had felt strange pains shooting through his body, but as they did not remain, he forgot them. His head pained him periodically, he was somewhat paler than common and unaccountably tired, but he felt comparatively well and vigorous. And yet, he suddenly died! It is a shame to our boasted civilization."

"Look at the list of women who die in childbirth, and why is it? Simply because their maternal organs have been so weakened by the most terrible of diseases that they cannot withstand the fearful, sudden strain that is brought to bear upon them. How many women escape monthly agonies? And yet nature never intended that pain or inconvenience should attend the operation of her natural laws. The solemn and terrible fact is, that men and women drag along, die, and are buried, and their friends and the doctors say heart disease, apoplexy, pneumonia, congestion, convulsions, when the cause lay far back of all these things. The truth is that weakened kidneys are the cause of most of our troubles. The great question, therefore, is 'How shall I preserve my kidneys, or, if diseased, how can they be restored?' I have seen numbers of cases and learned from unquestionable sources of many others, where the preparation, Hunt's Remedy, has been almost remarkable in its results. I use it freely among my patients, and shall continue to do so. It is a wonderful and invaluable remedy."

The remarks of the learned doctor should be carefully considered, and acted upon by all who desire long life, and freedom from pain and the danger of sudden death.

A SCIENTIST'S WARNING.

gagements with them of late," says Miss Le Croix.

"Only one—with Dick—I think," laughs Mrs. Carter. "Bless their innocent hearts, these children! They think I don't see."

"You have missed the best act of the play on account of that 'At Home,'" says Cara.

"I know it," the lady responds. "I am a martyr to my friends; but Herr Blum said something almost witty, and that consoled me. He says," she continues, turning to Jack, "that Bernhardt's full face looks like a profile."

"It was Heine who said it first," says Herr Blum.

"He always attributes everything he says to some one else. It relieves him of so much responsibility," Mrs. Carter explains amiably to Jack. And, as she does so, with a smiling, strong, restful face, Jack grasps nervously at the chair on which he sits, as if to steady himself, for incongruous and inexplicable as it may seem, she also reminds him of that picture. Not in the lines of the face, certainly, but rather in its entirety, its strength, its repose, its —

"Well, the worst has come," thinks he, rising with determination. "While the last faint spark of intelligence remains I will make my way home. If I don't go soon I shall have to be taken."

"You are not going?" says Cara. "Not before Helen comes, anyhow. See! She is here now."

Jack takes one look at the girl who enters, and, turning to Cara, says:

"My dear girl, I am losing either my brains or my eyesight."

"It must be your eyesight," laughs Cara.

"Oh!" says Jack, desperately; "you don't understand. I see resemblances to that pictured face in sections everywhere. In you, in Miss Le Croix, in this Helen, and just now I notice that even Herr Blum looks a little like it."

"You have the photograph on your brain," answers Cara, so that Eugenie hears.

"Speaking of photographs," says she, "makes me think of a new theory of Herr Blum. He thinks that if we could get a composite photograph of people's brains, as we can of their faces, it would be an easy way of getting the average intelligence."

"A composite photograph!" Jack caught at the phrase with frantic hope. "A composite photograph is?"——

"A composite photograph," echoes the professor, settling himself to be instructive, "is obtained by exposing different photographs of the same size, for the same time, on the same sensitized plate. These ladies were taken in this way recently, and it made a beautiful face. How could it do other?" he added, simply enough.

"Apropos of your explanation, professor," says Jack, "I have a story to tell of a friend of mine who was the victim of an unparalleled hoax."

"Mrs. ——," said Cara, rising, "is beckoning to me, and I think I shall go and speak to her for a minute, if you'll excuse me. Will you come, lieutenant?"

"You had better stay and defend yourself," says Jack, "for I'm going to tell."

"I shall need no defense here, I am sure," she says, laughing softly. "Au revoir!"

Three weeks after, as Jack and Cara stand before the newly framed picture, he says: "It was rather shabby of you to do it, but I forgive you, and am just as much in love with it as ever."

"That's discouraging," says Cara. "You can't marry them all."

"Unfortunately, no. Utah is remote. I might do it in turn. Who sat first?"

"I refuse to tell you," says Cara; but she colors slightly as she speaks.

"Your eyes have told me already," he answers, and there, for a minute, they regard each other steadily. She has so much and he so little! She has refused him once before, and yet—of late, he has almost dared to hope——

"Do you think, Cara—that you ever could love"—— His eyes finished the sentence for him, and he reaches his hands toward her with infinite longing.

"I think," she says, smiling a little as she lays her hands in his, "that I might—if I were sufficiently urged." And then, with one of those passionate veerings which he knows so well: "I think I have always loved you, Jack."

Ten days later she receives a note, over which she smiles, as it has been but a few hours since he has left her:

To Mrs. Jack Hannaford (that will be):

When did you say that you would help form that composite which will make you Madame Me? I want to see a statement of the fact in your own writing. Yours, JACK.

To which she answers:

You spoke of next month when you were here. Let it be the 12th. With all my love and sympathy for the terrible future before you.

Lovingly, CARA.

Belladonna for the Eyes.

"Did you notice that girl's eyes?" asked a doctor in a large gathering in this city. The reporter addressed had not, but a few minutes later, when he met her, he noticed their unusual luster. "It's belladonna," said the M. D., "and you can have no idea of the extent of its use. It is used chiefly by young ladies who have light eyes, and it distends the pupils until the eyes look as dark and deep as those of any Spanish beauty.

"One peculiarity of its effect is that it causes partial blindness, and I have often seen a society lady at a reception, where the light was very bright, run against some one or something that she was apparently looking directly at. The continued use of it not only affects the eyes, but the nerves of the face, and often produces a muscular contraction that causes the skin to wrinkle in the region of the eyes and sometimes a fullness under them." A druggist who stood near by said: "I sell quarts of it every year, and when I see some young girl or aged spinster with lusterless eyes, I immediately make up my mind that I have a devotee of the insidious drug."—Albany Journal.

The Sioux and Their Dead.

The Sioux, as a rule, deposit their dead on scaffolds of poles or the branches of trees. Once in a grove near the river I passed a large tree with a dead Indian child lashed to one of its branches. How peaceful the little slumberer seemed to rest in its quiet sylvan tomb among the birds and blossoms. The dreamy murmur of a waterfall in a neighboring gorge seemed a fitting requiem for the silent sleeper. Detroit Free Press.

Why Money Doesn't Count.

There are abundant reasons why money should count for less in society here than it does abroad. Rich men are numerous among us. Wealth is accumulated with ease, and dissipated with rapidity. Millionaires are almost as plentiful as English sparrows. We are familiar with their presence and familiar also with the fact that riches are often found without the qualities that afford pleasure to intelligent people. Those who are the joy and pride of the most select society are frequently people of moderate estate. The parlor in which it is most difficult to obtain admission is not generis continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. A good reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla is the weapon with which to defend one's self, drive the desperate enemy from the field, and restore peace and bodily health for many years. Try this peculiar medicine.

A Great Battle

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam for coughs and colds does, is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles are 50c. and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption. 1jes23

Weary and Worn.

When the tired factory operative, the weary out-door laborer, the overtasked bookkeeper or clerk seeks a medical recompense for expenditure of bodily force, where shall he find it? Could the recorded experience of thousands of workers be voiced, the verdict would be that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters renews failing strength, stimulates the jaded mental powers to fresh activity, and relaxes undue nervous tension as nothing else does. Digestion, a regular habit of body, appetite and sleep are promoted by it, and it is an admirable auxiliary in the recovery of health by convalescents. A fastidious stomach is not offended by it, and to persons of both sexes in delicate health who occasionally feel the need of an efficient tonic, the whole range of the pharmacopœia and the catalogue of proprietary medicines does not present a more useful, safer or more decisive one. It is also incomparable for fever and ague, rheumatism and kidney troubles.

Hon. C. W. Talpey of Farmington starts this week on a western business trip, going to Dakota. He will return via Chicago convention.

OUR CITY BY THE SEA.

PORTSMOUTH, June 4th.

Mr. Editor: There has been some cheap talk going on about our city by the sea for the past week or two, stating that some of our best business men had signed papers that some cranks had been carrying around, to close the saloons and breweries, and stop all liquor traffic of any kind in Portsmouth. Now I would like to ask, why some of these persons did not step in when the cotton mill was burned, and the place where it once stood and gave work to many men and women laid waste for years, until some of our enterprising business people took hold and put up a machine shop on the long vacant spot? And again, the same enterprising men put their shoulders to the wheel, and erected a large shoe factory; and later, put up a large addition, making the combined shoe factory one of the largest in New England. One of these most enterprising men is a brewer of beer, and lays out many thousand dollars a year in Portsmouth. Now, let the cranks come and take him away out of Portsmouth, and there would not be business enough left to pay the city taxes; you would have to pawn the city to find money enough to pay the men for scraping and cleaning the streets. Take him out of Portsmouth, and the hub of the wheel is gone, and you might as well crape your city.

ROCKINGHAM CONFERENCE.

The Rockingham Conference of Congregational and Presbyterian churches holds its fifty-first annual meeting with Rev. Dr. Edward Robie's church at Greenland on June 12th and 13th.

Rev. H. M. Penniman is to deliver the opening sermon, followed in the afternoon by reports on the state of religion in the churches, on fellowship meetings and on young people's meetings, with special reference to the Endeavor societies. On the second day a praise and prayer meeting will begin the session. The topic first in order will be "the duty of the church toward non-attendants," opened by Rev. J. A. Ross. The remainder of the morning will be devoted to "the needs and methods of co-operation to secure the best results in Christian work," opened by Rev. Joseph Hammond, and followed by Rev. Joseph Kimball. In the afternoon Rev. F. L. Small will preach, and the session will close with the administration of the communion service.

Backward as the season is, the wild flowers in the woods are far ahead of the average June display, in number and beauty. The crop of the pretty but flavorless "pigeon plums"—so called for some reason unknown to us, for we never saw a pigeon eat one—is also unually abundant, the berries being very large and plump, and as insipid as mutton without salt, just the same as of old. A small urchin who visited Wendell's woods, at Sagamore, Sunday forenoon, in company with his grandfather, after chewing up and swallowing a half-dozen of the nice looking but tasteless berries remarked: "I don't like 'em; they aint cooked!"

Mr. Richard A. Pinkham of Dover point died on Sunday afternoon, June 3d, after a brief but severe illness which terminated in heart trouble. He was a good citizen, and leaves a wife, two daughters, and two sons. He was aged about fifty eight years.

Relics in a Swiss Museum.

The museum in Neuchatel is an unusually interesting one, and the traveler does not experience that sensation of weariness which is often felt in visits to similar places. One room is filled with animals, stuffed of course, which are found in the higher Alps, many of which are now extinct. Wolves, white and brown bears, foxes, white hares, chamois steinbocks, all are there, most beautifully stuffed and preserved. I have said that some of these animals are no longer to be found in the mountains, but it would have been more correct to have stated that they have retreated before the civilizing hand of man, for it is believed that bears, and certainly wolves, are to be found on the higher peaks, where no foot of Alpine climber has penetrated.

In the next room are the models of the lake houses and the curious relics of the ages of stone and bronze which have been found imbedded in the mud and slime at the bottom of the lake. The date of these remains cannot be determined. Opinions differ, but all agree on one point—that they certainly existed before the time of Julius Cæsar. The houses were cleverly built on four iron rods sunk deeply in the mud at the bottom of the lake and supporting a kind of platform, on which the hut rested, and the inhabitants reached the shore by means of canoes made of hollowed trees. The reason apparently of their choosing the lake as a dwelling place was to protect themselves from the numbers of wild and fierce animals with which the country was infested. Indeed it is evident that it was then little more than a vast marsh or morass.

In the same room with the models are some grotesque ornaments worn by the woman and some equally extraordinary weapons worn by the men. In another room are the skulls of some of these ancient beings. Very flat and receding are they, and the inspection goes far to strengthen one's belief in Darwin's theory that their possible ancestors may have been an ape like tribe.

There is no national costume worn by the Neuchatel peasantry now, but in many of the cottages you may see old pictures, roughly but brightly colored, representing the dress worn in days long gone by. A delightful excursion is by the little lake steamer as far as Morat, a quaint old world town about three hours' distance from Neuchatel. Here are funny old streets, narrow and furnished with arcades built of stone, under which are the oldest little shops imaginable.—Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.

Gluttony Versus Intellectuality.

Gluttony tends to cynicism. Coarseness and extravagance of speech and manners go hand in hand with dietetic excesses, as, for cognate reasons, the repulsiveness of voracious animals is generally aggravated by a want of cleanliness. Among the natives of the Arctic regions, where climatic causes make gluttony a pandemic vice, personal cleanliness is an almost unknown virtue, and Kane's anecdotes of polar household habits depict a degree of squalor that would appall a gorilla. Habitual abstemiousness, on the other hand, is the concomitant of modesty, thrift, self control and evenness of temper, and is compatible with heroic perseverance, though hardly with great energy of vital vigor. The dietetic self denials of Luigi Cornaro, a Venetian nobleman of the Sixteenth century, enabled him to outlive the third generation of his epicurean relatives. During the latter decades of his long life he boasts of having enjoyed a peace of mind unattainable by other means.

There are intellectual voluptuaries whose enjoyment of mental triumphs in controversy or cogitation seem, for the time being, actually to deaden their craving for material food. Isaac Newton, on the track of a cosmic secret, would send back plate after plate of untasted meals. Percy Shelley, in the words of his sprightly biographer, "indignantly refused to alloy the nectar of poetic inspiration with boarding house soup," and in his creative moods rarely answered a dinner call without a sigh of regret. Benedict Spinoza, amid the parchment piles of his bachelor den, would fast for days in the ecstasy of his "Gott trunkenen"—"God intoxicated"—meditations.—Dr. Felix L. Oswald in Open Court.

Medical Value of Peppermint Oil.

In addition to being, from its potency and other advantages, the best of surgical antiseptics, it is possible that there lies in oil of peppermint a power for good and a field of therapeutic utility vaster in extent and importance than any yet known or suspected. Some cases of phthisis, in which I have employed it as an inhalation, lead me to hope that we may find in it a remedy against the scourge to which we pay annually a tribute of 10,000 lives.

In diphtheria, the greatest of all desiderata has always been such an antiseptic as this—one which may be fearlessly applied in the greatest quantity and the greatest frequency; which is innocuous, whether it be swallowed during its application, or be respired into the air passages, and which, by its absorption into the blood and its ready volatility, is enabled to penetrate to every recess, and be carried through all the tissues. Two cases of typical diphtheria in male adults, part of a small epidemic, come among the victims of which died with its worst features, have been treated by applications of oil of peppermint.

These cases afford ground for believing, therefore, that this drug may be also a potent weapon in diphtheria. Recovering so completely and so speedily as they did, their progress resembles neither that of "ordinary" ulcerated pharyngitis, treated or not by the usual means, nor of diphtheria as it has progressed in cases I have seen treated by the inefficient local antiseptics in vogue.—London Lancet.

Relief for Ivy Poisoning.

I was repeatedly poisoned by ivy when a boy, and found no relief till an uncle told my mother to give me a tablespoonful of thoroughwort tea each morning before eating during the month of May, and I never would be poisoned again. She followed his directions, and the result was I never have been poisoned since, although I was exposed to it more or less each summer for a number of years afterward. The above may not be a cure in all cases, but it is worth trying, as it can do no harm if it does no good.—Albert S. Trask in Scientific American.

Mineral Deposits in Arizona.

In Death valley, Arizona, there are thousands of acres covered with a deposit of borax two feet thick, and near by immense quantities of salt, lime and soda. The locality is ninety feet below the level of the sea, and is evidently the bed of a dried up sea.—New York Tribune.

Waste Silk for Pipes.

Careful experiments have shown that waste silk is the most effective of all non-conducting covering for steam pipes, and the demand for this purpose promises to be great, notwithstanding the high price.—Boston Budget.

A SIBERIAN PRISON.

THE June number of the Century Magazine contains the second of George Kennan's illustrated papers on Siberia and the Exile System, which are attracting such wide attention. The articles are being extensively copied into foreign papers, among others the organ of the Russian liberals, published at Geneva, by whom they are very highly commended.

In this June number Mr. Kennan gives an interesting account of his visit to the forwarding prison at Tiumen, where he found double the number of prisoners confined than there was room for.

In reply to a question from Mr. Kennan as to how many prisoners died during the year, the warden replied:

"About three hundred. We have an epidemic of typhus almost every fall. A prison so overcrowded can not be kept clean, and as for the air in the cells, you know now what it is like. The local authorities here have again and again urged the Government to make adequate provision for the large number of exiles crowded into the prison during the season of navigation, but thus far nothing has been done beyond the building of two log barracks."

In the overcrowded women's prison Mr. Kennan says he found no criminals—all of the occupants were voluntarily going into banishment with their husbands.

THE PRISON-YARD AT TIUMEN.
From a sketch made by an exile, in the June "Century."

Mr. Kennan describes the marching away of an exile, and gives, also, a graphic picture of a convict barge. The illustration of this article are remarkably interesting.

To Save Life

Frequently requires prompt action. hour's delay waiting for the doctor may be attended with serious consequences especially in cases of Croup, Pneumonia, and other throat and lung troubles. Hence, no family should be without a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has proved itself, in thousands of cases, the best Emergency Medicine ever discovered. It gives prompt relief and prepares the way for a thorough cure, which is certain to be effected by its continued use.

S. H. Latimer, M. D., Mt. Vernon, Ga., says: "I have found Ayer's Cherry Pectoral a perfect cure for Croup in all cases. I have known the worst cases relieved in a very short time by its use; and I advise all families to use it in sudden emergencies, for coughs, croup, &c."

A. J. Eidson, M. D., Middletown, Tenn., says: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral with the best effect in my practice. This wonderful preparation once saved my life. I had a constant cough, night sweats, was greatly reduced in flesh, and given up by my physician. One bottle and a half of the Pectoral cured me."

"I cannot say enough in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral," writes E. Bragdon, of Palestine, Texas, "believing as I do that, but for its use, I should long since have died."

OFFICIAL NOTICE!

OF

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co.

FROM THE

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we respectfully request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

30,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Silver-ware,
Window Shades,
Drapery,
Dinner Sets,
Toilet Sets,
Stoves and Ranges,
Feathers,
Feather Pillows,
Spreads, Blankers,
Chamber Sets,
Parlor Suits,
Carpets,
Lounges,
Easy Chairs,
Mattresses,
Springs,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the Furniture,

Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET,
PARLOR SUIT,
Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. There are items worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time, We have invariably paid out the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We wish to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

KITCHEN RANGE, or a CHAMBER SET, or PARLOR SUIT, or CARPETS, WINDOW SHADES, DRAPERY CURTAINS,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of these Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell the same and shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. This notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store, Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

Respectfully, the Public's Ob't Servants,

THE ATKINSON HOUSE FURNISHING CO.,

Headquarters Cor. Pearl and Middle Streets, Portland, and Branches at Auburn, Rockland, Bangor and Biddeford, also Bar Harbor for a short time.

ISAAC C. ATKINSON, Gen. Manager.

Mr. Samuel M. De Merritt attempted suicide Monday morning, in the barn at the rear of his residence on Maplewood avenue, by tying around his neck a line of which one end was fast to a spike, and then throwing himself on the floor in such manner as bring all the weight he could on the noose. He was discovered before he was dead by his wife, who slipped the noose over his head, and Dr. Whittier was called, who after a half hour's work restored him to consciousness, and pronounced him out of danger Mental disorder induced the act.

MATTERS IN YORK.

YORK CORNER, ME., June 4th.

As two-thirds of our selectmen, viz., Messrs. Putnam and Merrow, were returning from an examination of the (high) ways of York, on Friday afternoon last, in descending the hill near Sewall's bridge on their way home some part of the harness gave way, and the horse, being driven by Mr. Merrow, became partially unmanageable, ran against the end of the railing of the bridge, breaking the harness and throwing the occupants of the carriage some distance therefrom. Mr. Putnam escaped unharmed save the scare, while Mr. Merrow was badly shaken up and received a severe gash on his head. He was carried to Dr. Hazen's, and the doctor being at Cape Neddick Mr. Merrow was conveyed there, where he was cared for by Dr. Hazen until nearly midnight, and is now doing well. The other third of the board, being at home on his farm, escaped uninjured!

John Todd, at the village, lost a valuable horse a few days ago by breaking his leg—the horse's leg, I mean.

J. Howard Junkins, Esq., is about to erect a dwelling on the lot formerly owned by S. E. Grant.

Capt. Joseph Sedley, one of our best citizens, lies very ill at his home, and but little hopes are entertained of his recovery. He is about seventy-seven years of age. Dr. Johnson of Kittery is in attendance.

Geo. F. Plaisted has purchased, and will receive this week, probably, what is without the slightest doubt the largest stock of men's, women's and children's boots and shoes ever brought into York at one time. It is a fine line, and worthy of examination. The prices will be reasonable.

J. P. Norton, Esq., the liveliest business man in York, by at least seventy degress, is still making things boom at his yard and mill. He has absolutely more business in him to the square inch than any man within our knowledge, and he is no light weight either.

Change of trains on the Y. H. & B. R. H. R. R. (which interpreted means York Harbor and Beach Ram's Horn Railroad) last week. More to follow.

Samuel A. Preble wakes the neighbors up in the morning and keeps them awake nights, by the noise he makes in lathing the new piece he has added to his house. Go ahead, Sam; "the hand of the diligent maketh rich." P.

A sailor entered the police station shortly before eleven o'clock Monday night with a long and deep cut in the thigh severing some large blood vessel, fromwhich blood was pouring. Dr. Clark was called. The man said he accidentally cut himself.

It is announced that Hon. Calvin Page has been retained as counsel for James Palmer, the alleged murderer of Henry T. Whitehouse, and that John S. H. Frink, Esq., will probably be associated with him in the defence.

Fourteen persons were received into membership at the Congregational church on Sunday forenoon last. Next Sunday will be observed as Children's Sunday at this church.

William L. Conlon, clerk with the Portsmouth Trust & Gurantee company, has resigned his position with that institution to accept a similar one in the New Hampshire national bank.

On Saturday afternoon Deputy Sheriff Thomas Chase, of Seabrook, arrested and brought to this city a young man charged with feloniously assaulting a young lady at Hampton Falls.

A young child of Mr. George A. Trafton, living on Franklin street, was run over by a team on Monday afternoon, and considerably hurt.

The father of Mr. David Norton, proprietor of the blacksmith shop near the Creek bridge, fell dead last Sunday at his residence in Stratham.

NEW YORK'S EGG TRADE.

And Where the Eggs Go—Facts About the Business—How Eggs are Packed.

"The egg business has assumed large proportions in this city," said a leading dealer to a reporter.

"Why, take our trade, for instance. A few years ago the business was in its infancy and when we handled $100,000 a year we thought we were doing splendidly, and so we were, but last year our sales footed up $1,800,000. So you can easily comprehend its steady growth."

"Where do all the eggs come from that find their way to New York?"

"Well, the bulk of them are shipped from Iowa, Nebraska, Canada and a few from Dakota. Most of the southern states, principally Virginia and South Carolina and Kentucky ship to New York, but this quality of eggs is not so fine as those which come from the more northerly climates and hence do not find as ready a sale nor bring as good prices. Yes, New York exported quite a large quantity of eggs a few years ago to England and France, but that trade has fallen off materially, as eggs are nearly as cheap in those countries as here. Large shipments of eggs are made to Boston, but even that trade has fallen off on account of the Boston merchants buying direct from the farmers.

"The eggs we receive from Canada find a ready market; but there is one thing which tends to hasten the sale of the Dominion's eggs; they ship their goods in free cases; consequently it is much easier to effect a sale to the retailer, as he buys box and all, thus saving the necessity of repacking. Most of our western and southern egg raisers forward their goods to this market, where they have to be emptied into our own cases and theirs returned. The railroads assist the farmers by carrying "empties" back free. Eggs from May to September bring from eleven to fifteen cents per dozen, but as soon as October sets in, the fowls are not so productive and the price goes up to twenty cents and even higher.

"We pack our eggs sometimes, but it is very unprofitable, as the retailer knows a packed egg when he sees it. The best way to pack eggs is the good old fashioned way—in a weak solution of water and lime. I have known eggs packed that way to keep as fresh as a nut from April to October."—New York Mail and Express.

The Bull Fight's Last Scene.

Suddenly the flash of a red handkerchief in the hands of the president is seen. Like a flash the espada, with a long, keen, Toledo blade in his right hand, and in his left a willow stick over which the red muleta is flung, confronts him. The bull charges the hated cloth. The espada barely moves. Every plunge of the bull is upon the muleta. He does not see the man. His eyes are bloodshot and glaring. His mouth is half open and flecks of foam cover his neck and legs. To this side and to that, like the graceful waving of a banner, the espada carries the bull bodily. This play is marvelous. Suddenly the bull has missed the muleta; is back under it and the espada. The latter vaults the animal at a bound and in an instant is again master. The mastery is complete now.

For a few moments, which seem interminable to the breathless crowd, the play goes on—intellect, skill, daring the king of all brute savagery and force, and in a twinkling the yard long blade is sent with a "zip!" clear through the fore shoulder, the heart and (sometimes) the bull's body. The blood spurts from his nostrils. He recoils. He wavers and staggers. He makes one final plunge, brave in death, toward the smiling and triumphant espada. His horns strike the ground. He is in a heap and vanquished. The puntillero, dressed in black, springs forward and forces a lance in the brain. Three little donkeys come galloping in. The bull is dragged upon the run, out the reses muertes gate. The assembled thousands are wild with excitement—and that is all. Six bulls are usually thus dispatched, and it will cost you from $2 to $25, in gold, for three hours' contemplation of this form of torture and murder.—Edgar L. Wakeman's Havana Letter.

A Baby's Good Fortune.

A baby that I know of, and who is only about 10 days old, had the care taken for him and for his good fortune very early in life. Last summer while she was abroad his grandmamma found a curious old spoon, a little warrior armed from top to toe, just as the Apostle stands on the Apostle spoons. She brought this home with her, carried it to a silversmith's, had it cleaned and the little bowl lined with gold. As soon as this handsome boy uttered his first cry the tiny golden spoon was put in his mouth so that the best of luck and the very cream of riches might be his. I rather liked this little consideration for the future of the young man, and I am sure that his artist mamma will see that her boy, now that his riches are provided for, is healthy and wise.—"Bab" in Philadelphia Times.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

Distress After Eating

Sick Headache

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS $22 TO $900.

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with the best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS. GRAND, UPRIGHT, & SQUARE.

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

GLYCEROLE!
A PRESERVATIVE OF LEATHER.

For Oiling and Dressing Boots, Shoes, Etc.

Ever since the now dispensable article of Shoe Dressing came into existence, it has been the source of constant trouble to parties using it, because it hardened and cracked the leather; to the dealer, because of the complaints of his customers. Conscientious Shoe Dealers have often dissuaded their patrons from using any Shoe Dressing whatever and advised the application of oil, as it is universally known that oil is the only preservative of leather, while all other substances harden, crack and destroy it.

It was claimed for most Dressings heretofore in use that they do not crack leather, but it has never before been claimed that an Oil Dressing could be produced, the composition of which was considered to be an impossibility. After years of patient work however, we have succeeded in solving the problem of producing an oil, which in addition to its softening and preserving qualities gives also an elegant lustre to leather goods.

Glycerole is a veritable oil and the only one in existence which answers the purpose of oiling, and at the same time, dressing leather. It is perfect in its composition, does not rub off or soil dresses or skirts, and imparts to worn goods a soft, oily lustre which positively preserves the leather and protects it from water.

We do not pretend that a single application of Glycerole will improve a shoe already dried and hardened by numerous coats of common shoe dressing, but we do warrant that all shoes oiled and dressed only with Glycerole will be positively improved in wearing quality, as this oil penetrating into the pores of the leather will make it more supple and add to its durability.

Price 25 cents per bottle.

A SCIENTIST'S WARNING.

Extracts From a Remarkable Lecture Delivered by Dr. E. E. Hammond, Before the National Scientist's Convention.

"We are startled constantly by the sudden death of some man who seemed the picture of health. He thought he was well. He had had strange pains shooting through his body, but as they did not remain, he forgot them. His head ached him periodically, he was somewhat paler than common and unaccountably tired, but he felt comparatively well and vigorous. And yet, he suddenly died! It is a shame to our boasted civilization."

"Look at the list of women who die in childbirth, and why is it? Simply because their maternal organs have been so weakened by the most terrible of diseases that they cannot withstand the fearful, sudden strain that is brought to bear upon them. How many women escape monthly agonies? And yet nature never intended that pain or inconvenience should attend the operation of her natural laws. The solemn and terrible fact is, that men and women drag along, die, and are buried, and their friends and the doctors say heart disease, apoplexy, pneumonia, congestion, convulsions, when the cause lay far back of all these things. Sure it is that weakened kidneys are the cause of most of our troubles. The great question, therefore, is: 'How shall I preserve my kidneys, or, if diseased, how can they be restored?' I have seen numbers of cases and learned from unquestionable sources of many others, where the preparation, Hunt's Remedy, has been almost back of all these things. Sure it is that many my patients, and shall continue to do so. It is a wonderful and invaluable remedy."

The remarks of the learned doctor should be carefully considered, and acted upon by all who desire long life, and freedom from pain and the danger of sudden death.

More than twenty years ago Adamson's Botanic Balsam was introduced generally throughout New England as a remedy for Coughs, Colds and Pulmonary complaints. Since its introduction it has constantly won its way into public favor, until now it is the universal decision that ADAMSON'S BOTANIC BALSAM is the best remedy for curing Coughs, Colds and Asthma.

OH, WHAT A COLD!

THIS is the season for sudden changes in the weather, and a great many "take cold" either in their Head or on their Lungs, causing Coughs, Hoarseness, and Sore Throat. These troubles can be soon relieved and cured by taking Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs, entirely removing these difficulties.

Cured his boy of Croup.

C. M. BROOKS, Lowell, Mass., says: "I take great pleasure in recommending Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific as a cure for Coughs, Colds, and Croup. I used it in my family last winter with the best results. Two or three doses cured my little boy of Croup, for which I am very thankful."

You can cure that Cough in a short time. You can cure your Catarrh if you persist in its use, as it will stop the secretion of Catarrhal matter in the head; it will relieve Croup in from three to five minutes.

The best he ever saw.

"The best medicine for Coughs and Consumptive Complaints that ever I saw is Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific," so says JOHN McLAUGHLIN, of Boston.

Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific is sold by all Druggists. Price 50 cents and $1. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

Marriage by Capture.

Among savage tribes some very strange rules of etiquette appear to govern the matrimonial relationship. Convention prevents a Yoruba wife from either speaking to, or even seeing, her husband if it can be avoided, and the rude Aleutian islanders have the same regulation about speaking. In parts of the Fiji islands a husband and wife, if they wish to meet, must meet in secret; a similar secrecy is or was obligatory among the Circassians, and even among the Hottentots. But the African kingdom of Futa bears off the palm in these respects, if an old traveler is to be credited, who assures us that wives there were so bashful as never to let their husbands see them without a veil for three years after marriage. The same sort of feeling is manifest in other curious customs.

Among the Esquimaux, even in cases where the course of true love ran its smoothest and accorded fully with parental settlements, certain old women had to be sent to drag the bride forcibly to her husband's hut, she being obliged under the penalty of an ill name to "make as if it went against the grain; and as if she were much ruffled at it." A Kamschadal girl (and the people of Kamschatka are among the rudest of the earth), however well disposed she may be to her future spouse, makes it a point of honor to pretend to refuse him, and the form of force on his side and of resistance on hers has in any case to be regularly performed. And the wild tribe, the Hos of India, regard it as the correct thing for a wife to run away from her husband and to tell her friends that she neither loves him nor will ever see him again, while he in his turn is expected to display great anxiety for his loss, and when he has found his wife after diligent search to carry her home again by main force.—Gentleman's Magazine.

The Thunderbolt a Myth.

Mr. G. J. Symons, F. R. S., has endeavored to track the so called thunderbolts wherever he could hear of them, but they have vanished before the man of science like ghosts before the daylight. His inquiries showed that there was no transmission of a thunderbolt, or of any other solid body, when an electric spark rushed through the air, than there is in the transmission of a material substance when a message is telegraphed across, or rather under, the Atlantic ocean. Sometimes a lightning flash appears to strike the ground and a spherical nodule of iron pyrites is found near the spot. It was there before. Still the ignorant imagine it came from the clouds and with the lightning. Belemnites, which are really fossil animals, are found similarly, and in Webster's dictionary are described as "thunder stones," and as such are often preserved.

Occasionally a heavy discharge of lightning falls on a bed of sand, penetrates it for several feet and melts the silex in its path, fusing it into a kind of glass, which is known as fulgurite—some fine specimens of which are to be found in the British museum. This, and this only, could have any pretense to be considered a thunderbolt, but then it does not descend from the clouds, and is caused solely by the intense heat of the lightning. Mr. Symons did not deny that solid bodies do at times come down from the sky and strike the earth, but these are meteorites and aerolites—substances ejected from volcanoes or falling upon the earth from planetary space.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Salaries of High Toned Cooks.

The salaries of leading chefs in private families already in New York range from $150 to $300 a month. They, too, receive commissions, and in large places employ their own assistants, consisting of a meat and pastry cook and a kitchen girl to peel vegitables and do other work of a similar character. And it is not an unusual thing for the chef to get a percentage out of the wages which are paid to these subordinates. The chief cook at Delmonico's receives $6,000 a year and a share of the profits of the establishment after they have passed $200,000. He shares these supplementary profits with the acting manager of the establishment, and they are said to be very considerable. His income is supposed to be somewhere between $12,000 and $15,000 annually.

Like all enthusiastic chefs he is devoted to those patrons of the establishment who give good dinners and who understand them. And he caters to them in a way that no presents of money could possibly secure. When such patrons come along the waiter receives a card with the two letters inscribed on it, "S. A.," meaning special attention, and this is done not only to favor the patron but to satisfy the cook, who insists on having his favorite dishes properly served, just as a poet desires to have his poems recited with a proper emphasis and appreciation.—New York World.

Treatment of Pauper Consumptives.

No hospital or dispensary physician in our large cities can fail to recognize the utter feebleness and inutility of the present methods of treating pauper and indigent consumptives. Dr. Seibert has averred that among poor Germans dispensary treatment not only fails to cure, but even sensibly to relieve this class. Dr. Paul H. Kretzschmar confessed to an experience nearly similar. In the hospitals the story is not quite so bad. Many patients in the first stage improve for a time, but the percentage of cures is extremely small, and most cases progress rapidly to the worse. In New York city there are some 30,000 cases of consumption, with 5,000 annual deaths. If society provided sufficient means of treatment, at least 15 or 20 per cent. of them could be cured and restored to useful citizenship.—Medical Record.

Webster's Rochester Speech,

'Tis an old story, but historically accurate and very good, which L. B. Proctor has been telling the lawyers of the State Bar association at Albany, of the speech he heard Daniel Webster make once at Rochester after a dinner in which champagne was a leading ingredient. The speech was a short one for reasons too potent for even greatness to withstand, and it went thus: "Men and women—or, more properly, ladies and gentlemen—of Rochester—I am glad to see you and I am glad to see your noble city of which you are so proud. Gentlemen, I saw your falls, which I am told are 150 feet high. What a tremendous height! And this is a most interesting fact. Gentlemen, Rome had Cæsar, her Scipio, her Brutus, but Rome in her proudest days had never a waterfall 150 feet high. Gentlemen, Greece had her Pericles, her Demosthenes and her Socrates, but Greece in her palmiest days never—no, never—had a waterfall 150 feet high. Men of Rochester, go on with your great waterfall. Go on! No people ever lost their liberties who had a waterfall 150 feet high."

A tug at the great statesman's coat tails cut short his eloquent tribute to the falls of the Genesee, made famous by Sam Patch's great jump.—Detroit Free Press.

George W. Ward, contractor for the new high school building in Biddeford, has purchased 15,000 of brick at Epping, which will be shipped to Biddeford at once, and work upon the new building will be begun this week by Bodwell & Veazey of Lawrence, Mass., to whom he has awarded the mason work.

A Great Battle

Is continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. A good reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla is the weapon with which to defend one's self, drive the desperate enemy from the field, and restore peace and bodily health for many years. Try this peculiar medicine.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam for coughs and colds does, is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles are 50c. and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption. tjw23

Weary and Worn.

When the tired factory operative, the weary out-door laborer, the overtasked bookkeeper or clerk seeks a medical recompense for expenditure of bodily force, where shall he find it? Could the recorded experience of thousands of workers be voiced, the verdict would be that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters renews failing strength, stimulates the jaded mental powers to fresh activity, and relaxes undue nervous tension as nothing else does. Digestion, a regular habit of body, appetite and sleep are promoted by it, and it is an admirable auxiliary in the recovery of health by convalescents. A fastidious stomach is not offended by it, and to persons of both sexes in delicate health who occasionally feel the need of an efficient tonic, the whole range of the pharmacopœia and the catalogue of proprietary medicines does not present a more useful, safer or more decisive one. It is also incomparable for fever and ague, rheumatism and kidney troubles.

Four young men at the Philadelphia Rubber Works, No. 2,417 South street, were at the money counter of the Adams Express Office, Broad and Chestnut sts., yesterday, and carried away $75,000 spot cash. They were George Grigg, of 3,038 Alter st.; John McCaffrey, of 2,538 South st.; William McCluskey, of No. 2,312 Pine st.; and Thomas Lynch, of No. 2,048 Lancaster st. It was the proceeds of half the capital prize of $150,000 in the April drawing of The Louisiana State Lottery. The half ticket cost $5, each man putting up $1.25. The money was paid at New Orleans, and thence forwarded to this city by the Adams Express.—Philadelphia (Pa.) Telegraph, April 25.

Like Master, Like Man.

The democrats in Congress, in relation to free trade, or as is more palatable to the democratic and mugwump taste "revenue reform," seem to bear the same relation to their party which the president occupies in regard to the civil service reform laws. They stand on the party platform, but they make exceptions in favor of their favorites. So to, the president is in favor of the civil service law, but does not believe in its practical execution.

Some newspapers hold that the mugwump journals, while admitting the president's bad faith in regard to the execution of the civil service law, are inconsistent in supporting him as a candidate for re-election. But there is nothing inconsistent in this. They are satisfied with the hearty efforts of the president upon the free trade question. This is the essence of mugwumpery. The prating about civil service is simply a borrowed livery. If Mr. Cleveland succeeds in achieving a re-election it is pretty certain that the Bourbon democrats will not rule him on the spoils question, more than will the mugwumps upon the civil service reform theory. Both will contribute toward the election of the candidate, and afterward both wings of his supporters will be sorely disappointed. Mr. Cleveland is the candidate of both these elements, not that he is wanted by his supporters, but for the reason that they cannot help supporting him.

Gen. Sheridan.

The latest reports from Gen. Sheridan's sick room on Tuesday were more favorable than those on Monday afternoon and evening, but the physicians acknowledged that "the gravest anxiety must continue to be felt."

Democratic National Convention.

The national convention of the democratic party at St. Louis, to ratify Grover Cleveland's renomination of himself as a candidate for president of the United States, and to select a candidate for vice president, will have an easy job, it is said, the president having sent peremptory orders for the nomination of Thurman for vice president. The only serious trouble anticipated is over the tariff plank of the platform, and it is claimed that a plank has been provided which is hard wood on one side and pine on the other. The Irish democrats are to be made solid for the administration by the appointment of Gen. Patrick A. Collins of Boston, who has been so vigorously snubbed by Cleveland, as president of Mr. Cleveland's convention. Stephen Mallory White, a nephew of the Stephen Mallory who was the rebel secretary of the navy, is the temporary chairman.

The convention assembled on Tuesday morning, and was called to order at noon by Chairman Barnum of the democratic national committee. The temporary officers previously selected were approved of, and at two o'clock in the afternoon the convention adjourned to ten o'clock Wednesday morning.

Why Men Drink.

That wonderful humorist, Tom Hood, once remarked: "There are five reasons why men drink! Good wine; a friend; because they are dry; or at least they may be bye and bye; or any other reason why." The last is perhaps the most common reason. James Parton once headed an article "Will the coming man drink?" but as he failed to answer the query we will express a decided opinion: That, until the coming man learns to prize home, social family ties above all others, will he learn not to abuse his own organism. In March last a writer in the "Medical Age" made some practical remarks upon this subject, and offered a timely hint which prohibition advocates would do well to note.

He says: "As long as the imperfections of humanity remain unfitted to its surroundings and conditions, so long evil and misery will continue, and men seek refuge in strong drink. Increase the hunger, disease and pain by a better physical and moral education, and you will have plucked out the fangs of that dire monster"—intemperance.

Among the worst morbid conditions resulting from the use of alcoholic liquors, as well as from improper food and customs of eating, are inflammation of the stomach, bowels, liver, kidneys and brain.

It matters not in what part of the body inflammation exists, or how severe it may be, whether it takes the form of gastric inflammation, in dyspepsia, or as in bronchitis, catarrh, hay fever, pneumonia, rheumatism, or as in common cuts and bruises, Johnson's Anodyne Liniment will conquer it, relieve the pain and prove to you that it is indeed an anodyne of mighty power, and unlike all others, as it is for internal as well as external use.

A good Baptist deacon told us not long since that "he had known Johnson's Liniment for sixty years, and had used it in his family for over forty years." I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass., will send any person an instructive pamphlet free, telling all about this valuable household remedy, and how to use it economically. One teaspoonful properly used is worth a whole bottle used as some people use it.

About one o'clock Sunday morning fire broke out in the store of L. B. Farnsworth at Wells, and the whole building was quickly consumed. The building was nearly new and had a very fine hall in the second story, the first story being occupied as a grocery store; and it was one of the best buildings in town. This is the fourth building in and around that vicinity that has been destroyed by fire within five years. Suspicious point in one and the same direction as to who the miscreants are, for no doubt is entertained that it was the work of a fire bug. The loss is between three and four thousand dollars. There is an insurance of $800 in the Wells Mutual Co., and about $1,700 in stock companies on stock and buildings. Mr. Farnsworth's house adjoining barely escaped burning, the paint on it being severely blistered and scorched. Had this building caught the loss would have been very severe, as all the storehouses and barns, as well as the First Parish church, must have fallen an easy prey to the flames.

Luther Bryant, a young son of George Bryant of Saco, was drowned in the river at that place on Friday last.

Says the Penny Post: "The sacrifices one is sometimes obliged to make for the public good are not always productive of present inward satisfaction. An instance is shown at Kittery Point, where, in laying out the new road to York, one farmer was required to surrender a strip of land sixteen rods in length, and thirty feet in width, for which he was awarded $48. Of this sum he paid $40 for fencing the new road, and still is not contented with $8 clear profit. Does he want the earth?"

Jotham Cleaves of Kennebunkport, one of the oldest and most respected citizens of the town, died last week, and his funeral took place on Sunday, the bearers being, Joseph Adams, Ivory Bickford, Joseph Taylor and Prentiss Hill all of Kennebunkport, and each over eighty years old.

Mrs. Ivory Bean and Mrs. Orrin C. Boothby of South Waterboro, York county, Me., got into a dispute on Memorial day, Mrs. Bean accusing the other woman of being too intimate with Mr. Bean. Mrs. Boothby resented this by knocking Mrs. Bean down, hauling her out of the house by the hair, and beating and kicking her. Mrs. Bean, who is in delicate situation, will probably die from the effects of this treatment, and her assailant has been arrested.

A WARNING AGAINST MESMERISM.

Disastrous Results from the Experiments of Amateurs—Risky Business.

It has become a great fad in family circles to experiment in the art of mesmerism and to try the various tricks of test mediums, such as staring steadfastly in the eye of a weak willed person and thus obtain control of their minds. These amateurs find a great deal of fun in this form of amusement, but sensible parents should never countenance such proceedings, for the most disastrous results are likely to ensue where the subject is of a neurotic temperament. Nervous, hysterical girls and soft boned, growing lads should be kept away from these circles, for there is always a possibility of administering a shock that will leave lasting effects.

I was called to attend a young lady in North St. Louis, who had lain in a trance state for three days and could not be restored by ordinary medical treatment. She had been playing at innocent parlor tricks one Sunday evening until the entire company declared they had enough of it. Then a young man proposed to mesmerize one of the young ladies, and, without any idea of his secret power, made the usual passes which he had seen practiced in the theaters. After the third movement the girl's eyes assumed a glassy stare, and the operator became alarmed. The subject was to all intents unconscious of her actions and would not respond to pinching, calls, or even a more violent summons. She was put to bed by her mother, who was a witness of the affair, and ordinary remedies usual in catalepsy applied. A physician was called in, but he could not suggest any relief except electricity. A strong shock was given, but the patient remained insensible, although breathing regularly.

When other measures failed, the parents sent after me, and after hearing the facts I decided the body was surcharged with electricity and the girl must be demagnetized. I worked for three hours, and was almost completely exhausted when I began feeling the cold current passing from my fingers through my system. Then I realized the girl was saved, for science had conquered. Imagine what would have happened if the result was failure. The patient was a handsome blonde, of a negative nature, only 17 years of age, and although she had never been south in her life, she spoke of places in Memphis, and while under the mesmeric influence claimed that her name was Henry Seymour. She would answer questions promptly when addressed by that name, and appeared to [illegible]

A SIBERIAN PRISON.

THE June number of the Century Magazine contains the second of George Kennan's illustrated papers on Siberia and the Exile System, which are attracting such wide attention. The articles are being extensively copied into foreign papers, among others the organ of the Russian liberals, published at Geneva, by whom they are very highly commended.

In this June number Mr. Kennan gives an interesting account of his visit to the forwarding prison at Tiumen, where he found double the number of prisoners confined than there was room for.

In reply to a question from Mr. Kennan as to how many prisoners died during the year, the warden replied:

"About three hundred. We have an epidemic of typhus almost every fall. A prison so overcrowded can not be kept clean, and as for the air in the cells, you know now what it is like. The local authorities here have again and again urged the Government to make adequate provision for the large number of exiles crowded into the prison during the season of navigation, but thus far nothing has been done beyond the building of two log barracks."

In the overcrowded women's prison Mr. Kennan says he found no criminals—all of the occupants were voluntarily going into banishment with their husbands.

THE PRISON-YARD AT TIUMEN.
From a sketch made by an exile, in the June "Century."

Mr. Kennan describes the marching away of an exile, and gives, also, a graphic picture of a convict barge. The illustration of this article are remarkably interesting.

A large gang of men, with teams, have for two weeks or more been at work grading the grounds between the passenger station and freight house of the York railroad at Kittery Point, and around the buildings; also in grading the road from the station to the town highway, making the new piece of road as good a piece as there is in Kittery. The work is so far completed as to show that when done, and the grass seed which is to be sown has had time to spring up, the Kittery station will be a most attractive spot—the handsomest station on the line of the road.

Imogene Emerson, aged twenty-one years, who was burned by her clothing coming in contract with the kitchen stove last winter, died at Biddeford, Me., on Sunday night. She has been a terrible sufferer since the accident.

"Nate" Haines, the young man who some time ago brutally assaulted a boy named Ernest Plummer, last Saturday in the Saco police court paid about $30, fine and costs. Luckily for Haines the boy did not die, as it was feared he would do.

Mrs. James Allen of South Sanford was thrown from a carriage by collision last Saturday evening, and had her right hip broken.

To Save Life

Frequently requires prompt action. hour's delay waiting for the doctor may be attended with serious consequences, especially in cases of Croup, Pneumonia, and other throat and lung troubles. Hence, no family should be without a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has proved itself, in thousands of cases, the best Emergency Medicine ever discovered. It gives prompt relief and prepares the way for a thorough cure, which is certain to be effected by its continued use.

S. H. Latimer, M. D., Mt. Vernon, Ga., says: "I have found Ayer's Cherry Pectoral a perfect cure for Croup in all cases. I have known the worst cases relieved in a very short time by its use; and I advise all families to use it in sudden emergencies, for coughs, croup, &c."

A. J. Eidson, M. D., Middletown, Tenn., says: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral with the best effect in my practice. This wonderful preparation once saved my life. I had a constant cough, night sweats, was greatly reduced in flesh, and given up by my physician. One bottle and a half of the Pectoral cured me."

"I cannot say enough in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral," writes E. Bragdon, of Palestine, Texas, "believing as I do that, but for its use, I should long since have died."

OFFICIAL NOTICE!

— OF —

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co.

— FROM THE —

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we respectfully request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

30,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Silver-ware, Window Shades, Drapery, Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Stoves and Ranges, Feathers, Feather Pillows, Spreads, Blankers, Chamber Sets, Parlor Suits, Carpets, Lounges, Easy Chairs, Mattresses, Springs,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the

Furniture, Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET, PARLOR SUIT, Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. There are items worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time, We have invariably paid out the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We wish to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

KITCHEN RANGE, or a CHAMBER SET, or PARLOR SUIT, or CARPETS, WINDOW SHADES, DRAPERY CURTAINS,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of those Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell the same and shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. This notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store, Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

Respectfully, the Public's Ob't Servants,

THE ATKINSON HOUSE FURNISHING CO.,

Headquarters Cor. Pearl and Middle Streets, Portland, and Branches at Auburn, Rock-

BASE BALL.

The game between the Nashuas and the home club on the South street field, Tuesday afternoon, was a very one-sided affair, as the score shows. The grounds were in excellent condition, and a large number of ladies were in attendance. The umpiring of Mahoney was very satisfactory. The following is the score, only seven innings being played:

A game of base ball was played on Sunday last, on the Sheafe farm in Rye, owned by Hon. Frank Jones. Sunday base ball games are played this season in many states, where Sunday is considered a day of recreation rather than of rest.

CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION.

The New Hampshire Historical society will on June 21st celebrate the centennial anniversary of the ratification of the constitution of the United States by New Hampshire. It was provided in the delegate convention of states, that nine states should adopt the constitution before it should be binding. New Hampshire was the ninth state, Virginia following in quick succession. The anniversary is of an important event. Hon. J. W. Patterson will deliver an oration, to be followed by a poem by Mr. Allen Eastman Cross. The literary exercises will be in White's opera house, Concord, at twelve o'clock, that hour having been selected to accommodate those from out of town. The public generally are invited to attend. The society will give a dinner to invited guests after the public exercises.

PERSONAL.

Rev. O. S. Baketel is to occupy the Laighton house on Richards avenue as a residence.

Hon. Frank Jones was chosen chairman of the New Hampshire delegation to the democratic national convention at St. Louis, and Dr. Miah B. Sullivan of Dover secretary.

Mrs. William H. Everett, of this city, is among the recent arrivals at the Aquidneck house at Newport, R. I.

Mr. E. A. Stevens, Jr., of Malden, Mass., has rented his cottage at Kennebunk beach for the months of July and August.

Mrs. Rowe, formerly Miss Alice Ayers of this city, wife of W. A. Rowe, the champion bicycle rider of America, now in Europe, is hopeful, says the Globe, that he will ultimately secure and maintain the championship of the world.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner Grace D. Buchanan, which arrived at this port on the 3d inst., brought 1830 tons of coal to E. F. Sise & Co.

The fishing schooner Ambrose H. Knight, of Boothbay, Me., has been seized in Halifax for selling bait to a French fishing vessel at St. Pierre, the bait having been obtained in Newfoundland. The captain of the American vessel says that "A. W. Paterson and wife, of Saco, are going on the stage next season as members of the Redmund-Barry company".

Doctors Berry and Sherburne of this city were summoned to Newcastle early Sunday morning, to attend to a man named Worthen, one of a party of Danes from Boston who have been engaged in working on the hotel Wentworth, and who came to this city on Saturday night, and "filled up." On their return to Newcastle they got into a fight, and Worthen was found in bed next morning insensible, having been badly beaten and bruised, and his mouth stuffed with cloth. The medicine men succeeded in restoring him to consciousness, and he will probably recover. The principal assailant escaped on a train for Boston.

Alvah R. Sulloway has been re-elected as the New Hampshire member of the democratic national committee.

The surviving veterans of the Twelfth Regiment of New Hampshire Volunteers will hold their twenty-third annual reunion at Tilton, on Friday, June 29th.

The Mundine hotel at Rockdale, Texas, was burned June 4th, and eleven persons lost their lives.

There was almost a riot at the Second Presbyterian church in Newburyport last Sunday, owing to the parish committee having locked the doors and stationed an officer to prevent the late pastor, Rev. Theodore Beizeley, from entering. Legal complications are expected to arise.

Congressman Sam Randall was a private in a calvary company during the war. In this the secret of the contempt in which he is held by the democratic brigadiers and their northern echoes?

Hon. F. O. Prince declines to serve longer as the Massachusetts member of the democratic national committee, which position he has held for twenty-eight years.

JAMES N. ADAMS.

James N. Adams, who died in Ellsworth, Pierce county, Wisconsin, May 27th, was within a few days of completing his 60th year at the time of his decease. The Ellsworth Herald of May 30th says of him:

Mr. Adams was born at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, June 23, 1828. He was married in 1854 to Lucy M. Knowlton, and in 1857 moved to Wisconsin and settled in our county, where he has since lived an honored citizen. A wife and five children mourn his loss.

Mr. Adams was a man who entertained positive views. His opinions might have been moulded somewhat by his feelings but they were never obstructed by doubt. In a word, his keen sympathies were fainly balanced by as keen a sense of justice; he had strong convictions, and his prejudices were as strong, and yet all the sharp angles of his nature were rounded and softened by a kindly heart. In his dealings with his fellow man he was upright. As a friend he was true. He loved his family and his fireside. He lived his life imagining that he had no religious groundings, but he was mistaken; he worshiped in the sanctuary of Home—the family circle was his altar, and Love was his religion.

Through his long sickness he did not repine. His loved ones were round about him and he could laugh at pain. His death was as peaceful as a summer's sunset. He trusted in the Almighty cause and feared not. No doubts harrassed his mind. Had he been of the orthodox faith his death-bed might have furnished a bright example of that peace which passeth the understanding.

But he could not see the metes and bonds of the Unknown Land as surveyed by narrow-minded egotism. He asked with Whittier,

"Who fathoms the Eternal Mind?
Who talks of scheme, or plan?
The Lord is God, he needeth not
The poor device of man."

And so he died believing that if there be everlasting life beyond the grave it is a common heritage—that it cannot belong to any race, nation, or creed; but that like the little stream which kisses back the sunshine for a day, each life flows down to the great Ocean from whence it came.

Mr. Adams was son of the late William Adams of this city, and his mother is now living at Kittery, with her daughter, Mrs. Hurd. His wife was a Portsmouth lady. His last visit to this city was about two years ago, when he passed several weeks here.

HAMPTON JOTTINGS.

HAMPTON, June 4th.

The memorial address on Sunday, May 27th, was considered the best ever delivered before the G. A. R. Post; the church was crowded; subject, "A citizen of no mean city;" Acts 21-39.

Memorial day was observed with the usual customs. Rev. W. C. Bartlett delivered the oration. Many people were here from other towns, some of our people going abroad.

As the time for the celebration of this town's anniversary draws near, inquiries are made concerning the History of Hampton which was commenced twenty-five years ago by Deacon Joseph Dow, who is now in a feeble state of health, and his mind fast failing. Strong efforts have of late been made to push the affair, but there is so much to be written now in order to complete the manuscript that it will have to be postponed. A few years since the town thought to have taken it in hand, but could not think as Mr. Dow did in regard to certain points.

Our new physician, Dr. Smith, is getting quite a practice; he is fine looking, very genial, and in one particular case that had been treated by several doctors from adjoining towns with no success, his treatment is of great benefit.

The proprietor of the Union house and family sincerely regret that so many of their acquaintances did not attend the funeral of the late Mrs. Whittier. Some gossip reported that it was to be private, consequently many were not permitted to look for the last time upon a cherished friend. Scandal in country towns should be lawfully dealt with; it is continually making right affairs wholly wrong, and for the safety of communities should be put down.

On account of the late season hay is in great demand, and quite scarce; many people turned their stock out before the feed was plenty, and some have lost cows with fever by so doing.

It is a wonder the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals do not have an agent in every town to notify them of ill-treated and half-fed dumb animals; we have seen worse-looking horses this season than ever before. —.

The seaman who was taken to the police station Monday night suffering from a severe knife-wound in the thigh, was removed to the Cottage Hospital on Tuesday. His name is John Urry, and he was one of the crew of the schooner Yale

Mr. Benjamin F. Mugridge has bought the Dr. J. F. Hall house on State street, with the furniture therein, the lot of land extending through to Warren street, and the outbuildings upon the same. He will occupy the premises as a residence for himself and family.

The repairs of the Wentworth bridge at Little Harbor have been completed.

The Dover Democrat remarks: "The Friendly Six of this city will soon present the Haverly's Singers to the Portsmouth people, at Franklin hall. We can guarantee the people down there a good entertainment."

Gardiner's Zozo Co. in the "Magic Queen" spectacular comic opera, at Music hall on Wednesday evening, June 13th, with George H. Adams and an army of artists, new costumes, gorgeous scenery, etc.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

Distress After Eating

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." PIANOS. Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1862, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

GLYCEROLE!

A PRESERVATIVE OF LEATHER.

GLYCEROLE OF OIL DRESSING FOR BOOTS & SHOES

For Oiling and Dressing Boots, Shoes, Etc.

Ever since the now dispensable article of Shoe Dressing came into existence, it has been the source of constant trouble to parties using it, because it hardened and cracked the leather; to the dealer, because of the complaints of his customers. Conscientious Shoe Dealers have often dissuaded their patrons from using any Shoe Dressing whatever and advised the application of oil, as is universally known that oil is the only preservative of leather, while all other substances harden, crack and destroy it.

It was claimed for most Dressings heretofore in use that they do not crack leather, but it has never before been claimed that an Oil Dressing could be produced, the composition of which was considered to be an impossibility. After years of patient work however, we have succeeded in solving the problem of producing an oil, which in addition to its softening and preserving qualities gives also an elegant lustre to leather goods.

Glycerole is a veritable oil and the only one in existance which answers the purpose of oiling, and at the same time, dressing leather. It is perfect in its composition, does not rub off or soil dresses or skirts, and imparts to worn goods a soft, oily lustre which positively preserves the leather and protects it from water.

We do not pretend that a single application of Glycerole will improve a shoe already dried and hardened by numerous coats of common shoe dressing, but we do warrant that all shoes oiled and dressed only with Glycerole will be positively improved in wearing quality, as this oil by penetrating into the pores of the leather will make it more supple and add to its durability.

A SCIENTIST'S WARNING.

Extracts From a Remarkable Lecture Delivered by Dr. R. E. Hammond, Before the National Scientist's Convention.

"We are startled constantly by the sudden death of some man who seemed the picture of health. He thought he was well. He had felt strange pains shooting through his body, but as they did not remain, he forgot them. His head pained him periodically, he was somewhat paler than common and unaccountably tired, but he felt comparatively well and vigorous. And yet, he suddenly died! Its a shame to our boasted civilization."

"Look at the list of women who die in childbirth, and why is it? Simply because their maternal organs have been so weakened by the most terrible of diseases that they cannot withstand the fearful, sudde strain that is brought to bear upon them. How many women escape monthly agonies? And yet nature never intended that pain or inconvenience should attend the operation of her natural laws. The solemn and terrible fact is, that men and women drag along, die, and are buried, and their friends and the doctors say heart disease, apoplexy, pneumonia, congestion, convulsions, when the cause lay far back of all these things. The truth is that weakened kidneys are the cause of most of our troubles. The great question, therefore, is: 'How shall I preserve my kidneys, or, if diseased, how can they be restored?' I have seen numbers of cases and learned from unquestionable sources of many others, where the preparation, Hunt's Remedy, has been almost remarkable in its results. I use it freely among my patients, and shall continue to do so. It is a wonderful and invaluable remedy."

The remarks of the learned doctor should be carefully considered, and acted upon by all who desire long life, and freedom from pain and the danger of sudden death.

OH, WHAT A COLD!

This is the season for sudden changes in the weather, and a great many "take cold" either in their Head or on their Lungs, causing Coughs, Hoarseness, and Sore Throat. These troubles can be soon relieved and cured by taking Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs, entirely removing these difficulties.

Cured his boy of Croup.

C. M. BROOKS, Lowell, Mass., says: "I take great pleasure in recommending Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific as a cure for Coughs, Colds, and Croup. I used it in my family last winter with the best results. Two or three doses cured my little boy of Croup, for which I am very thankful."

You can cure that Cough in a short time. You can cure your Catarrh if you persist in its use, as it will stop the secretion of Catarrhal matter in the head; it will relieve Croup in from three to five minutes.

The best he ever saw.

"The best medicine for Coughs and Consumptive Complaints that ever I saw is Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific," so says JOHN MCLAUGHLIN, of Boston.

Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific is sold by all Druggists. Price 50 cents and $1. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

Method of Keeping Milk.

The souring of milk is caused by the change of the sugar of milk into lactic acid, under the influence of the casaine, or cheesy matter, which the milk contains. Boiling, however, deprives caseine of the power of converting the sugar of milk into lactic acid. Now, if the milk be put into bottles which, after being well corked, are placed in a can with cold water, and gradually raised to the boiling point, and after being allowed to cool, be taken out and placed in a cool place, the milk will keep perfect for more than a half a year. If the milk be exposed to the air after boiling, the caseine gradually recovers its power of converting sugar into lactic acid. In this case the boiling has to be repeated every day or every second day, and milk may thus be kept fresh for two months or more.—Hall's Journal of Health.

"Was Eve the first woman?" was the title of a lecture recently delivered down east. Of course we didn't hear the lecture, but we know the first woman that ever used Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup never experienced such a happy cure for her cough or cold.

Is continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. Try this peculiar medicine.

Interested People.

Bismarck's Famous Sentence.

It is proposed to use the famous sentence of Prince Bismarck, "We Germans fear God, but nothing else," as the national German motto. A number of students have been hunting for the origin of that expression ever since, to prove that there is nothing new under the sun. One finds it in Racine's "Athalie," as the saying of the high priest Joash, and another has discovered a passage almost identical in Carlyle's eloquent description of Abbot Samson ("Past and Present," book II, chapter 17). These scholars would destroy all the patriotism in Germany if they had their way.—Chicago Herald.

Almost a Desecration.

What more melancholy sight than an old person so far down the hill that the tumult and din of the struggle upon its crest is already dull upon the ear—a dear old lady, with dim eyes and fluttering footsteps and blunted hearing, condemned to the crowd, the glare, the manifold exigencies of a hotel? Does it not seem a desecration of the solemn quiet of old age, the gentle peace that should enshrine the last years of a well spent life?—Mrs. Frank Leslie in Philadelphia Times.

About Long Distance Telegraphy.

"I have read those stories about the marvelous feat of an operator sitting in his office in Vancouver, B. C., and sending a message clear through on a straight line to New South Wales, but there is not a word of truth in it. It has never been done and never will be with our present system of telegraphing."

The speaker was Chief Operator William Lloyd, of the main office of the Western Union in this city. Mr. Lloyd went on to explain why a message could not be sent such a long distance on a continuous line.

"Land telegraphing and sea telegraphing are totally different," said Mr. Lloyd, "and that is where the hitch comes in. If I want to send a message to Bombay, for instance, it first goes to New York, then to Torbay, Newfoundland. It is taken down there and is sent by another system to Queenstown, Ireland. It is received there, not by sound, but by reflection. The operator sits in a dark room and the spark from the wire is shown in a looking glass. This is reflected on the wall, and is read in that way. From this point it goes to London by the ordinary method. From there it is sent to the African cable line leading across the Channel, down the Mediterranean and the Red sea to the Indian ocean, there it takes to Bombay. Probably fifteen operators handle the message before it reaches its destination, and to say that a message can be sent through without a stop is nonsense. The work is done very quickly, though, and a message to Calcutta or Bombay would go through in two hours, perhaps three, according to the way the wires are working. They have been sent in less time."—Chicago Mail.

How Amputation Is Performed.

The layman is often surprised to note how slight are the external manifestations of serious diseases which sometimes call for radical surgical treatment. Dr. Warren brought in before the medical class at the Massachusetts general hospital not long ago an old man upon whose right hand there appeared to be a small sore spot, not at all malignant or painful in its appearance. It was situated directly upon the back of the hand, and seemed to be no more than a trifling local sore that could be easily healed. The patient was a man of more that 80 years. Dr. Warren explained that the trouble was of a cancerous nature; that it had manifested itself in no other part of the body, and that amputation seemed to be the only safe course to resort to. He accordingly proposed to take off the hand just above the wrist before the malignant disease had a chance to spread.

The usual application of rubber bandage and tight rubber cord above the point of amputation was made, and the surgeon made rapid work of the case. A single sweep of the knife just over the wrist severed the skin and a little deeper. The tissues were then dissected upward for nearly an inch toward the elbow to the point where the bone was to be cut in order to make a flap. The flesh was quickly cut to the bones, and a few strokes of the saw severed them. The wound was antiseptically treated and sewed up, and in ten or fifteen minutes from the time he was brought in the old man was picked up by a strong attendant and carried back to his cot in the surgical ward.—New York Sun.

Bismarck's Magnificent Physique.

The appearance of Bismarck, who is not only a famous man, a prince, and a general, but who is chancellor of the empire as well, makes the populace gasp. I venture to assert that nowhere in the world can a man of 73 years be found who compares with this magnificent looking leader. The perfect command that he exercises over himself in addition to pulling the noses and patting the backs of the nations was shown last winter when the Iron Chancellor reduced his weight thirty-five pounds by a course of training that would have staggered a collegian.

"The full significance of this feat," one of the prince's physicians said to me the other day, "will not strike you till you call all the conditions into view. It shows after all that three score years and ten is by no means a goal to be dreaded. A man's age is what he makes it, according to Prince Bismarck. Still when a man is in his 73d year it looks like foolhardiness to suddenly reverse all old and methodical habits, take ice cold baths at daybreak, have cold meat and cold tea for breakfast, let wines and beer drop out of existence, and do an amount of violent exercise that would wear out a 30-year-old laborer."

The hard physical work which the chancellor has passed through in order to get his weight down has left him a picture of erect and sturdy manhood. He gives the lie even to the most complimentary of his portraits. All his life he has been an athlete, and now he reaps the reward.—Blakely Hall's Berlin Letter.

"Beating" the Machine.

The schemes whereby the knowing ones nowadays beat the "drop-a-nickel" machine are so numerous that the business is threatened with ruin. The manner in which the weighing machine is swindled is thus told by one who has tried it on: "Just place the sole of your boot against the edge of the upper platform, push hard and sudden and then jump quickly on the platform; that big hand of fate will tell you your weight just as surely and correctly as if you had acted 'straight' on the machine and paid your lonely nickel. Some fellows have been dropping lead slugs, just the weight of a nickel, into the slit; so, from all appearances, I think the day of the 'drop-a-nickel' schemes is in the past."—Chicago Tribune.

Weary and Worn.

When the tired factory operative, the weary out-door laborer, the overtasked bookkeeper or clerk seeks a medical recompense for expenditure of bodily force, where shall he find it? Could the recorded experience of thousands of workers be voiced, the verdict would be that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters renews failing strength, stimulates the jaded mental powers to fresh activity, and relaxes undue nervous tension as nothing else does. Digestion, a regular habit of body, appetite and sleep are promoted by it, and it is an admirable auxiliary in the recovery of health by convalescents. A fastidious stomach is not offended by it, and to persons of both sexes in delicate health who occasionally feel the need of an efficient tonic, the whole range of the pharmacopœia and the catalogue of proprietary medicines does not present a more useful, safer or more decisive one. It is also incomparable for fever and ague, rheumatism and kidney troubles.

Eleven hundred ladies were registered as voters at the Topeka city election.

Delicate Children, Nursing

Mothers, overworked men and for all diseases where the tissues are wasting away from the inability to digest food, or from overwork; should take Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites. Lorenzo Mund, Providence, R. I., writes: "I contracted a severe cold which settled on my lungs, causing inflammation and distress. I had night sweats and fever for eight or nine days, lost my appetite, and friends said I was in consumption. The Postmaster,

Winchester, Mass., says: I am personally acquainted with Mr. and Mrs. Carleton, and was astonished at the remarkable effects of your Sulphur Bitters in curing their son, and its large sale is undoubtedly due to the fact that it is an honest medicine. I know of many others who have been cured by its use, and I do not think too much can be said in its praise.—Yours truly, Geo. P. Brown, P. M.

After trying numerous so-called catarrh remedies and receiving no benefit I was finally induced to try Ely's Cream Balm, and after using one bottle I take great pleasure in recommending it to all sufferers from catarrh.—N. L. Gorton, with S. Gorton & Co., Gloucester, Mass.

Why let your Stomach become disordered? Why let your Bowels become costive? Why let your Nerves become unstrung? Why let your Blood become impure? Why let your Blood become impure? Why let your Blood become impure? Because Sulphur Bitters is not a cheap Rum or Poor Whiskey drink, to be taken by the glass, like other bitters, but is a medicine to be taken by the spoonful, containing the Sulphur of the Fire of Hell, and the Sulphur of the Fire of Heaven, and the Sulphur of the Fire of Purgation, the damage which it will do to your system is incalculable. No Free Trade Wanted in Oregon.

The democrats have for some time been claiming that free trade would carry Oregon for the democratic ticket, and send a free trade senator to Congress in place of Senator Dolph. The election took place on the 4th inst., and the despatches give the result as follows:

"Returns from all parts of the state accessible by telegraph indicate that Hermann, representative for Congress, has 4000 majority. His majority in Multnomah county, which includes Portland, is 2500. The prohibition vote is very small. The republicans made gains in every county in the state. The democrats carry only two counties in the western half of the state. It is the largest republican majority since the close of the war, and is astonishing alike to republicans and democrats. Still more surprising a result is the returns for members of the legislature. There are ninety members in both houses. Of these the republicans will have about sixty-six, and the democrats about twenty-four."

Two years ago Hermann, republican, was elected by 1635 majority; in 1878 the democrats elected the congressman by a plurality of 1618. In the late legislature the republicans had a majority of sixteen on joint ballot, against forty-two or more in the one just elected. One man government, handing over the fishery and lumber interests to Canada, and giving our markets to the British manufacturers to the ruin of our own people, do not seem to be popular in Oregon.

Gen. Sheridan's physicians on the 6th inst. issued hopeful bulletins, saying his condition was better.

Democratic National Convention.

The democratic national convention at St. Louis on the 6th inst. went through the form of unanimously endorsing Grover Cleveland's renomination of himself to be president of the United States, and then adjourned to 10:00 A. M. on the 7th.

Pistol Practice in Tennessee.

In Paris, Tenn., on the evening of June 4th, a young man named D. Porter, a son of Ex-Governor Porter, was shot and killed by Alexander B. White, cashier of the Commercial bank. Porter had accosted White, and made a motion as if to draw his pistol. Earlier in the evening Kennedy Porter, another son of the ex-governor, assaulted one Edmunds, and shot him three times. Edmunds had shot Porter some months before, but failed to kill him.

IN A PHOTOGRAPHER'S STUDIO.

Peculiarities of His Patrons—Vanity the Cause of Good Trade.

"Is it true that most people have their photographs taken simply to gratify a vain desire to see their miniatures on cardboard?" was asked of a Union square photographer a few days ago.

"Yes," replied the knight of the camera, "it is true of the majority of people, but there are many well meaning folk to whom the charge of vanity would be falsely applied and slanderous. The sole incentive which prompts such persons to sit for a likeness is to oblige their friends, and thus kill for a time that fiendish request which friends make when they ask for your picture. Many modest persons have been driven almost to the point of self destruction by their unthinking friends, who ever and anon are demanding the portrait of their unfortunate victim, until the latter, pushed to the verge of despair, throws himself upon the tender mercies of the photographer and his instrument of torture, and gets 'took.'

"My observations have led me to believe," continued the artist, as he deftly snipped off the superfluous margins of a batch of unmounted photos, "that the people of the present age are not characterized by the traits of extreme modesty or excessive reserve, and a photographer's atelier is one of the best places in the world in which to study certain phases of human nature, and to watch the display of that streak of egotism which runs so largely through the whole human family."

"Then you believe that we are all more or less worshipers of self?"

"Yes, if the actions and conversation of the thousands who have passed through my studio are a just criterion. One thing I do know, that nine-tenths of my patrons are vain, silly people, who receive a childlike pleasure in seeing their too often unpropossessing countenances reflected on a scrap of paper. I have several regular customers who come to me at least once a month for a sitting. They often order as many as three dozen photos at one time. What they do with them heaven only knows. One foolish old man wanted me not long ago to place his portrait in a conspicuous position in my showcase on the sidewalk, and offered me quite a sum if I would agree to his proposition. He was terribly put out when I refused point blank to comply with what he was pleased to call a 'very slight request.' There are lots of folk, however, who would just as quickly pay me to remove their likeness if they found it exposed to the public gaze."

"Has there been any great reduction in the prices of photographs since the introduction of the instantaneous process in most of the photographic establishments?" queried the writer.

"Yes, there has been a great fall in prices of late, but it is not owing to the advent of the new method. We can't command the prices which prevailed in former years, because the public have discovered that the photographers' profits are enormous, and they consequently refuse to pay big prices for what seems to be the product of so little labor. Those who are not conversant with the technique of the profession imagine that they do not get the worth of their money when a photographer charges $10 for a portrait which it took him perhaps only three hours to make and seventy-five cents or $1 worth of material to complete.

"But it is neither the time nor material used that the photographer charges for. It is the acquired skill which enables him to manufacture a beautiful picture—skill which it has cost him years of patient toil and study to attain. In this respect my profession is similar to that of a physician or lawyer. Patrons pay for the expert service rendered and the quality of the workmanship, and not for the quantity—be it of photographs, medicine or law.

"Tintypes? Yes, I make a few. None but the poorest people ask for them now. My largest trade in them is done on Thursdays and Saturdays, when the servant girl and her beau are out for a lark. No, there is no profit in tintypes. They are made very quickly, however, and those who buy them are not, as a rule, fastidious persons. I believe the day is not far distant when a tintype portrait will be as great a rarity as the daguerreotype is at present."—New York Press.

Our Forefathers' "Iron Rule."

The boys and girls of today have little knowledge of the repression which their grandfathers endured in their childhood. A venerable lady who died lately said: "I never sat down in the presence of my parents before I was married without a formal invitation to do so."

One of the foremost statesmen in the country during the early part of this century, when asked in his old age what had been the pleasantest event in his life, replied promptly:

"The day when my father and mother summoned me to their presence and told me they considered me now old enough to consult about a proposed investment. I was then 25 years of age, but for the first time felt myself a man. No success of my life ever gave me the keen delight which that recognition from them that I was no longer a boy, afforded me."

Whether the "iron rule" of our forefathers or the system of moral suasion adopted by American parents of the present day produces the better results we leave to our readers to decide by their lives as men and women.—Youth's Companion.

Slaves of the Opium Habit.

Coleridge has been blamed, too severely, perhaps, for his opium bondage. He began its use as a relief from palpitation of the heart and the pains and inflammation of rheumatism. "My sole sensuality was not to be in pain. In an evil hour I procured it. It worked miracles; the swellings disappeared, the pains vanished. I prescribed the newly discovered panacea for all complaints. Alas! it is with a bitter smile, a laugh of gall and bitterness, that I recall this period of unsuspecting delusion, and how I first became aware of the maelstrom, the fatal whirlpool, to which I was drawing." He says De Quincy boasted with morbid vanity of what was his misfortune; for he had been warned, yet willfully struck into the current. "Heaven be merciful to him."—Herald of Health.

The "Gritter" and Its Use.

The "gritter" is a culinary implement used almost exclusively in the mountain regions of Kentucky for reducing roasting ears into a kind of batter from which a delicious bread is baked. It is made of a piece of tin through which holes have been punched with a nail, and resembles a Jumbo edition of a nutmeg grater.—New York Tribune.

From an Artesian Well.

Just before water was reached in the new artesian well at Montezuma, Ga., some strange articles came from it, con-

A SIBERIAN PRISON.

THE June number of the Century Magazine contains the second of George Kennan's illustrated papers on Siberia and the Exile System, which are attracting such wide attention. The articles are being extensively copied into foreign papers, among others the organ of the Russian liberals, published at Geneva, by whom they are very highly commended.

In this June number Mr. Kennan gives an interesting account of his visit to the forwarding prison at Tiumen, where he found double the number of prisoners confined than there was room for.

In reply to a question from Mr. Kennan as to how many prisoners died during the year, the warden replied:

"About three hundred. We have an epidemic of typhus almost every fall. A prison so overcrowded can not be kept clean, and as for the air in the cells, you know now what it is like. The local authorities here have again and again urged the Government to make adequate provision for the large number of exiles crowded into the prison during the season of navigation, but thus far nothing has been done beyond the building of two log barracks."

In the overcrowded women's prison Mr. Kennan says he found no criminals—all of the occupants were voluntarily going into banishment with their husbands.

THE PRISON-YARD AT TIUMEN.
From a sketch made by an exile, in the June "Century."

Mr. Kennan describes the marching away of an exile, and gives, also, a graphic picture of a convict barge. The illustration of this article are remarkably interesting.

The bank commissioners of New Hampshire have requested the Western Investment companies doing business in this state, or whose securities are held by savings banks in the state, to furnish a sworn statement of their condition.

Four hundred houses were burned at Hull, opposite Ottawa, Ont., June 5th; loss over $500,000.

Tony Pastor's theatre and Tammany hall, New York, were badly damaged by fire on the 6th inst.; loss $50,000.

Don't Wait

Until your hair becomes dry, thin, and gray before giving the attention needed to preserve its beauty and vitality. Keep on your toilet-table a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor—the only dressing you require for the hair—and use a little, daily, to preserve the natural color and prevent baldness.

Thomas Munday, Sharon Grove, Ky., writes: "Several months ago my hair commenced falling out, and in a few weeks my head was almost bald. Tried many remedies, but they did no good. I finally bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, after using only a part of the contents, my head was covered with a heavy growth of hair. I recommend your preparation as the best hair-restorer in the world."

"My hair was faded and dry," writes Mabel C. Hardy, of Delavan, Ill.; "but after using a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor it became black and glossy."

OFFICIAL NOTICE!

— OF —

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co.

— FROM THE —

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we respectfully request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

30,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Silver-ware, Window Shades, Drapery, Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Stoves and Ranges, Feathers, Feather Pillows, Spreads, Blankers, Chamber Sets, Parlor Suits, Carpets, Lounges, Easy Chairs, Mattresses, Springs,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the

Furniture, Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET, PARLOR SUIT, Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. There are items worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time, We have invariably paid out the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We wish to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

KITCHEN RANGE, or a CHAMBER SET, or PARLOR SUIT, or CARPETS, WINDOW SHADES, DRAPERY CURTAINS,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of these Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell the same and shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. This notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store, Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

Respectfully, the Public's Ob't Servants,

THE ATKINSON HOUSE FURNISHING CO.,

Headquarters Cor. Pearl and Middle Streets, Portland, and Branches at Auburn, Rockland, Bangor and Biddeford, also Bar Harbor for a short time.

ISAACC. ATKINSON, Gen. Manager.

THE WEATHER.

For New England to-day:—

Fair weather, stationary temperature and southerly winds, followed by cooler westerly winds.

BASE BALL.

At Nashua, on the 6th inst., the Portsmouth club defeated the Nashuas, sixteen to eleven. Daly, left fielder, pitched, and Sherman Newton caught, for the Portsmouths. This was Newton's first appearance with our nine.

The Portland base ball managers announced on the 5th inst. that they would continue in the New England league no longer, but on the solicitation of Manager Burnham of Worcester and Mr. Donnell of Salem, consented to let the team finish the schedule games for the week ending June 9th, in order to give time for New Bedford or some other city to take the franchise.

BOARD OF INSTRUCTION.

The regular meeting of the Board of Instruction was held on Tuesday evening, June 5th, Mayor Hodgdon in the chair.

It was decided to close the spring term on Friday noon, June 29th.

The regular monthly report of the superintendent was read and accepted. In his report the superintendent spoke of the small attendance at the schools of late, and gave as the reason, mumps and measels; in one school there are sixteen scholars out with the mumps.

A small amount of bills were approved.

Adjourned for two weeks.

YORK TELEPHONE EXCHANGE.

A new telephone exchange of thirty-five subscribers is being put in at York, Me., under the supervision of Daniel M. Smith, district manager. The central office will be placed in Walker's store at York Corner, and will probable be ready for use in about one month. The poles have all been hauled, and a gang of workmen commenced on the morning of the 6th inst. to dig holes and place them in position.

THE HORSE RAILROAD.

Mr. Editor:—We suppose every citizen is more or less interested in, the horse railroad, therefore a few suggestions at this time regarding it will be in order. It is true that the legislature at its late session granted to certain individuals the right of way for a horse railroad through our streets, and all that we as a city can now do is to lay out a route as unobjectionable os possible to our citizens. Let us look at the whole matter.

Who asked for the road? Surely not the public; nor does it appear that public necessity demands it. No one for a moment believes that one of the citizens whose names appear in the act of incorporation has invested or would invest a picayune in the enterprise; therefore we must conclude that the others whose names appear there—non-residents, having no interest whatever in our city—have looked upon our fair, narrow streets, only with a greed of gain in their eyes—perhaps of a sort of blackmail, to have this charter bought out of the way by some rich citizen who does not wish to have the road run through his street. Supposing this—although we do not assert it—yet everyone has a right to suppose a case! Surely the last route laid out, whereby a large portion of Middle, State, Court and Pleasants streets are not included and where the greatest opposition to the road was expected, should it approach those localities, would lead one to suppose that "something was in the wind" to cause a change in the route as first proposed, and which was through these localities:

Now if we must have this road, it must be a horse road—no "motor" to frighten the horses and lay the city liable; its tracks should be paved where the horses travel, to prevent our streets from being gutted out in the centre or on the side, whichever they may locate, causing another claim in case of accident, against the city. What will they do in winter—one like the last? streets entirely closed with snow? Look at the lower part of Pleasant street in such a time,—seventeen feet wide; the horse railroad clear their track in such narrow streets, throwing the snow on each side. What can the poor public do? What do corporations care for them ever? Why, they would fill your sidewalk, your front yard, even bank it up to your second-story windows; what care they? And for all this, we are to be allowed to ride the very short distances about our city! Why, one can walk easily from the Creek to South mill bridge in fifteen minutes—and it will do him good, too.

If we must have this road, nolens volens, then let a portion of the route be from the foot of Deer street through Bridge, Hanover, McDonough and Cabot to Islington and the Creek; this is a much easier route than the one proposed. How they can get through the lower portion of Pleasant street without much inconvenience to public travel I cannot see.

But really, if these gentlemen are in earnest about working to benefit the dear people—surely that must be their sole desire in asking so much from them—why don't they put on a line of omnibusses—low ones, such as are used in some cities, as easy to get into and out of as horse cars—and put them on this route? By so doing they would remove all possible objections, and prove beyond a shadow of a doubt that they are what they claim to be, friends of the people.

C. X. R.

Dr. Gage and Associate Physicians, and Their Great Work.

Probably no physician in New England is better and more favorably known, says a New Hampshire exchange, than is Dr. Gage, the gifted specialist, who has treated more than fifteen thousand patients in this state, the announcement of his visits each month being the signal for a grand rally of a multitude of invalids. His success is indeed phenomenal and the reports of marvellous cures would fill this entire paper, the like of which was never known in the history of medical practice. The following is a fair sample:

Mr. Editor: A few months ago my daughter was laying at the point of death. She had a complication of troubles, a terrible cough, raising an immense quantity, a discharging sore upon her hip which rendered her perfectly helpless. Our family physician gave us no hope, but with a mother's will and determination to save her perishing child if possible, I hastened to consult Dr. Gage. Although he did not see her he nevertheless understood the case and his remedies have wrought a miracle—almost—by restoring my child to perfect health. I thank God that I consulted Dr. Gage.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT.

This court, with Justices Colt of the circuit court and Gray of the United States supreme court on the bench, held a brief session in this city on Wednesday, June 6th.

In the case of Fairbanks, assignee, vs. the Amoskeag National bank and others, a question as to whether testimony for which notice had been given by the examiner could be taken upon the merits of the case, or only on the question of the appeal, was discussed. The question will be heard and decided by the circuit judge on the 26th inst. Mr. Frink appeared for Mr. Fairbanks.

The court took a recess until the 26th inst.

PERSONAL.

Hon. Charles Levi Woodbury was in town on Wednesday of this week, and conferred with the chairman of the committee on literary exercises on the 4th of July concerning his oration.

Mr. Hartley W. Mason, of Boston, was in this city on Wednesday.

Miss Lizzie Eastman of Washington, D. C., youngest daughter of the late Comdr. Thos. H. Eastman, U. S. N., is to pass the summer on a visit to her friend Miss Langdon, daughter of Dr. Francis E. Langdon of Pleasant street.

Officer John S. Wendell is captain of the night watch during the absence of Capt. Hobbs on his annual vacation.

At the meeting of the governor and council, June 5th, Capt. George W. Colbath of Dover was appointed warden of the state prison, vice Col. J. Horace Kent, deceased. Mr. Colbath is a veteran of the war, was formerly postmaster of Dover, and is at present a deputy sheriff of Strafford county.

Mr. Joseph A. Meloon, formerly private secretary to Hon. William E. Chandler, then secretary of the navy, has been in town for several days past, en route to the east in the interest of his real estate operations.

Mr. Porter F. Capper, late foreman plumber at the Portsmouth Machine shop, was in this city on the 5th inst. Mrs. Capper will visit friends here during the latter part of the month.

Mr. Fred Clark of Dover has been engaged as clerk for the season now in hand by Landlord S. Ramsdell of the Thompson house, York harbor.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner Lizzie J. Call, of this port, Call master, which is to bring to this port from Bridgeport, Conn., the soldiers' monument, on her return trip from New York, sailed from Bath, Me., for New York, on the 3d inst.

The schooner Hattie J. Averill, Capt. Matthews, left Cape Neddick about nine o'clock Thursday morning, May 31st, with a load of cord wood for Moses Gage's brickyard in Durham; made the run to that place, passing through two drawbridges, discharged her cargo, and was back in Cape Neddick harbor again at nine o'clock Thursday night, June 1st. This was the first load of wood ever taken to Durham by schooner. The Hattie J. Averill arrived in this harbor again on Wednesday, the 6th inst., with another load bound for the same place.

Capt. Daniel Marcy was the first person in this city to raise a Cleveland flag, which he did immediately after the news was received that Cleveland was renominated. Councilman Ryan raised a Cleveland flag from his residence on Water street a few minutes later.

The stone crusher in the city yard was started at work on Wednesday.

The Methodist society held a strawberry festival in their chapel on Wednesday evening.

The Kearsarge house is to be lighted with fifty-five incandescent electric lights.

The laying of the planking of the new Sagamore bridge was finished on Wednesday of this week. The first persons to cross it, other than the workmen, were Mr. Charles P. Wendell, who owns real estate at one end of the bridge, and Mr. Josiah F. Adams, who owns land at the other end; neither knew the other was intending to cross, and they regarded their meeting on the middle of the bridge as somewhat singular.

Wednesday of this week was a real summer day, warm enough to make many people repent for the disrespectful remarks they had been indulging in concerning the cool temperature of the previous weeks.

Mr. F. S. Woods, who has been canvassing this city in the interest of the New Hampshire Bible society, has just closed his labors. He visited 1991 families, of which seven were destitute of the Bible. He gave away thirty-five copies, supplied thirty families, and sold 140 copies of the Bible and New Testament. Amount of sales, $102.33: cash collected, $113.69.

Thunder shower on Wednesday evening, the 6th—more thunder and lightning than shower, in this city. There was apparently plenty of rain all around us.

The sale of liquor has been stopped in Newmarket by a committee, appointed at a meeting of citizens, to enforce the "nuisance" law if need be. It is said that on receiving due notification, the twelve dealers at once gave up, not waiting for the assault at law.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

Distress After Eating Sick Headache Heart-burn Sour Stomach

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." GEORGE A. PAGE, Watertown, Mass.

TAKE THE HINT.

Whene'er an anxious group is seen
Around some monthly magazine
Or paper that is daily whirled
To every quarter of the world,
And merry peals of laughter rise
As this or that attracts the eyes,
The smiling crowd, you may depend,
Above some illustrations bend
That advertise the strength and scope
And purity of IVORY SOAP.

But while they smile or praise bestow
And wonder whence ideas flow,
The fact should still be kept in mind
That people of the knowing kind
Will heed the hints or lessons laid
In rhymes and pictures thus displayed,
And let no precious moments fly
Until the IVORY SOAP they try,
And prove on garments coarse and fine,
The truth of every sketch and line.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS

$22 TO $900. The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861, and has ever since been allowed to be the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all GRAND & UPRIGHT pianos made by others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

GLYCEROLE!
A PRESERVATIVE OF LEATHER.

GLYCEROLE OIL DRESSING FOR SHOES

For Oiling and Dressing Boots, Shoes, Etc.

Ever since the now dispensable article of Shoe Dressing came into existence, it has been the source of constant trouble to parties using it, because it hardened and cracked the leather; to the dealer, because of the complaints of his customers. Conscientious Shoe Dealers have often dissuaded their patrons from using any Shoe Dressing whatever and advised the application of oil, as it is universally known that oil is the only preservative of leather, while all other substances harden, crack and destroy it.

It was claimed for most Dressings heretofore in use that they do not crack leather, but it has never before been claimed that an Oil Dressing could be produced, the composition of which was considered to be an impossibility. After years of patient work however, we have succeeded in solving the problem of producing an oil, which in addition to its softening and preserving qualities gives also an elegant lustre to leather goods.

Glycerole is a veritable oil and the only one in existence which answers the purpose of oiling, and at the same time, dressing leather. It is perfect in its composition, does not rub off or soil dresses or skirts, and imparts to worn goods a soft, oily lustre which positively preserves the leather and protects it from water.

We do not pretend that a single application of Glycerole will improve a shoe already dried and hardened by numerous coats of common shoe dressing, but we do warrant that all shoes oiled and dressed only with Glycerole will be positively improved in wearing quality, as this oil by penetrating into the pores of the leather will give it more supple and add to its durability.

A SCIENTIST'S WARNING.

Extracts From a Remarkable Lecture Delivered by Dr. R. E. Hammond, Before the National Scientist's Convention.

"We are startled constantly by the sudden death of some man who seemed the picture of health. He thought he was well. He had felt strange pains shooting through his body, but as they did not remain, he forgot them. His head pained him periodically, he was somewhat paler than common and unaccountably tired, but he felt comparatively well and vigorous. And yet, he suddenly died! It is a shame to our boasted civilization."

"Look at the list of women who die in childbirth, and why is it? Simply because their maternal organs have been so weakened by the most terrible of diseases that they cannot withstand the fearful, sudde strain that is brought to bear upon them. How many women escape monthly agonies? And yet nature never intended that pain or inconvenience should attend the operation of her natural laws. The solemn and terrible fact is, that men and women drag along, die, and are buried, and their friends and the doctors say heart disease, apoplexy, pneumonia, congestion, convulsions, when the cause lay far back of all these things. The truth is that weakened kidneys are the cause of most of our troubles. The great question, therefore, is: 'How shall I preserve my kidneys, or, if diseased, how can they be restored?' I have seen numbers of cases and learned from unquestionable sources of many others, where the preparation, Hunt's Remedy, has been almost remarkable in its results. I use it freely among my patients, and shall continue to do so. It is a wonderful and invaluable remedy."

The remarks of the learned doctor should be carefully considered, and acted upon by all who desire long life, and freedom from pain and the danger of sudden death.

OH, WHAT A COLD!

This is the season for sudden changes in the weather, and a great many "take cold" either in their Head or on their Lungs, causing Coughs, Hoarseness, and Sore Throat. These troubles can be soon relieved and cured by taking Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs, entirely removing these difficulties.

Cured his boy of Croup.

C. M. BROOKS, Lowell, Mass., says: "I take great pleasure in recommending Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific as a cure for Coughs, Colds, and Croup. I used it in my family last winter with the best results. Two or three doses cured my little boy of Croup, for which I am very thankful."

You can cure that Cough in a short time. You can cure your Catarrh if you persist in its use, as it will stop the secretion of Catarrhal matter in the head; it will relieve Croup in from three to five minutes.

The best he ever saw.

"The best medicine for Coughs and Consumptive Complaints that ever I saw is Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific," so says JOHN MCLAUGHLIN, of Boston.

Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific is sold by all Druggists. Price 50 cents and $1. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

PRESERVING FOOD IN CANS.

Vast Proportions of the Industry—The Housekeeper's Boon.

An industry in this country which has grown to enormous proportions is that of preserving food products by canning and bottling. In 1807 M. Appert, a distinguished French chemist, found that organic substances remained fresh an indefinite time by being kept from contact with the air. Comparatively little use was made of this invention for many years, except by sailors. About the year 1885, however, a small local trade sprang up in this country in canned oysters and tomatoes. The discovery of gold in California gave an impetus to the trade, but the first great expansion of it was during the civil war. Since that time the canned goods trade has advanced by leaps and bounds until at present there is a capital of $11,000,000 invested here in fruit and vegetable canning alone, giving employment to 35,000 persons, who earn yearly $3,000,000, and turn out of goods $30,000,000, leaving a net profit of about 20 per cent. to the investors.

During the war advantage was taken by the Union commissariat department of the economy in bulk and the ease in transportation of canned goods. Canned meat was found useful for rations in forced marches; canned milk was a valuable substitute for fresh milk in the hospitals when the latter could not be had, and the health of the army was largely maintained by canned fruit and vegetables.

At the end of the war those engaged in the manufacture of these goods turned their attention to supplying the European markets with salmon and lobster. The lobster export trade had started ten years previously in the New England states. Soon after the Canadians began the salmon packing industry, but did not meet with success. But the utilization of the enormous run of salmon up the Columbia and other rivers on the Pacific coast put new life into the industry. Some idea of how much the trade has grown may be gathered from the fact that, while in 1866 the pack of salmon was only 4,000 cases, during the past four years it has averaged 3,800,000.

The next great era in the trade was the compression of corned beef. Chicago, being a great cattle center, at once embarked heavily in this enterprise. Foreign governments largely recognized the value of this system of preserving beef. They ordered large quantities of it for consumption by their war forces. Much of this was stored as a reserve in case of war, but as the supply was exhausted it has been continually renewed, to the profit of the American.

The success of the Americans in canning goods provoked the English and French people to emulation. Unable to compete with the United States in what had been already done, they turned their attention to the canning of delicacies. This trade was developed to a very large extent in Europe, and extended to this country. But the importation of these goods has fallen off in recent years, as this country has gone into the manufacture of this class of goods, and produces a much cheaper article, not at all inferior to the imported.

The development of the canned goods industry has been great, but the variety of articles treated in this way has been even greater. Beginning as it did with ship's beef, it has extended until it embraces nearly all the desirable products of the animal and vegetable kingdom. Lieut. Greely, after his famous arctic expedition, said that canned apples, peaches, pears, rhubarb, green peas, green corn, onions, potatoes and tomatoes were all subjected to the temperature of 60 degs. below zero. They were solid for many months at a time, the second summer they thawed, and the following winter they were frozen solid again. When these articles were eaten they presented the same appearance as though freshly canned, and their flavor was as good when the last can was opened as during the first month.

Canned goods have proved a great boon to the housekeeper. In cities, at any rate, the goods preserved are cheaper than if bought in the fresh condition. This arises from the fact that they are always packed where the material is cheapest and most abundant. A great economy is exercised, too, by the wholesale preparation of meat and fish.

The popular idea that canned goods are injurious to health is a mistake. Tin, which forms the coating of the thin iron plates of which the cans are made, is not acted on at all by any ordinary acids or by the gases of decomposition. Certain firms in this city have followed up every case of alleged poisoning from canned goods without finding a single one of them authentic. The ordinary precautions of taste and smell as applied to fresh goods are a sufficient protection against danger in similar goods when canned, and, judging by the progress of the past decade in this method of food preservation, it seems likely to have a still larger future before it.—New York Sun.

The Manufacture of Crutches.

There are but three factories in the United States in which crutches are exclusively manufactured, one each in Boston, Philadelphia and New York. The crutches which meet with the readiest sale are those with elastic tops, which are generally made of rosewood, lancewood or rock maple, with a patent rubber cushioned bottom. They sell for $12 a pair. The "cow horn" crutch is made of a cheap grade of maple with nickel plated ferrules. The handles are securely fastened by a wire rivet running through both sides of the crutch and handles. This is light, tasty and durable. The arm pieces and handles are made of black cherry. This crutch brings $10 at retail. Many crutches are made to order, their price depending on the material employed in their construction. Some cost as high as $100 a pair.—Detroit Free Press.

Science in the Household.

There is heat enough wasted around an ordinary kitchen range—to say nothing of the furnace—to furnish all the power needed to run the sewing machine, pump water for an elevator, and light the dwelling by electricity. The same waste of heat of the cooking apparatus might be made to cool the house in summer and to dispense with the ice bill.

When nitrate of ammonia, for example, is dissolved in water it absorbs an enormous amount of heat and the principle is readily applied in the construction of refrigerating chambers. Properly elaborated and located these could be so arranged as to keep meats, etc., better than the ordinary ice box, to cool water for drinking more wholesomely than the average ice supply, and to send volumes of cold air down through shafts to registers in the ceilings of rooms so that the heat of summer might be tempered as certainly as the cold of winter. The same supply of the ammonia salt may be used repeatedly by evaporating the water, for which purpose the waste heat above spoken of could be utilized. The possibilities of applied science in the household have not been even nibbled at.—Chicago News.

Didn't Know All His Neighbors.

A distinguished clergyman once asked a gentleman to contribute money for foreign missions, and received the reply:

"I don't believe in foreign missions. I won't give anything except to home missions. I want to benefit my neighbors."

"Well," responded the doctor, "whom do you regard as your neighbors?"

"Why, those around me."

"Do you mean those whose land joins yours?"

"Yes."

"Well, how much land do you own?"

"About 500 acres."

"How far down do you own it?"

"Why, I never thought of it before, but I suppose I own half way through."

"Exactly," was the reply. "I suppose you do, and I want this money for the Chinese, the men whose land joins yours on the bottom—Pacific.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam for coughs and colds does, is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles are 50c. and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. Weary and Worn.

When the tired factory operative, the weary out-door laborer, the overtasked bookkeeper or clerk seeks a medical recompense for expenditure of bodily force, where shall he find it? Could the recorded experience of thousands of workers be voiced, the verdict would be that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters renews failing strength, stimulates the jaded mental powers to fresh activity, and relaxes undue nervous tension as nothing else does. Digestion, a regular habit of body, appetite and sleep are promoted by it, and it is an admirable auxiliary in the recovery of health by convalescents. A fastidious stomach is not offended by it, and to persons of both sexes in delicate health who occasionally feel the need of an efficient tonic, the whole range of the pharmacopœia and the catalogue of proprietary medicines does not present a more useful, safer or more decisive one. It is also incomparable for fever and ague, rheumatism and kidney troubles.

"Was Eve the first woman," was the title of a lecture recently delivered down east. Of course we didn't hear the lecture, but we know the first woman that ever used Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup never experienced such a happy cure for her cough or cold.

The 250th anniversary of the settlement of Exeter was celebrated in that town on Thursday, the 7th inst., in accordance with the previously published programme.

That tired feeling and loss of appetite are entirely overcome by Hood's Sarsaparilla, the peculiar medicine. Try it and see.

On the 7th at about two o'clock in the afternoon, Allan G. Thurman was nominated by acclamation as candidate for vice-president.

Gen. Sheridan.

The physcians at two o'clock P. M., on the 7th, issued the following bulletin: "General Sheridan's condition has continued as described in this morning's bulletin. Within the last hour there has been a pronounced tendency to heart failure, which has up to this time been successfully warded off."

The Oregon Election.

The administration party are greatly disappointed at the result of the election in Oregon, the contest having been conducted as a free-trade fight by the democrats, and a protection fight by the republicans. Smith M. Weed of New York, whose familiarity with Oregon politics dates back to the time when Cronin "flocked by himself" and attempted to organize as an electoral college during the Tilden cipher campaign, was sent out more than a month ago to take charge of the administration interests and to return a good majority in favor of Cleveland and tariff reform. Mr. John P. Irish, who found the fact of his holding an important federal office no embarrassment, was delegated to aid him, The result of their joint manipulation has given great discouragement to the friends of the administration.

Cyclone in Canada.

Ottawa, Ont., was struck by a cyclone June 6th, and great damage done, buildings being blown down or unroofed, and the streets blocked with wreck. The storm lasted but fifteen minutes, The Protestant hospital was struck by lightning, and damaged by fire to the amount of $50,000. A Catholic church was demolished, one girl killed and a number of children injured. Three men were killed by a barn blowing down. It is feared that many lives were lost.

Oregon Leads Off.

Under the above heading the Dover Democrat of the 6th, inst, says:

The news we publish to-day from Oregon of the election there last Monday is a solemn warning to the worshippers of the wooden calf stalled in Washington that they had better be putting their houses in order, get themselves into a repentant mood and energetically implore a remission of their manifold transgressions, for the day of judgment is coming. What a cooler the news must have been to the herd of cranks that were cutting up their didos at St. Louis! What a greeting this is that the Pacific slope sends to Grover! It is the beginning of the end, and thrown out now in solemn warning of the final doom impending. It promises the verification of our belief that Cleveland will not get a single electoral vote outside of the old slave states. It is going to be a complete knock-out. Isn't it about time to fire a salute over his second nomination? Hurry up those subscriptions and let us begin to enthusiastically enthoose, for time is short and mighty onsartin.

The twelfth reunion of the Tenth New Hampshire veterans will occur at Bedford, on Thursday, June 21st, the twenty-third anniversary of the "muster out" of the regiment. Round trip tickets from this city to Manchester will be $1.65 each, and passage from Manchester to Bedford and return, in barges, twenty-five cents. The committee appointed at the officers' meeting, in March, to arrange for the publication of a regimental history, are requested to have their report ready to submit to the association. Comrades having mementoes, relics, or souvenirs of the "old days" will add interest to the occasion by taking them to the reunion.

Forty-five non-union lasters have been secured in a shoe factory at Hudson, Mass., in place of strikers. The-town is giving the new men ample police protection.

THE TRUE BLOODHOUND.

A Descendant of the Deer Hounds of Old England—Characteristics.

The true bloodhound originated from the old Talbot breed of Northern England. From these deer hounds of old England the modern Texas bloodhound is descended. Of course there are other species of bloodhounds, viz., the Siberian bloodhound, which is an immense animal, and too entirely ferocious to use in the pursuit of any human being, and the Cuban or Spanish bloodhound, which is nearly akin to the one just named. These latter were used by the Spanish colonists to track Indians, and in later times to reclaim fugitive slaves, but they have rarely, if ever, been used by any one in the United States. They are, besides, an entirely different breed of dogs.

The Cuban bloodhound is a combination of the deer hound, the ferocious mastiff and the Russian (or Siberian) greyhound. They thus unite the unerring scent of the deer hound, the savage bloodthirstiness of the mastiff and the fleetness of the greyhound. They will track a fugitive, and, having "bayed" him, will tear him in pieces.

Far different from this terrible animal is the genuine Texas bloodhound. The name "blood" hound is, in fact, in a certain sense, a misnomer. The Texas hound is not a savage animal, save when wounded, or when resistance is made. They are true descendants of the splendid animals which made such royal sport for the Norman kings and nobles. Gentle, patient, untiring and magnificent in strength, they are at once the patricians of their race and the favorites of their masters. The cruel admixture of blood which gives the Cuban hound his devilish hatred of a fleeing foe is, happily, absent from the physical development of our American hounds. Indeed, public opinion would not for a moment tolerate the use of the Cuban hound in pursuit of criminals, even of the most desperate character. The object to be attained by the use of bloodhounds is not the death or mangling of the man pursued, but his capture, and the hound is, therefore, called into requisition not on account of his powers of destruction, but because his unerring instinct will guide him straight and true on the path the culprit has taken, even though twenty-four hours may have elapsed and rains have fallen and winds have blown to render the scent cold and faint and perplexing. These noble animals have inherited all the instincts of their forefathers, who gave back the deep and mellow echo of their bay in English glades in response to the notes blown by royal lips.

When Cœur de Lion and his noble train pursued the fleeing stag through sunny Sherwood's forest aisles they knew by the note of the hound that the antlered foe, arrow stricken and bleeding, was bayed by the faithful pack, but only bayed. The panting animal did not attempt to slake his thirst in the blood of his majestic prey, as the Cuban hound would have done, but sore and famishing as he was, he kept the buck on the defensive until the hunters arrived, and it was only when the arm of his royal or noble master had driven home the sharp steel blade that he ventured to feast on the rich, red current which flowed from the stricken throat of the gallant foe which had led him many a weary mile that day over bog and moor, mountain stream and bosky thicket.

And in this power of restraint consists the great, the true value of the Texas bloodhound. He responds faithfully to the inherited instincts of his race. Trained to track a stag, he will follow him until he has bayed him, and will leave the victim unharmed until the arrival of the hunter. Trained to track man, he will do the same thing exactly. Hence, as sheriffs do not desire the death but the capture of criminals, it will easily be seen how far superior the Texas hound is to his Cuban cousin, and how much better adapted to the needs of a humane and civilized people.

It may be taken as an absolute fact that no fugitive need fear harm from a Texas bloodhound if, when brought to a stand, he will remain quiet until his captors come. If he offers resistance, continues his flight or wounds the hound, why, then the hound will do just as his master would do under similar circumstances, and resort to extreme measures to defend himself.—Galveston Cor. Globe-Democrat.

The Axioms Are Few.

In speaking to his daughter of his early struggles for an education, the late Judge Jere Black told her that in his youth he considered the multitude of law books and despaired of learning law. Recovering himself, he set to work manfully and became one of the greatest lawyers of the country, not, as he tells us, by learning all the books contained, but by learning that all right law rests on a few plain principles. The mastery of these and the ability to apply them makes the great lawyer to whom the world looks as to one "who speaks with authority."

It is so in every department of human knowledge. The axioms are few. The difficulty is in reaching them, hidden as they are under a vast multitude of conclusions, legitimate and illegitimate, true and false. Ability to go straight to the first principles is the highest gift of right education. A trained memory is a most valuable mental faculty if it results in this faculty of penetration. Without it the trained memory has little value except for display. Or, we might say more correctly, that it has no result reaching value.—St. Louis Republican.

A Judge of Horses.

A city hall official who has owned a bay horse for the last seven years has been talking of buying another to match him, and the other day some of the boys went up to the barn and brought his equine down and hitched him in front of the building, and then had the owner come out and look at him.

"That beast," he said, as he looked into his mouth, "is all of 20 years old. I also notice that he is spavined and weak in the back."

"Oh, you are mistaken, sir," replied the seller. "I warrant him as sound as a dollar."

"Don't attempt to jockey me!" said the owner. "I wouldn't give you $75 for him. Talk about a match! Why, he's three shades lighter, 200 pounds heavier, and looks like an old cow beside my horse! You'd better make a dicker with some expressman."—Detroit Free Press.

A SIBERIAN PRISON.

HE June number of the Century Magazine contains the second of George Kennan's illustrated papers on Siberia and the Exile System, which are attracting such wide attention. The articles are being extensively copied into foreign papers, among others the organ of the Russian liberals, published at Geneva, by whom they are very highly commended.

In this June number Mr. Kennan gives an interesting account of his visit to the forwarding prison at Tiumen, where he found double the number of prisoners confined than there was room for.

In reply to a question from Mr. Kennan as to how many prisoners died during the year, the warden replied:

"About three hundred. We have an epidemic of typhus almost every fall. A prison so overcrowded can not be kept clean, and as for the air in the cells, you know now what it is like. The local authorities here have again and again urged the Government to make adequate provision for the large number of exiles crowded into the prison during the season of navigation, but thus far nothing has been done beyond the building of two log barracks."

In the overcrowded women's prison Mr. Kennan says he found no criminals—all of the occupants were voluntarily going into banishment with their husbands.

THE PRISON-YARD AT TIUMEN.
From a sketch made by an exile, in the June "Century."

Mr. Kennan describes the marching away of an exile, and gives, also, a graphic picture of a convict barge. The illustration of this article are remarkably interesting.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooners James A. Gray, Coleman Master, and Emily C. Dennison, Garland, arrived at Saco on the 6th inst., with pig iron for the Water Power company.

The schooner Clara E. Simpson, of this port, Hontvet master, arrived at Boston on the 6th inst. from Georgetown, D. C. The schooner Grace K. Green, of this port, Seaward master, arrived at Lynn on the same date, from New York.

The captain of the American fishing schooner A. H. Knight, whose vessel was seized for alleged violation of the Dominion laws, attempted to take his vessel out of the harbor of St. John's, N. F., on the 5th inst. and was arrested.

The British barque Balaklava arrived at San Francisco on the 5th inst. from London, after the remarkably long passage of one year and seventy-four days. Her misfortunes were many. There was not on her arrival a sailor on board who shipped in England. Ten sailors were washed overboard and drowned in a storm off Cape Horn. While at Valparaiso for repairs, the remainder of the crew deserted. The barque was again caught in a storm after leaving that port, and lost two more men.

The enthusiasm in this city over the nomination of Cleveland is of the wet blanket order. "Not a drum was heard," but there were lots of funeral notes.—Penny Post.

OFFICIAL NOTICE!

— OF —

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co.

— FROM THE —

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we respectfully request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

30,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Silver-ware, Window Shades, Drapery, Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Stoves and Ranges, Feathers, Feather Pillows, Spreads, Blankers, Chamber Sets, Parlor Suits, Carpets, Lounges, Easy Chairs, Mattresses, Springs,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the

Furniture, Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET, PARLOR SUIT, Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. There are items worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time, We have invariably paid out the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We wish to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

KITCHEN RANGE, or a CHAMBER SET, or PARLOR SUIT, or CARPETS, WINDOW SHADES, DRAPERY CURTAINS,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of these Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell the same and shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. This notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store. Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

Respectfully, the Public's Ob't Servants,

THE ATKINSON HOUSE FURNISHING CO.,

Headquarters Cor. Pearl and Middle Streets, Portland, and Branches at Auburn, Rockland, Bangor and Biddeford, also Bar Harbor for a short time.

POLICE COURT---BATCHELDER J.

THURSDAY, June 7th.

James Palmer, charged with the murder of Henry T. Whitehouse, was before the court on a continuations of the case. The hearing was held in the court house, which was packed with spectators from ten o'clock in the forenoon, when the hearing commenced, until its close at about four in the afternoon. City Solicitor Emery appeared for the state, and Hon. Calvin Page for the prisoner. At the close of the hearing Palmer was held without bail for the October term of the supreme court, and committed to jail. Nothing new in the line of testimony was adduced.

BASE BALL.

The Portsmouth and Dover clubs were scheduled to play a game at Dover on Thursday afternoon, the 7th inst., and had played four innings when the game was stopped on account of rain, the score then standing nine to four in favor of the Portsmouths. Moriarity pitched for Dover, and was batted for seven runs in the 1st inning.

"Are you there, Moriarity ?" He was, and the boys found him; where he would have been had nine innings been played is hard to imagine.

The Haverhill club will make a first appearance on the Portsmouth grounds this (Friday) afternoon, play being called at three o'clock.

The Salem club, of the New England league, will play a game with the Portsmouth club on the South street grounds, June 12th.

W. J. SAMPSON, for the Committee.

Dr. Gage and Associate Physicians, and Their Great Work.

Probably no physician in New England is better and more favorably known, says a New Hampshire exchange, than is Dr. Gage, the gifted specialist, who has treated more than fifteen thousand patients in this state, the announcement of his visits each month being the signal for a grand rally of a multitude of invalids. His success is indeed phenomenal and the reports of marvellous cures would fill this entire paper, the like of which was never known in the history of medical practice. The following is a fair sample:

Mr. Editor; A few months ago my daughter was laying at the point of death. She had a complication of troubles, a terrible cough, raising an immense quantity, a discharging sore upon her hip which rendered her perfectly helpless. Our family physician gave us no hope, but with a mother's will and determination to save her perishing child if possible, I hastened to consult Dr. Gage. Although he did not see her he nevertheless understood the case and his remedies have wrought a miracle—almost—by restoring my child to perfect health. I thank God that I consulted Dr. Gage.

"THE KING'S DAUGHTRES."

In our report of the dedication of Rosemary Cottage at Eliot it was stated that the collation was furnished by "The King's Daughters." The following explanation as to who the King's Daughters are we take from the Times.

"The King's Daughters" is an organization two years old, and was formed by ten ladies in New York city, after Dr. Edward Everett Hale's system as told in his fascinating "Ten Times One," for Christian work, with the watchword "In His Name." The society also adopts Mr. Hale's motto to Look forward, and not back;

Look out, and not in;
Look up; and not down;
Lend a hand.

The good done is performed by them quietly and without ostentation; no trumpets blare when a kind work is spoken to one in distress, cymbals do not clash when charity is extended, and heralds do not proclaim the fact when good is done.

It is stated that twenty thousand Daughters of the King are now decorated with the emblem of the order—a little Maltese cross with "I. H. N." engraved on one side, the symbol of love, tied with a bit of purple ribbon to signify royalty, as the badges of sister hood. A member suggested the name of "King's Daughters," after the King's daughter in the Psalms, who is described as "all glorious within." Each of this original "ten" formed other "tens," and so on. Each ten formed its own work. There are now "Anti-Gossip Tens," tens that sing, tens that sew for the poor, tens to visit hospitals, the "Quiet Tens," the "Courteous Tens," the "Old Maids' Tens," and the "Old Ladies' Tens," whose youngest member is eighty years of age.

There are circles in thirty-eight states, also in Canada, England, France, India, Australia and New Zealand. The members include women belonging to the wealthier classes, as well as the poor shop girls, and is purely unsectarian. A year ago the society had not been regularly organized, but now there are a president, vice-president, secretary and correspondent, central councils, circles and "tens." At New York, Fifth avenue belles and matrons, ladies of all ages from the snowy-haired great-grandmothers to the daughter of sweet sixteen, ladies from many contiguous towns and remote distances, meet with one common interest, and each woman wears the little Greek cross.

The branch in Eliot is the only one in Maine, and already has accomplished great yet unostentatious good. Nearly every week during the past winter "The King's Daughters" in that town have done a most noble work in sending dainties and flowers to the patients in Boston hospitals, and in other deeds of charity.

Any woman may become a daughter by writing to Miss G. H. Libby, No. 18 Washington place, New York, for the badge. All that is required of her is to join a ten, or form one and report it to the society. The whole groundwork of the sisterhood is "loving kindness" and gentle deeds done "In His Name."

GOSPEL TEMPERANCE MEETINGS.

Rev. George W. Pierce, gospel temperance evangelist, of South Paris, Me., will in a few day begin a series of gospel temperance meetings in this city. He will use oil paintings on canvas, life size, to illustrate the evils of intemperence. Mr. Pierce was formerly for thirteen years a captive to strong drink, so he knows personally, to some extent, whereof he speaks. He has been engaged in gospel temperance work with D. C. Moody, and comes strongly recommended by the press and clergy of places where he has labored.

HE GOT A DIVORCE.

The following from the Press of St. Paul, Minn., concerns persons well known as former residents of this city:

Brainard Dearborn was granted a divorce yesterday from his wife, Lizzie A. Dearborn, whose maiden name was Clark. In its details the case is quite a breezy one. He petitioned for the divorce, and she put in an answer, and also asked to be released from her marital bonds. The parties were married in October, 1885. The plaintiff is at present thirty years old, according to his own statement, forty-three according to hers, and she is thirty. If all his allegations are true, Mrs. Dearborn must be a perfect Amazon, with pronounced virago proclivities. He says she has rendered him hors de combat on several occasions by knockout blows with her fists; she poured hot soup over him, and made life a miserable burden. Her tongue, too, he says, is sharper than a razor, and her oratory is of the most vehement style imaginable. It is impossible, he affirms, for him to abide with her and live out half his days, as he is in constant fear of bodily injury. There is no issue to the marriage. She in her answer alleges that he is the one who goes in the first work, and she is the innocent victim of his brutal attacks. She claims that he deserted her in November, 1887, and has not shown up at home since. She has been compelled to sleep on the floor times innumerable, she affirms, and has been knocked down stairs on at least one occasion, and her skirt stuffed into her mouth to drown her cries. Judge Baxter seized up the evidence as well as the physical points of the fond couple, and granted the divorce in favor of the plaintiff.

MUSIC HALL.

Zozo, the Magic Queen," is to be presented in Music hall next Wednesday evening, The piece is well known as one of the most gorgeous spectacular extravaganzas ever put on the stage; and the costumes and scenery are all new. The leading character among the dramatis personæ is "Washington Knowall," represented by Geo. H. Adams. "Washington" is a typical American, and quite a brick. He is not at all abashed at fairies and glittering grottoes and magic gardens, but promptly accommodates himself to the surroundings. "Zozo" is personated by Miss Blanche Curtiese.

Now is the time to have your Hot-Air Furnace properly cleaned out, and a coat of Anti-Rust Varnish put on; the sulphuric acid in the soot will do the furnace more damage in the summer, than a whole winter's use. Mr. C. W. Taylor, Nos. 42 and 44 Market street, makes the work a specialty. You cannot expect your furnace to do the work unless it is free from dirt.

The city books have been received, and citizens can procure them by calling at the city clerk's office in the city building.

The remains of Mrs. Charles H. Ladd were brought to this city on Thursday, the 7th inst., for interment.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

Distress After Eating

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

GLYCEROLE!
A PRESERVATIVE OF LEATHER.

For Oiling and Dressing Boots, Shoes, Etc.

Ever since the now dispensable article of Shoe Dressing came into existence, it has been the source of constant trouble to parties using it, because it hardened and cracked the leather; to the dealer, because of the complaints of his customers. Conscientious Shoe Dealers have often dissuaded their patrons from using any Shoe Dressing whatever and advised the application of oil, as it is universally known that oil is the only preservative of leather, while all other substances harden, crack and destroy it.

It was claimed for most Dressings heretofore in use that they do not crack leather, but it has never before been claimed that an Oil Dressing could be produced, the composition of which was considered to be an impossibility. After years of patient work however, we have succeeded in solving the problem of producing an oil, which in addition to softening and preserving qualities gives also an elegant lustre to leather goods.

Glycerole is a veritable oil and the only one in existence which answers the purpose of oiling, and at the same time, dressing leather. It is perfect in its composition, does not rub off or soil dresses or skirts, and imparts to worn goods a soft, oily lustre which positively preserves the leather and protects it from water.

We do not pretend that a single application of Glycerole will improve a shoe already dried and hardened by numerous coats of common shoe dressing, but we do warrant that all shoes oiled and dressed only with Glycerole will be positively improved in wearing quality, as this oil by penetrating into the pores of the leather will make it more supple and add to its durability.

A SCIENTIST'S WARNING.

Extracts From a Remarkable Lecture Delivered by Dr. R. E. Hammond, Before the National Scientist's Convention.

"We are startled constantly by the sudden death of some man who seemed the picture of health. He thought he was well. He had felt strange pains shooting through his body, but as they did not remain, he forgot them. His head pained him periodically, he was somewhat paler than common and unaccountably tired, but he felt comparatively well and vigorous. And yet, he suddenly died! It is a shame to our boasted civilization."

"Look at the list of women who die in childbirth, and why is it? Simply because their maternal organs have been so weakened by the most terrible of diseases that they cannot withstand the fearful, sudde strain that is brought to bear upon them. How many women escape monthly agonies? And yet nature never intended that pain or inconvenience should attend the operation of her natural laws. The solemn and terrible fact is, that men and women drag along, die, and are buried, and their friends and the doctors say heart disease, apoplexy, pneumonia, congestion, convulsions, when the cause lay far back of all these things. The truth is that weakened kidneys are the cause of most of our troubles. The great question, therefore, is: 'How shall I preserve my kidneys, or, if diseased, how can they be restored?' I have seen numbers of cases and learned from unquestionable sources of many others, where the preparation, Hunt's Remedy, has been almost remarkable in its results. I use it freely among my patients, and shall continue to do so. It is a wonderful and invaluable remedy."

The remarks of the learned doctor should be carefully considered, and acted upon by all who desire long life, and freedom from pain and the danger of sudden death.

More than twenty years ago Adamson's Botanic Balsam was introduced generally throughout New England as a remedy for Coughs, Colds and Pulmonary complaints. Since its introduction it has constantly won its way into public favor, until now it is the universal decision that ADAMSON'S BOTANIC BALSAM is the best remedy for curing Coughs, Colds and Asthma.

OH, WHAT A COLD!

THIS is the season for sudden changes in the weather, and a great many "take cold" either in their Head or on their Lungs, causing Coughs, Hoarseness, and Sore Throat. These troubles can be soon relieved and cured by taking Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs, entirely removing these difficulties.

Cured his boy of Croup.

C. M. BROOKS, Lowell, Mass., says: "I take great pleasure in recommending Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific as a cure for Coughs, Colds, and Croup. I used it in my family last winter with the best results. Two or three doses cured my little boy of Croup, for which I am very thankful."

You can cure that Cough in a short time. You can cure your Catarrh if you persist in its use, as it will stop the secretion of Catarrhal matter in the head; it will relieve Croup in from three to five minutes.

The best he ever saw.

"The best medicine for Coughs and Consumptive Complaints that ever I saw is Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific," so says JOHN MCLAUGHLIN, of Boston.

Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific is sold by all Druggists. Price 50 cents and $1. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

The Prophet's Birthday in Algiers.

The "alzaoui" assembled under a great olive, and formed a circle of about thirty musicians, most of whom played rhythmic and deafening music on large tamborines. There was a general call for a certain Mohammed, one of their regular half witted dancers and fanatics. He appeared, bareheaded and the upper part of his body almost naked. He crouched with the musicians, and began nodding, first with the measure of the music, then, with groans of "Allah! Allah! Mohammed!" he became half frantic, jumping to the center of the ring, his head swinging all the while as if tied on his shoulders with strings. As he sank to the ground from exhaustion his friends made several efforts to replace his dirty rags by a clean white gown, which they thought him justly entitled to, but it was all in vain; he fought against it, preferred his rags, and went away in them. An old man near us was also suddenly seized with such violent emotions that he fell, shaking and screaming to such an extent that his brethren, not wishing him, for some reason, to get up and dance, held him down, with their knees on his chest and legs, until the fury of his religious convictions had subsided.

This emotion seemed genuine, and we were assured that it was, although other parts of their religious services, or rather feats, appear to be accompanied with jugglery and deception. Several other members of their sect entered the circle moved by some inspiration to dance off their frenzy, one of them crying out for a red hot shovel, which he bent with a blow on his forehead, licked with his tongue, and bent again by slapping with the palm of his hand; he then turned his heel on it until his flesh burned like a horse's hoof being shod, giving out a similar odor. This performance ended, another asked for a cactus leaf and a piece of glass; these he bit into, devoured half the leaf with the long thorns, chewing and apparently swallowing the glass, and took his seat again in a swooning condition, moaning after his excitement. What gave a local character to the whole scene, where the thousands were packed in amphitheater round the howling alsaoui, was the high pitched "You-you-you-you-you!" uttered by the women at intervals as the animated actions below progressed in interest and intensity.—F. A. Bridgman in Harper's Magazine.

Literature Makes the Man.

Yet the very points that have made the Light Brigade famous are the loss and the readiness—the sending of a cavalry command to ride "into the jaws of death," to ride to certain and inevitable slaughter, and the soldierly readiness to go where they were sent. Our men over and over did the same thing; did it, as the losses prove, in cases where the danger was greater and the ready courage equal; yet the trumpet of fame is filled with the names of the Light Brigade and our heroes are forgotten. This is the justice of glory, but a common incident enough.

An ancient once observed that other men had fought as well as Achilles, and wondered why the world always talked about him; and the answer was that the other men had no Homer. Our regiments were in fact rather worse off than to be merely without a Tennyson. For the component parts of the glory of the Light Brigade are a little fighting and a good deal of literature. The soldiers did their part there and here—the literary men did the rest for the Light Brigade. Our men fought for a nation that is practically indifferent to literature. England is a literary as well as a military nation. —New York Express.

Engineering Operation of Birds.

A New York paper speaks of a couple of orioles that have built a nest in a tree at Central park. In order that no animal able to climb a tree might reach their nest, they built their habitation at the extreme end of a light branch, and when the work was half done they saw that the little house was bending the branch so far toward the earth that when the house was full of young ones it would be so near the ground that dogs and cats might reach it.

Here is where the reasoning power showed itself. The birds sat on the branch studying their house for a time, and then flew off in search of a string. They found some twine in the park, and with it they united the too elastic boughs to a sturdy branch overhead, resuming their nest building after the string had been firmly woven. The branch can now sag only to the limits of this cleverly contrived stay, and will not bend far enough toward the earth to expose their young to danger from cats or other predatory animals. There are brains in that engineering operation.—Hall's Journal of Health.

To Keep Water Cool.

An excellent device for keeping the contents of the water jug cool is to make a sack of some strong, close stuff, large enough to make a space of two inches under and around the jug, which space is packed with sawdust. Put a string around the jug at the bottom. The length of this string, plus six inches, will be the proper measure of the sack at that point. In the same way the proper measure of the sack along the curve of the jug can be obtained. The bottom of the sack is cut by placing the jug on the cloth and cutting around, two and one-half inches from the jug. The sides of the sack are best made in four pieces. Sew these pieces to the bottom and together for two or three inches. Then pack in the sawdust as far as the pieces are sewed together, and make another sewing, etc. The sack must be sewed close around the handle and the lips of the jug. Water in this jug will be cool after an exposure of six hours to the hot sun.—American Agriculturist.

Lincoln's Faith in Grant.

He peremptorily refused to remove Gen. Grant from the command at Vicksburg at a time when the clamor was loudest for his dismissal on the ground that he would not fight. This was in the month of May, 1863. Lincoln said to Gen. Singleton, of Quincy, Ills., who is yet alive to confirm it: "Senators Wade, Henry Wilson and Grimes were the most infuriated men I ever saw. Even Elihu B. Washburne, who had done more towards Grant's elevation than any other man, and seemed so devoted to his fortunes, came to me and demanded his removal. Grant assures me," replied Lincoln, "that he will take Vicksburg by the 4th of July, and, by jing! (his usual oath) he shall have a chance. I have confidence in him as a great military genius, and I believe that he will do as he says. But I am the only friend he seems to have left." Lincoln also thus expressed himself shortly before his death: "If I had done as my Washington friends, who fight battles with their tongues at a safe distance from the enemy, would have had me do, Grant, who proved himself so great a captain, would never have been heard of again."—Ward H. Lamon.

Ex-Secretary of the Navy Robeson, who has for some years past made Little Boar's Head his summer home, will not be there this summer, owing to financial distress. Mr. Robeson is hereafter to practice law in Trenton, N. J., and begin over again as a practioner before the supreme court of that state. The ex-secretary owes his misfortunes, it is said, to unfortunate speculations in Wall street.

The dean of Canterbury and the bishop of Exeter advocate abolishing woman's disfranchisement in Britain. How much better their example than that of Bishop Doane, of Albany.

A Great Battle

Is continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. A good reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla is the weapon with which to defend one's self, drive the desperate enemy from the field, and restore peace and bodily health for many years. Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam for coughs and colds does, is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles are 50c. and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption. tje23

Weary and Worn.

When the tired factory operative, the weary out-door laborer, the overtasked bookkeeper or clerk seeks a medical recompense for expenditure of bodily force, where shall he find it? Could the recorded experience of thousands of workers be voiced, the verdict would be that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters renews failing strength, stimulates the jaded mental powers to fresh activity, and relaxes undue nervous tension as nothing else does. Digestion, a regular habit of body, appetite and sleep are promoted by it, and it is an admirable auxiliary in the recovery of health by convalescents. A fastidious stomach is not offended by it, and to persons of both sexes in delicate health who occasionally feel the need of an efficient tonic, the whole range of the pharmacopœia and the catalogue of proprietary medicines does not present a more useful, safer or more decisive one. It is also incomparable for fever and ague, rheumatism and kidney troubles.

It is declared that Depew is out of the presidential race.

Delicate Children, Nursing

Mothers, overworked men and for all diseases where the tissues are wasting away from the inability to digest food, or from overwork; should take Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites. "I used the Emulsion on a lady who was delicate. It put her in such good health and flesh, that I must say it is the best Emulsion."—L. P. Waddell, M. D., Hugh's Mills, S. C.

Tony Pastor's and Tammany Hall were damaged by fire the 7th inst.

Backache, stitches in the side, inflation and soreness of the bowels, are symptoms of a disordered state of the digestive and assimilative organs, which can be corrected by the use of Ayer's Cathartic Pills.

A destructive cyclone visited Ottawa, Canada, June 7th, doing great damage and resulting in loss of life.

Lorenzo Mund, Providence, R. I., writes: "I contracted a severe cold which settled on my lungs, causing inflammation and distress. I had night sweats and fever for eight or nine days, lost my appetite, and friends said I was in consumption. After considerable doctoring, from which I received no benefit, I was advised to try Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam, and the result is my appetite is good, night sweats and fever have left me, am gaining in flesh and getting to feel like a new man."

The annual commencement exercises of Boston university were held at Tremont Temple, Boston, this week.

The Postmaster,

Winchester, Mass., says: I am personally acquainted with Mr. and Mrs. Carleton, and was astonished at the remarkable effects of your Sulphur Bitters in curing their son, and its large sale is undoubtedly due to the fact that it is an honest medicine. I know of many others who have been cured by its use, and I do not think too much can be said in its praise.—Yours truly, Geo. P. Brown, P. M.

After trying numerous so-called catarrh remedies and receiving no benefit I was finally induced to try Ely's Cream Balm, and after using one bottle I take great pleasure in recommending it to all sufferers from catarrh. —N. L. Gorton, with S. Gorton & Co., Gloucester, Mass.

I was a sufferer from catarrh for fifteen years with distressing pain over my eyes. The disease worked down on my lungs. I used Ely's Cream Balm with gratifying results. Am apparently cured.—Z. C. Warren, Rutland, Vt.

Gen. Sheridan.

On the 8th the latest despatches reported him as resting tranquilly, his mind clear, and no increase of alarming symptoms; yet it was believed the end could not be far off. On the same date a telegram from Chicago reported the probably fatal illness of Mrs. John Sheridan, the general's mother.

The Aspect of the Contest.

Very many of the shrewd politicians conclude that the Cleveland-Thurman ticket is beaten from the word go. This estimate is by no means confined to the republican party. Many democrats admit it, and many more feel it to be true but maintain a discreet silence. The fight is to be made by the democrats, backed up by the foreign manufacturer (whose brother in New York is a zealous democrat) and the saloon. It will be seen whether the people of this country are content with an administration which not merely permits but invites the British lion to clip the wings of the American eagle, and whether the interests of Daniel Connor of Manchester, whom the People and Patriot declares to be the peer of any delegate to the national convention, shall be protected instead of punished, in his relation to the law of the state. The saloons have assumed the same relation towards the democracy that the slave power so naturally appropriated, that is, the saloons have offered to pay the half the campaign expenses, if the free-trade men will become responsible for the other share. They propose to make, under the guise of reform, a warfare in Congress upon protection to our domestic manufacturers, and a fight against the passage of laws by the state legislatures restraining the sale of intoxicating beverages. The rich free-traders will pose as purists, and continue the business at the old stand under the style of "Mugwump & Co." The selection of Patrick A. Collins as president of the convention meant that the Irish vote was to be secured by a liberal display of blarney, and thus endorse the British free-trade ideas and the concessions of the Cleveland administration to the arrogant demands of the British statesmen. The democracy were never more heavily mortgaged than they will be in the coming campaign.

Who Won the $371.21?

The committe appointed to select the best answer to the question, "What is the hole for, that is in the outside of the chimney of the old-fashioned log cabin, as represented in the trade-mark of Warner's Log Cabin remedies?" have been obliged to read and carefully consider nearly 5,000 answers, many of them lengthy. This has taken time; but they have finally reported in favor of the answer of Mr. C. C. Stoddard, of Palestine, Tex., and a check for $371.21 has been sent him. His answer was as follows:

In response to your offer of $371.21 for the best answer to the question, "What is the hole for, that is in the outside of the chimney of the old-fashioned log cabin, as represented in the trade-mark of Warner's Log Cabin Remedies," I desire to submit the following: The hole is a place of exit for the smoke from what was known in the old log-cabin days as the outside bake oven. The representation, as given in the pamphlet, is an excellent one, as I recollect the old log cabin with which I was familiar in my boyhood days. Having used "Warner's Log Cabin Sarsaparilla," I am very glad to say that I consider it the very best and "safest" sarsaparilla compounded on the market, and am satisfied it will thoroughly eradicate all impurities of the blood.

An Actor's Woes.

Frederick Paulding is a Romeo who didn't get along pleasantly with Margaret Mather as his Juliet, says the New York Sun. They have just got back to town after a tour which began last autumn, and during nearly the whole time they were at odds. Their first falling out occurred here when they had been playing mimic lovers for a week. Miss Mather is said to have thereupon declared war. She would make his experience as her stage lover quite the opposite of what it seemed to be to the audience. Paulding is a mild-mannered, good-natured sort of fellow, and not at all the man to fight back against a women. It is declared that night after night she placed a number of pins in her Juliet costume, so that when he, as Romeo, had to warmly embrace her, he was bound to scratch his hands. It was her habit, too, to hang her head on his bosom, while seeming to recline ever so gently, so that the breath was knocked out of his lungs and his elocution was thereby ruined. Another ingenious device of the actress was to plant the heels of her slippers on his toes, knowing that they were very rich with corns, and thus torturing him with her weight while he was compelled to speak the most sentimental and passionate language to her. Things on the stage are not what they seem to observers in the auditorium.

An ox belonging to Hon. Frank Jones had one hoof taken off, Friday forenoon, through the running over it of a car on the spur track leading to the brewery. Mr. Jones' cattle are always in prime condition, and this unlucky animal was soon turned into a good article of beef.

The thunder shower which passed over—or rather around—this city on the night of the 6th inst. was very severe back in the state. At Keene lightning struck the farm house of Steven Clemens, destroying the house, barn, eight head of cattle, several horses, etc. Loss $4000. The wind blew down trees and did great damage to electric wires. A house at Chesterfield was also destroyed by fire.

The Marshall house at York Harbor has been painted inside and out, supplied with new carpets and much new furniture, and otherwise much renovated and improved, since spring opened; some very decided improvements to the grounds have also been made, in the way of grading, etc. The proprietor contemplates putting down an artesian well, for though the present supply of water is good and has always proved sufficient, he wants more. The house will open for the season on the 16th inst., under very favorable auspices, nearly all of the rooms being under engagement.

The York Harbor house, George A. Goodall proprietor, opens next week with all rooms engaged.

The roads in York have been quite extensively overhauled and repaired within the past few weeks, particularly in the neighborhood of the village, and are now in a very creditable condition. There is talk of widening and straightning the "lower route," over Sewall's bridge—and there is need of it, too.

Miss Lillian Fuller of Kennebunk, who has been travelling abroad, died recently in Venice of typhoid fever. Her father, Mr. Sydney Fuller, is reported to be ill in the hospital at Venice with Roman fever, is now quite sick, and Orrin Ross of Kennebunk, bridge builder for the Boston & Maine railroad and brother of Mrs. Fuller, has gone to his assistance. The remains of Miss Fuller can not be removed to this country for four months.

Mr. George F. Plaisted has put a new front on his store at York Corner, so that it now fronts on two streets; the addition gives him considerable more room, and a cellar is also being excavated under the new part. He has made a big lot of improvements, and his store will now compare favorably with any other in York. He keeps a great variety of well selected goods, including a full stock of drugs and medicines, and has set up a handsome soda fountain.

Mr. Charles Junkins, of York Corner, has men at work with dynamite and oxen, clearing away a number of big rocks from his mowing field, where their presence is not desirable.

A despatch from Norway, Me., says: "E. G. & Edwin Wallace, capitalists and manufacturers of Rochester, N. H., have purchased the water power at Steep Falls, and the electric light plant. This power is situated at the lower end of Norway village, has a fall of sixty feet, and is one of the safest and best in western Maine. The Wallaces stand high as business men, where they are known, their capital does not remain idle, and it is safe to say that manufacturing of some kind will be carried on here by them."

The Law and Order League of Dover announce their intention of proceeding against the owners of buildings in which liquor is sold, under the "nuisance" law.

Blaine will sail for home July 19th.

The fancy for putting large girls into loose frocks with short waists and big turned-down lace collars, makes them look like babies under a magnifying glass.

The prevalence of waist drapery is lamentable, as it only improves a too slender figure, and looks exceedingly ill upon one with even the suspicion of plumpness.

Lettuce green is one of the new colors, and comes in some of the new dress goods, and in gloves and ribbons as well. It is a good color that is likely to please the hired girl.

Pink takes the place of heliotrope among spring tints, and is especially liked in the printed stuffs that are such long favorites for house gowns.

Stockings must be either black or white, embroidered to match dress trimming, or else of the garment's exact hue with just a relief of contrasting embroid-

The "Slice of Process" in China.

Owing to the absence of wagon roads and railways the Chinese depend upon the rivers, canals and the ocean along the coast for nearly all their carrying. Any interruption to the immense traffic and travel of these waterways would prove very serious. It is from this condition of affairs that piracy is considered one of the most heinous offenses. For this crime death by the slicing process is the penalty. The slicing mode of execution rivals any of the fiendish tortures practiced upon captives by our North American savages. There are degrees even in this devilishness. There are deaths by 8, 10, 20, 50, 100, 1,000 slices. The condemned person is fastened to a cross, and then the executioner commences at the eyebrows and cuts away such portions of the body as will not produce sudden death by shock or bleeding till there is little more tissue to hack at, when he opens the chest and tears out the heart.

I was told by an Irish gentleman in the Chinese imperial customs that he once witnessed the slicing execution of a noted pirate, and he described it as horrible beyond imagination. Another gentleman had been present when a poor woman had been sliced to death because her husband had died suddenly, and she had been tortured into a confession of having poisoned him. At other times she had stoutly denied any knowledge of the cause of his death. However, she had been condemned to this horrible death, and she met her fate with a resignation and bravery which astonished those who saw it. The American who was present described it as a most horrible sight, and one that returned to him in fearful dreams.—San Francisco Chronicle.

The Journalist and the Publisher.

One thing, I fear, must always place journalism at a disadvantage, compared with other professions, such as law, art, medicine, teaching and engineering. By the very nature of the case, the writers for the daily press can have little independent action. Speaking roughly, and speaking of the press as we find it now in New York, and the other large cities of the United States, the publisher is everything; the writer is nothing. The most gifted and the most enlightened journalist must of necessity write to order, and, in very many instances, the man who gives the order is the person whom an enlightened and patriotic spirit would least willingly obey. This appears to be unavoidable. The man who has created, bought or inherited a newspaper must either control or lose it. It is his; he is the master; no power on earth can nullify his right, and yet he may be a person singularly unfit to wield such an organ.

The newspaper is often a mere appendage to other enterprises, which the owner deems far more important, and to which the journal bears the combined relation of cow and cow bell, feeder and advertiser. But the newspaper belongs to him; and all who write for it are, and must be, his obedient servants.—James Parton in The Writer.

Causes of Infectious Diseases.

Inquiries issued to twenty-eight medical colleges elicit the common response that "most, if not all, infectious diseases are caused by the growth of microscopic organisms." ut as to making bacteriology a subject of study in the public schools, there was a wide difference of opinion. But most of the medical schools are giving more or less attention to the subject. It is very evident that, as soon as possible, our physiology and hygiene, as taught in our colleges, when it is taught at all, should include the subject of infection and the dangers from this class of microscopic foes to life.

The battle for life is to be fought out hereafter, not so much with wild animals and huge monsters, but with enemies so minute as to escape all ordinary means of detection. Science says "quite a number of special bacteriological laboratories are already established in connection with our larger medical schools." It is clear enough that medical education should include this subject, and in the not distant future we shall all be students of medicine."—Globe-Democrat.

Fresh Eggs the Year Round.

"A new process of preserving eggs has been discovered," said a grocer to a reporter, "and it is going to have an important effect on the trade."

The speaker then opened an egg that looked fresh without and within, and explained that it had been laid months before and subjected to the new treatment invented by a resident of Copenhagen. The process consists in subjecting the eggs to a carbonic acid bath. They are kept in a hermetically sealed tank that is filled with carbonic acid, and not taken out until they are to be placed on the market. The eggs subjected to this treatment show a sharply defined yolk and an unchanged white. Eggs preserved by a coating of lime do not maintain this condition. Carbonic acid tanks can be made especially for shipment and eggs thus preserved can be sent on long voyages.—New York Mail and Express.

Almost a Desecration.

What more melancholy sight than an old person so far down the hill that the tumult and din of the struggle upon its crest is already dull upon the ear—a dear old lady, with dim eyes and fluttering footsteps and blunted hearing, condemned to the crowd, the glare, the manifold exigencies of a hotel? Does it not seem a desecration of the solemn quiet of old age, the gentle peace that should enshrine the last years of a well spent life?—Mrs. Frank Leslie in Philadelphia Times.

Until your hair becomes dry, thin, and gray before giving the attention needed to preserve its beauty and vitality. Keep on your toilet-table a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor—the only dressing you require for the hair—and use a little, daily, to preserve the natural color and prevent baldness.

Thomas Munday, Sharon Grove, Ky., writes: "Several months ago my hair commenced falling out, and in a few weeks my head was almost bald. Tried many remedies, but they did no good. I finally bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, after using only a part of the contents, my head was covered with a heavy growth of hair. I recommend your preparation as the best hair-restorer in the world."

Senator Gorman of Maryland proved his political sagacity at the St. Louis convention by admonishing his democratic associates on the committee on resolutions that the democracy cannot carry New Jersey, Indiana or Connecticut on a tariff-for-revenue platform; but the party will be judged by the president's message and the attempted legislation in Congress rather than by an expendiency platform, knocked together to catch votes.

It was shockingly bad taste for the band in the democratic national convention hall at St. Louis to strike up "We'll Hang Jeff Davis on a Sour Apple Tree" at an interesting stage in the proceedings. Such a wanton insult to a man who is idolized by a large portion of the democracy cannot be too strongly deprecated.

The steam gong at the Portsmouth brewery will be shut off until Monday, while repairs are being made to the boilers. In case of fire, the Unitarian church bell will be rung instead.

OFFICIAL NOTICE!

— OF —

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co.

— FROM THE —

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we respectfully request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

30,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Silver-ware, Window Shades, Drapery, Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Stoves and Ranges, Feathers, Feather Pillows, Spreads, Blankers, Chamber Sets, Parlor Suits, Carpets, Lounges, Easy Chairs, Mattresses, Springs,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the

Furniture, Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET, PARLOR SUIT, Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. There are items worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time, We have invariably paid out the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We wish to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

KITCHEN RANGE, or a CHAMBER SET, or PARLOR SUIT, or CARPETS, WINDOW SHADES, DRAPERY CURTAINS,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of these Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell the same and shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. This notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store, Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

Respectfully, the Public's Ob't Servants,

THE ATKINSON HOUSE FURNISHING CO.,

Headquarters Cor. Pearl and Middle Streets, Portland, and Branches at Auburn, Rockland, Bangor and Biddeford, also Bar Harbor for a short time.

BASE BALL.

The game between the Haverhills and Portsmouths on the South street grounds, Friday afternoon, resulted in an overwhelming victory for the home club, who scored twenty-four, nineteen runs being made in the last three innings, the Haverhills getting none. O'Connor, right field, made two home runs and a three-baser, one hit sending the ball over the centre field fence, thus winning a box of nice cigars offered by the Penny Post, set of collar and cuffs offered by the Portsmouth steam laundry, and $10 offered by somebody else, to the player who should first perform that feat. Daly, left fielder, was put in to pitch for Portsmouth the last four innings, but the visitors could not bat him any better than they could Willis. The following is the score:

SAVE THAT STREET.

It was currently reported on Friday that a paper bearing the names of many of the heaviest taxpayers of the city, remonstrating against the location of the horse-railroad tracks through Vaughan and several other streets of the city, would be presented to the board of mayor and aldermen at the hearing on Tuesday, the 12th inst. If there is any one street in the city where the laying of tracks should not be allowed, it is Vaughan street. That street at the best is insufficient to properly accommodate the immense amount of traffic passing through it, and which is always increasing; and to allow the roadbed of such a narrow and much-used thoroughfare to be cut up with tracks, (not to mention the annoyance and very probable obstruction that would be occasioned by cars which all other teams would have to yield the right of way to,) would be a blunder reaching very near the magnitude of a crime against the city.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Henry M. Burt, editor of Among the Clouds, the White mountain paper, was in this city on Friday last.

Capt. Frank D. Webster, U. S. M. C., retired, has with his wife and daughter arrived in this city for a stay of some considerable duration, after having passed several weeks in Philadelphia,

Mr. Stephen Decatur and family on Friday removed from the Macomb house on Middle street to their summer cottage at Kittery Point. Paymaster George A. Lyon, U. S. N., and family, will occupy the Macomb house.

We have received a copy of the Arkansas Gazette, published at Little Rock, giving an account of the annual fesitval of the Turner societies of that section at Little Rock the previous Sunday. In the record of sports, Philip Powers of Little Rock is credited with taking three first prizes—for high jump, long jump, and hop, step and jump. Mr. Powers is a Portsmouth boy, son of the late Philip Powers of this city, and left here for the west in 1879.

POLICE COURT---BATCH-ELDER J.

FRIDAY, June 8th.

William Clark, for drunkenness, was sentenced to the county farm for thirty days, costs being taxed at $6.90.

MUSIC HALL.

A Nashville paper says, concerning "Zozo, the Magic Queen:"

A placard announcing "Standing Room Only," was early placed in the foyer of the Grand Opera House last evening, the popular anxiety and enthusiasm to see the gorgeous spectacular drama, "Zozo, the Magic Queen," having drawn thither one of the largest audiences ever seen in a Nashville theatre this season. There is not much to be said about the plot of "Zozo," for it is a fairy tale, and beyond the ken of mortals. But its magnificent stage settings, the newness and freshness and bright airy situations, make it an entertainment in every way worth seeing.

At Music hall next Wednesday evening; tickets at Goodrich's; see advertisement.

MARITIME NOTES

The schooner Agnes E. Downs, of this port, with twenty other mackerel fishermen, made a harbor at Provincetown, Mass., last Thursday night, and reported no fish taken as yet in that vicinity.

The first yacht arrival of the season at this port was on Thursday evening, June 7th, when the steam yacht Glide, bound from Newberg, New York, to Ellsworth, Me., came up the harbor for water and coal, and took a berth at Philbrick's wharf. She is a small craft, and made but a brief stay.

NAVY YARD ITEMS.

The new sheers at the navy yard were on Friday raised and put in position, ready for putting on the back-shores and guys; they are shorter than the old ones, but have the same hoist.

Chief. Engr. Wm. B. Brooks is detached from charge of the department of steam engineering at this navy yard on the 20th, and placed on waiting orders.

Chief. Engr. Joseph Trilley is detached from the Wabash, at Boston, and ordered to this yard.

Chief. Engr. John W. Moore is detached from the New York navy yard, and ordered to the Mare island yard July 9th.

The masting-sheers at the navy yard, which were put in position on Friday last, were raised by the two capstans on the wharf, about all hands on the yard, including the marines, manning the bars. The capstan gangs were assisted by the four yoke of oxen belonging on the yard, and four yoke owned by Hon. F. Jones, engaged for the occasion. When the old sheers were put up, about 1865, there were over forty yoke of oxen at the raising, all the farmers in the neighboring region of Kittery coming with their teams to have a frolic.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

Distress After Eating Sick Headache

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." GEORGE A. PAGE, Watertown, Mass.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS. The cabinet organ was introduced in the present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.
$22 TO $900.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with the makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS. Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all GRAND & UPRIGHT, others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1868, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

GLYCEROLE!
A PRESERVATIVE OF LEATHER.

For Oiling and Dressing Boots, Shoes, Etc.
Ever since the now dispensable article of Shoe Dressing came into existence, it has been the source of constant trouble to parties using it, because it hardened and cracked the leather; to the dealer, because of the complaints of his customers. Conscientious Shoe Dealers have often dissuaded their patrons from using any Shoe Dressing whatever and advised the application of oil, as it is universally known that oil is the only preservative of leather, while all other substances harden, crack and destroy it.

It was claimed for most Dressings heretofore in use that they do not crack leather, but it has never before been claimed that an Oil Dressing could be produced, the composition of which was considered to be an impossibility. After years of patient work however, we have succeeded in solving the problem of producing an oil, which in addition to its softening and preserving qualities gives also an elegant lustre to leather goods.

Glycerole is a veritable oil and the only one in existence which answers the purpose of oiling, and at the same time, dressing leather. It is perfect in its composition, does not rub off or soil dress or skirts, and imparts to worn goods a soft, oily lustre which positively preserves the leather and protects it from water.

We do not pretend that a single application of Glycerole will improve a shoe already dried and hardened by numerous coats of common shoe dressing, but we do warrant that all shoes oiled and dressed only with Glycerole will be positively improved in wearing quality, as this oil by penetrating into the pores of the leather will make it more supple and add to its durability.

Going West.
The general interest that has been taken in the opening of the Montana Indian Reservation is shown by the large number of people who have already gone to Great Falls to investigate the mineral and agricultural resources of that wonderful country. The low excursion rates announced by C. H. Warren, Gen. Pass. Agent of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway, makes the expense of exploring this county merely nominal, and will undoubtedly result in a still larger number following. 3t

A SCIENTIST'S WARNING.
Extracts From a Remarkable Lecture Delivered by Dr. R. B. Hammond, Before the National Scientific Convention.

"We are startled constantly by the sudden death of some man who seemed the picture of health. He thought he was well. He had all strange pains shooting through his body, but as they did not remain, he forgot them. His head ached him periodically, he was somewhat paler than common and unaccountably tired, but he felt comparatively well and vigorous. And yet, he suddenly died! It is a shame to our boasted civilization."

"Look at the list of women who die in childbirth, and why is it? Simply because their maternal organs have been so weakened by the most terrible of diseases that they cannot withstand the fearful, sudden strain that is brought to bear upon them. How many women escape monthly agonies? And yet nature never intended that pain or inconvenience should attend the operation of her natural laws. The solemn and terrible fact is, that men and women drag along, die, and are buried, and their friends and the doctors say heart disease, apoplexy, pneumonia, congestion, convulsions, when the cause lay far back of all these things. The truth is that weakened kidneys are the cause of most of our troubles. The great question, therefore, is 'How shall I preserve my kidneys, or, if diseased, how can they be restored?' I have seen numbers of cases and learned from unquestionable sources of many others, where the preparation, Hunt's Remedy, has been almost remarkable in its results. I use it freely among my patients, and shall continue to do so. It is a wonderful and invaluable remedy."

The remarks of the learned doctor should be carefully considered, and acted upon by all who desire long life, and freedom from pain and the danger of sudden death.

OH, WHAT A COLD!
THIS is the season for sudden changes in the weather, and a great many "take cold" either in their Head or on their Lungs, causing Coughs, Hoarseness, and Sore Throat. These troubles can be soon relieved and cured by taking Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs, entirely removing these difficulties.

Cured his boy of Croup.
C. M. BROOKS, Lowell, Mass., says: "I take great pleasure in recommending Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific as a cure for Coughs, Colds, and Croup. I used it in my family last winter with the best results. Two or three doses cured my little boy of Croup, for which I am very thankful."

You can cure that Cough in a short time. You can cure your Catarrh if you persist in its use, as it will stop the secretion of Catarrhal matter in the head; it will relieve Croup in from three to five minutes.

The best he ever saw.
"The best medicine for Coughs and Consumptive Complaints that ever I saw is Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific," so says JOHN MCLAUGHLIN, of Boston.

Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific is sold by all Druggists. Price 50 cents and $1. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

Vines for the Dwelling House.
Nothing adds more to the appearance of a place than vines growing about the house. If poetry in growing things belongs to one class of plants more than to another it must be that vines are the poets of the field and garden. I have seen houses that were as ungraceful in their bare outlines as they could well be so transformed by the use of vines about them that you forget all about their former ugliness. That was hidden under the clustering leaves; the slender branches, thrown here and there in the careless, unstudied grace of the true artist, breaking up all harsh outlines and destroying all of that primness and formality characteristic of a house as it comes from the hand of the carpenter.

Skillful planning by a designer with an artistic eye can do much for a home, but the vine can do more. The finishing touch must be made by it. It is not only a poet, but it is an artist. It cannot only conceal defects, but it is capable of making them picturesque and striking when given a chance to do so. I was very forcibly impressed with the truth of this by seeing a house not long ago, which had been left in an unfinished state.

This condition would have made the house an unpleasant thing to see. But some one had planted vines about it and they had clambered to the roof and run along the projecting boards of the ends, covering them with foliage and dropping here and there a festoon of greenery which actually made the building more attractive than it would have been if the cornice had been completed, with its straight lines and uncompromising angles. Do you want something to clamber up to the roof and cover the building with foliage, beautiful all through the season, but doubly so in the fall? Then the very plant you are in search of is our native ampelopsis or Virginia creeper. This vine is to us what the ivy is to England. It is hardy; it will fasten itself to the smoothest surface; it will take care of itself. What more can you ask? In fall it will take on colors so brilliant that it rivals the flowers in the beds below.—E. E. Rexford in Vick's Magazine.

Superiority of Women.
"Who is it," cried Miss Susan B. Anthony a few days ago, "who is it that fill your penitentiaries? Not women, but men. And who is it that fill your churches? Not men, but women."

Now, we maintain without ceasing the superiority of the gentle sex in every moral quality that adorns human nature; and we cannot deny that the vast majority of criminals of every kind are men.

Men are liable to many temptations from which women are happily free. The bolsterous passions are stronger in men than in women. The bones and muscles of men are harder than those of women. The insatiable lust for lucre rages in the heart of men, not of women. The fierce competitions of life are between men, not women. The rough work of the world in business and politics and public control, in which hostile feelings are apt to be generated, is done by men, not by women. Men haunt the liquor shop, while women do not enter. Many men prowl around the streets and public places at night when women are enjoying the domestic hearth.—New York Sun.

Wonders of the Sun.
A comparison of all the results of these labors of so many able men during so many years proves that the sun is nearly ninety-three millions of miles from the earth and that the fiery globe itself is so large that if a number of worlds as big as ours were held together like beads on a string 840 of these world beads would be required to girdle it around in one line.

Three hundred and forty pins' heads thus strung together would go around your head with some to spare. Therefore, the sun is as much bigger than the world as your head is bigger than a pin's head.

How many worlds would it take to cover the whole surface of the sun? As many as the number of pins to cover a pin cushion as big as your head. How many worlds to fill the space occupied by the sun? This is easily calculated when we know the sun's diameter, 860,000 miles. In round numbers a million and a quarter of our worlds would occupy a space equal to the whole size of the sun.—Professor Williams in Youth's Companion.

Spearing Suckers in the Mud.
Spearing suckers by torchlight is a sport much practiced on the western bank of the Passaic river for a distance of several miles. Every night the torches can be seen flashing along shore as far as the eye can reach, and the effect is peculiar and very pleasing. The fish always lie close in shore at night, and as they are of a sluggish nature, and can be quite easily seen by the aid of the torches, some of the more skilful oarsmen secure a large number in a short time. Some nights there will be an almost continuous line of torches for the distance of a mile. Spearing suckers is the tamest and most stupid manner of taking fish, still fishing with angle worms ranking next, and is regarded by sportsmen as being about on a par with pot hunting for game; the highest form is casting for trout, bass or other game fish.—Paterson Guardian.

Bad Practices of Confectioners.
The British confectioners have invited all "sugar workers, licorice refiners, chocolateers, fruit preservers, pastry cooks and fancy bakers" to join their association and enter upon a combined crusade against "immoral practices." The immoral practices consist of putting short measure and bad butter into confectionery, and "illegal trading and immoral manufactures," such as concealing small coins in candy drops as a temptation to the youthful buyer. They have started a journal called The Confectioners' Union, and the grand organization is known as the United Kingdom Confectioners' association.—New York Sun.

Origin of Fumigation.
Fumigation is said to have originated with Acron, a physician of Agrigentum, who is said to have first caused great fires to be lighted and aromatics to be thrown into them to purify the air, and thus to have stopped the plague at Athens and other places in Greece about 473 B. C.—New Orleans Picayune.

Feeding Horses in Norway.
A traveler in Norway says that the horses in that country have a very sensible way of taking their food, which perhaps might be beneficially followed here. They have a bucket of water put down beside their allowance of hay. It is interesting to see with what relish they take a sip of the one and a mouthful of the other alternately, sometimes only moistening their mouths, as a rational being would do while eating a dinner of such dry food. A broken winded horse is scarcely ever seen in Norway, and the question is if the mode of feeding has not something to do with the preservation of the animal's respiratory organs.—Scientific American.

Bald-headed Indians are becoming numerous since the adoption of hats and caps by the race.

In chronic and stubborn cases of neuralgia, gout and rheumatism use Salvation Oil. It is the greatest pain destroyer of the age. All druggists sell it for only twenty-five cents a bottle.

Henry Irving has just purchased a handsome new house in London. There is no doubt of his ability to fill it.

"A friend in need is a friend indeed."
If you are troubled with loss of appetite, indigestion, humors of the blood, dizziness, headache, and kindred ills, you will find a simple, unfailing remedy in Ingalls' Mandrake Compound. A few doses will convince you that it is the best remedy for these evils, ever put on the market. If your druggist has not any on hand, ask him to send to the Ingalls' Medical Co., Lowell, Mass.

The annual salary of a lieutenant-general is $11,000, and that of a general $18,500. That makes the latter title about one-fourth higher than the former, viewed from the sordid standpoint.

The marks of premature age may be effectually obliterated by using Buckingham's Dye for the whiskers. It colors uniformly, and always gives satisfaction.

Twelve thousand crates of choice Florida fruits and vegetables were dumped in New York harbor, last Saturday, to prevent a glut in the market and keep up prices. The parties guilty of this soulless conduct ought to be sent to Sing Sing for life.

A sound body and a contented mind are necessary to perfect happiness. If you wish to possess these, cleanse your blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It is perfectly safe to take, and is a thoroughly reliable, highly concentrated, and powerful blood purifier.

Mayor Hewitt says he prepared the tariff plank of the democratic platform of 1884. He announces now that he will not vote for Cleveland this fall and states his reason that the president is no statesman.

One small bottle worth more than cartloads of other preparations. So says Timothy Baker, of Lowell, Mass., of Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, after being cured by its use of a terrible cough accompanied by spitting of blood and loss of sleep.

The national prohibition convention at Indianapolis, May 31st, adopted a stong woman suffrage plank by an immense majority and with great enthusiasm.

A Great Battle
Is continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. A good reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla is the weapon with which to defend one's self, drive the desperate enemy from the field, and restore peace and bodily health for many years. Try this peculiar medicine.

Oxford university of England, following the example of Cambridge, proposes to admit women to the final classical examinations.

They are the only reliable pain-killing plasters known—soothing and strengthening—the Hop Plasters.

Out of eighty-seven candidates at the last examination for admission to the Royal Academy, London, only twelve succeed in securing admission as probationers, and ten of those were women.

The favorite washing compound of the day is James Pyle's Pearline. It cleanses fabrics without injury and without the laborious scrubbing necessary with ordinary soap. For sale by grocers.

Mrs. Ormiston Chant says that she acted for a time as matron of a lunatic asylum, and that the experience there gained has been of great use to her since in presiding over tumultuous political meetings.

For Over Three Months
My son suffered night and day with rheumatism; so much so that he was unable to feed himself. Your Sulphur Bitters cured him, and I am truly thankful to say that they are an honest medicine.—Mrs. W. H. Carleton, wife of Deacon Carleton, First Baptist church, Winchester Mass.

Interested People.
Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam for coughs and colds does, is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles are 50c. and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption. tjc23

WHY WORK FOR ANOTHER, or on small salary? Why continue working on a worn-out farm? Why try to secure a living from such high-priced or heavily-mortgaged farms? Why work on rented land? Why not start for yourself? Why not secure at once some of the low-priced but very fertile and well located lands adjacent to railroads now to be obtained by those going to Northern Dakota and Minnesota, where you can make a larger net profit per acre than on the high-priced or worn-out land you now occupy? Why not go and look the situation over, and see for yourself, or at least obtain further information, which will be sent free, if you will address C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn. ?

Protection vs. free-trade is the issue this year; the democratic convention was afraid to say so, but it is so.

The free-traders have to look toward England for encouragement; when they look westward they see Oregon.

The Stops of an Organ,

With such important functions as the liver, are of course productive of serious bodilally disturbance. When it relaxes its secretive and distributive activity, bile gets into the blood, and tinges the skin and white of the eyes with yellow, the bowels become constipated, the tongue coated, the breath sour. Then come headaches, vertigo and congestion of the organ, accompanied with pain in its vicinity or under the right shoulder blade. Shall blue pill be the remedy sought? No, for mercury in any form is pernicious. What then? Experience indicates Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as the true remedy for inactivity of the liver. It not only relaxes the bowels without pain, but has a direct stimulating effect upon the hepathic gland itself, the seat and origin of the trouble. All malarial complaints involves disorder of the liver, and of these the Bitters is the most popular curative. It also conquers dyspepsia, nervousness, rheumatism and kidney troubles.

Henry George is out for Cleveland and reform.

Everybody Likes

To be called handsome, especially the young ladies. But that is simply impossible as long as their faces are covered with pimples, blotches and sores. But wait, there is no need of this; one or two bottles of Sulphur Bitters will remove all such disfigurations, and make your face fair and rosy.—Fannie Bell, Editress.

Cleveland, free-trade and Smith M. Weed carried Oregon—by 7000 for the republican ticket.

The usual treatment of catarrh is very unsatisfactory, as thousands of despairing patients can testify. On this point a trustworthy medical writer says: Proper local treatment is positively necessary to success, but many, if not most of the remedies in general use by physicians afford but temporary benefit. A cure certainly cannot be expected from snuffs, powders, douches and washes. Ely's Cream Balm is a remedy which combines the important requisites of quick action, specific curative power with perfect safety and Pleasantness to the patient.

The losses by the recent tornado in Canada will amount to $300,000.

That tired feeling and loss of appetite are entirely overcome by Hood's Sarsaparilla, the peculiar medicine. Try it and see.

The democrats are not firing any guns over the "free-trade victory" in Oregon.

By a boiler explosion at St. Paul, Minn., three men were killed and seven injured.

Proprietes.

Mrs. Parvenu prided herself upon her attention to the proprieties; so, when she asked the druggist's head clerk what he considered the most efficient remedy attainable for Willimanousness, and he handed her a bottle of Ingalls' Mandrake Compound, she noted with manifest pleasure that the wrapper on the bottle exactly matched the color of her morning neglige, and as she always kept her medicine on her dressing case, she was glad to have it harmonize with its surroundings.

The $8,000,000 pension appropriation bill has been signed by the president.

Do not take quinine for malarial disorders. Ayer's Ague Cure contains none, nor any other injurious ingredient. This preparation, if taken strictly in accordance with directions, is warranted to cure all malarial diseases.

THE SOUTHERN PINE.

The Southern pine is a forest king
Through seasons bright or drear—
He reigns in summer, he reigns in spring,
And the old age of the year!
The Southern pine has a minstrel's voice
And a proud, commanding mien—
And he sings the songs of the winds that smite
His musical boughs of green!

The Southern pine is a forest king
Through seasons bright or drear—
He reigns in summer, he reigns in spring,
And the old age of the year!
Ah! was it decreed at some ancient hour
Of twilight lone and dim,
That the soul of a monarch, the soul of a bard,
Should be given in trust to him?
—William H. Hayne in Youth's Companion.

Young Man and His Sister.

The lad of 15 may be an escort to a sister twice his age and many times his sense, propriety demanding that she should have a guardian of the male persuasion, not, it must be remembered, for fear of any indelicacy in her behavior, but to avoid rudeness on the part of that sex which is supposed to protect the weaker.

The worldly wisdom of the young man is beyond his reason or power of self control. Many phases of life open to him before his character is established. Public opinion justifies conduct on his part which it would condemn in his sister. If she has too little liberty, he has too much.—Good Housekeeping.

Courage a Curious Quality.

An officer of the regular army said that he thought courage a very curious quality. "Often," said he, "when I have gone deliberately into danger, I have been so frightened and fearful of the dangers around me that it was only for the sake of appearances that I have not run away. On the other hand, whenever I have found myself plunged into sudden danger that I did not expect I have not felt the slightest fear. I have been in fights and gone through them with consummate courage and wise behavior, as it seemed to others, without, in reality, knowing what I was doing. And after it was all over I have wilted like a wet rag."—New York Sun.

The Congo's Navigable Waters.

In regard to the Congo. It is the most wonderful system of waterway on the face of the globe. It has twice the extent of the navigable waters of the Mississippi and its tributaries, three times its population, "thirsting for trade," to use Stanley's expression. Professor Dupont, the eminent director of the Museum of Natural History, at Brussels, who has just returned from there, after six months' of exploration of its lower waters, said that its fertile valleys were destined to be the granary of the world. India rubber, gums, ivory, dye stuffs, silver, lead, iron, coffee and palm oil are there in immense quantities, awaiting exchange for the stuffs which we can furnish.—Detroit Free Press.

Disinfection of Library Books.

The danger of infection from the use of books from circulating libraries has received intelligent attention in England, and means have been devised for their disinfection. The principle on which disinfection is based is the vaporization of carbolic acid by heat, whereby it is claimed that its action is more potent. Heat is applied to the outer casing of an apparatus, which is fully under control, so that a temperature which might injure the books can be avoided. The heat employed is from 150 degs. to 200 degs. F., the books being subjected to this temperature for fifteen minutes, and not injured by the process. The apparatus is said to be patented.—Science.

American Types of Women.

The meeting of races and the wide contrasts of climate have given American society the finest variety in the types of women. The American of the best sort, whether professional man or man of affairs, clerk or artisan, is the Greek of his time, capable, critical, of artistic instincts, quick and well vitalized in mind and body. In time he will bring the woman to the level of his mate. Just now, in the importation and announcement of social rules and ideas, assimilated neither to the circumstances of the majority nor to our political order, the effect is deterioration in the sex. But the material for beauty is as good as the world affords.—Shirley Dare.

Instinctive Craving for Work.

It is a psychological fact that a man of brain power is haunted and driven by an incessant, instinctive craving for intellectual work. As the athlete suffers muscular irritability when inactive, so the intellectual man, with all his blood flowing to his cerebral organs, finds himself driven to mental activity. It seems a biological law, as it is a social law, that wherever power is there all power tends. The brain waves of a strong intellect are so incessant that they impel and hurry the mind here and there in search of new problems on which to expend its force. Such an intellect is always employed, for inherent in itself is the stimulus to brain work.—Susan Channing in The Writer.

A Gigantic Spider's Web.

Lieut. W. Smyth, of the British royal navy, in his "Narrative of a Journey from Lima to Para," published some years ago, gives the following extraordinary account of a spider web. He says: "We saw at Pachiza, on the river Huayabamba, in Peru, a gigantic spider's web suspended from the trees. It was twenty-five feet in height and near fifty feet in length. The threads were very strong, and it had the empty sloughs of thousands of insects hanging on it. It appeared to be the habitation of a spider of a larger size than we ever saw in England."—Dry Goods Chronicle.

Eating Fruit at Breakfast.

One of the most injurious customs in regard to eating is the practice of serving fruit at the beginning of breakfast. The best medical testimony pronounces acid of any sort hurtful if taken when the stomach is empty. A more judicious custom provides fruit at the close of the meal. Besides being easier digested at that time, the fruit can be better relished. If it is thought that the fruit loses its flavor in a warm room through a long meal, it may not be placed upon the table, but kept in a cool spot until the time of serving.—Chicago Herald.

A NEW FOUND PEOPLE.

A Tribe of Long Haired Blacks in Africa. Interesting Discoveries.

Lieut. Lienart, who accompanied Capt. Van Gele in his recent journey which solved the greatest remaining problem of African geography, has returned to Brussels, bringing full details of the trip by steamer for ninety-nine days on the Mobangi river. The expedition proved that the Mobangi is identical with the Welle-Makua river, and is, therefore, the greatest northern tributary of the Congo.

On Oct. 27 last the expedition, composed of four white men and fifty-seven native boatmen and soldiers, left Equator Station, on the Congo, and started up the Mobangi on the little steamer En Avant, the first vessel launched on the Upper Congo. The steamer had in tow a native war canoe with a capacity of 100 men, on which a part of the expedition was quartered. About 450 miles up the river they reached the Zongo rapids, the furthest point attained by Grenfell, and there their explorations began. In the next thirty miles they passed a series of five rapids, at two of which they were compelled to take the machinery out of their vessel, unship the paddle wheels and drag her up with great difficulty on rollers over land. Three weeks were required to pass these rapids, above which the broad, majestic river did not offer a single noteworthy obstruction in the 200 remaining miles of the ascent. The country, writes Capt. Van Gele, is very beautiful. The river, which for long stretches is over a mile in width, with an average depth of twenty feet, is bordered by high hills, on whose gentle slopes are hundreds of huts, which, in the distance, have the appearance of chalets. Here and there are seen in the branches of lofty cottonwood trees buildings made of branches and grass, which are used merely as posts of observation, and which doubtless gave rise to the romantic rumors Grenfell brought home of aerial dwellings on the Upper Mobangi. The first new tribe the explorers discovered were the Bakombe, who are said to extend over a large region between the Mobangi and the Congo.

The Bakombe are remarkable among all the black races of Africa for their unusual growth of hair, which many of them arrange in the form of large chignons. Others wear their hair down their backs in many long, thin braids, which are frequently fastened together. Capt. Van Gele makes the surprising statement that he saw some persons with hair nearly five feet long. Lieut. Lienart says he saw some women who tied their long braids around their arms, and that this remarkable custom did not inconvenience them at all as they engaged in their usual occupations. No such abundant head coverings have been found among any other tribes in Africa.

For about 140 miles, midway between 4 degs. and 5 degs. north latitude, and north of the big bend of the Congo, the river flows almost due west, and new tribes are met along the banks. Capt. Van Gele calls this stretch of the Mobangi valley the most fertile and populous part of Africa he has visited. "I have not seen elsewhere," he writes, "such an affluence of provisions. Everywhere are endless supplies of bananas, maize flour, sorghum, sweet potatoes, arachides, yams, beans, sugar cane, sesamum, tobacco, honey, sheep, goats and fowls. My men had poultry in the pot every day. Our boat was sometimes loaded down with presents of food, and throughout the journey I did not touch one of the sacks of rice that I had taken with me from the equator."

Here the river is at its widest and it is thickly dotted with islands, all inhabited and under cultivation. Conical huts, like those among some tribes of the Upper Wella-Makau, begin to appear by thousands. They are grouped in villages, sometimes forming wide streets that are very neatly kept, and again built in large circles in the center of which is a high mound of earth from which their speakers address the popular assemblages. The largest of these tribes is the Banzy, who as workers in iron are equaled by few African tribes. Their iron products are noteworthy for their great variety and superior workmanship. They make lance and arrow heads, harpoons, axes, hoes, spades, knives, bracelets, chains, pipe bowls, beads, little bells and many other articles. They are also skillful workers in ivory, and everywhere the explorers saw artistically turned ivory bracelets and pins a foot long. The Banzy is the only tribe found in Central Africa whose women deface their upper lip by the insertion of the pelele, a practice that is very common among the tribes east and south of Nyassa.

These large tribes for about 150 miles along the river were very friendly, though they had never seen white men before. They were frightened neither by the steamer nor by the shots that were often fired at the ducks and other game in the stream. Often fleets of thirty or forty canoes would paddle out to the steamer, offering food for sale. At the town of the head chief in the Banzy tribe another rapid barred the way, and it was necessary to tow the steamer up stream by means of a stout cable. The natives gathered by thousands to watch the operation. They pointed out spots where dangerous rocks lurked under the surface. They hauled in their fish nets that were in the way, and laid hold of the cable with right good will, while the fetich men on the bank made favorable invocations. When the En Avant was safely past the rapids the natives raised enthusiastic cheers, and many of them shook hands with the Europeans, and felicitated them upon their success. —Brussels Cor. Skinning Birds While Alive.

It is found that to receive the highest price for the skins of birds worn on the hats of the women "they must be skinned alive." So the hunters and traffickers are trapping the sweet songsters, and skinning them with half a cord in their throats. Now look at the lovely creatures on your hat, and see the whole process. Think it over, then put on your hat, and take a stroll in the park or orchard, and imagine the process going on with your pet orioles, bobolinks and tanagers. No wonder one writer says: "I cannot bear the sight, nor the thought, of the bloody handed wretch that I saw at this occupation." Ah, but how about those who wear the birds?—Times-Democrat.

CURE OF

CANCER and ULCERS.

Judge T. C. McLendon writes to the Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga., under date of February 14, 1888: "About three years ago, Jerry Bradley, a colored man, had a cancerous sore on his face, near the right eye. It caused him a great deal of pain, and he lost the sight of the eye, but was finally cured of the cancer by the use of Swift's Specific. This case is well known in Wilkes Co., Ga, where he lived (near Danbury), and of this case, I, myself, had personal knowledge."

Mr. L. Cox, of Arkabutla, Tate Co., Miss. writes, February 24, 1888: "I suffered a great deal from old ulcers for six years. Your medicine was recommended to me, and after using six bottles, I was completely cured. I never saw its equal as a Blood Purifier. My neighbors will use no other. Your medicine does even more than you claim for it. I have known 15 to cure cases which were thought to be hopeless. It is the best medicine made."

Mrs. A. M. Goldsmith, No. 674 Warren St., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes, February 22, 1888: "I commenced using S. S. S. about three years ago. I had suffered with a sore throat for over a year, when I commenced using your remedy. I used a great many other remedies with no good results. My little girl, also, had sore fingers; it commenced from the quick, and then the nails would come off. We doctored her for over two years, and when I commenced using S. S. S. I thought I would see what it would do for her. I am thankful to say that it entirely cured her. It is the best remedy I know of for the blood. I ally believe it was the means of saving my life. The doctor told me I had a throat disease similar to General Grant's. I cheerfully recommend it to all suffering from disordered blood. I use it now as a tonic whenever I think I need it."

Mr. B. F. George, Milford P. O., Ellis Co., Texas, writes: "I had a cancerous wart or mole on my eyelid, as large as the end of my thumb, which had the appearance of cancer, causing me much pain and inflammation, from which I suffered a long time. Seeing the S. S. S. advertised I commenced using it, and after the use of a few bottles the quick, and then the nails would come off. We doctored her for over two years, and when I commenced using S. S. S. I thought I would see what it would do for her. I am thankful to say that it entirely cured her. It is the best remedy I know of for the blood. I ally believe it was the means of saving my life. The doctor told me I had a throat disease similar to General Grant's. I cheerfully recommend it to all suffering from disordered blood. I use it now as a tonic whenever I think I need it."

Mr. G. W. Pettis, of Aiken, S. C., writes: "I was a sufferer from cancer of the breast, and had been under the treatment of three physicians, but it did me no good. It was so bad that I had to stop work. After taking a course of S. S. S. I was entirely cured."

The Remarkable Cures

Which have been effected by Hood's Sarsaparilla are sufficient proof that this medicine does prosess peculiar curative power. In the severest case of scrofula or salt rheum, when other preparations had been powerless, the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla has brought about the happiest results. The case of Miss Sarah C. Whittier, of Lowell, Mass., who suffered terribly from scrofular sores; that of Charles A. Roberts, of East Wilson, N. Y., who had thirteen abscesses on his face and neck; that of Willie Duff, of Walpole, Mass., who had hip disease and scrofula so bad that the physcians said he could not recover, are a few of the many instances in which wonderful cures were effected by this medicine.

The republican majority in Oregon keeps piling up. It looks as if the democrats were all visiting in St. Louis on election day.

Murder by Train Robbers.

An attempt was made to rob a train twelve miles from Cincinnati on the night of June 8th by a gang of masked men. Joe Ketchum, baggage master, was shot four times, and soon died. One of the robbers reached the engine, but was knocked down with a wrench and pitched from the cab; the others escaped, without any booty. The marshal of Aurora, Ind., on the 9th arrested four men who were rowing down the river in a skiff. They were not able to give a satisfactory account of themselves, and were thought to be the train robbers.

Mayor Hewitt "Kicks."

Hon. Abram S. Hewitt, mayor of New York, a noted democratic worker, and "without whose labors," it is said, "there would have been no Burchard episode and consequently no election of Cleveland," was last week reported by the New York Herald, a pronounced Cleveland paper, as saying in an interview that he would neither vote for nor in any way support Cleveland at the coming election. This was questioned by some of the administration papers, and the New York Sun, democratic but not in love with Cleveland and free trade, sent a reporter to question Mayor Hewitt, who said: "I shall neither deny nor affirm the interview. I am willing it shall stand as it is."

Not Much Doubt About It.

As Oregon stands in the list of doubtful states, the result of the voting there will possess an unusual significance, whichever way it goes.

That was the way the Boston Herald, Cleveland organ, talked on Monday, June 4th, the day of the Oregon election. A republican majority of 7000 on the popular vote, about double the majority given at any election since the war, and a republican majority of eighty in the legislature on joint ballot, does seem somewhat significant, especially in the light of the facts that the free traders made great efforts to carry the state so as to secure a free trade United States senator in place of Senator Dolph, and that the election occurred the day before Mr. Cleveland's convention met in St. Louis.

UNCANNY, IF NOT DANGEROUS.

Some of the Odd Experiments Made by a Professor of Hypnotism.

Dr. Feldman, the famous hypnotist, is above medium height and of muscular build, although not what would be called a tall or a stout man. He wears a Napoleonic beard and mustache, and they and his hair are as nearly black as capillary filaments ever grow. His quick, nervous movements extend even to the eyes, which never rest long on any one object. Eyeglasses give him a professional air, but he lacks the repose which is usually the acquired or natural bearing of a physician.

Invited to the house of a Russian lady of considerable literary distinction, by special request, he arranged to have a professional subject present on whom he could make experiments. The method adopted by the hypnotist for obtaining the presence of this individual was first to possess him with the idea that he was going to Russia and then to order him to present himself at the house of the lady and give her a note asking her if she could give him some letters of recommendation to persons in that country. This plan was carried out literally by the subject, and when he had walked into the drawing room and asked the questions he sat in a most strained attitude, with fixed eyes and clinched hands. Only a rather vigorous tapping on the forehead administered by Dr. Feldman brought the subject back to a natural attitude. He then blinked his eyes and rubbed his face as if he had been asleep.

The lady of the house then asked him if it was he who desired some letters of introduction to families in Russia. He replied that he had no intention of leaving the country, and he had therefore no need of letters. The hypnotist then explained that the subject had forgotten all about the request he had made when he entered. The subject, although a strong looking fellow of 24 or thereabout, was pronounced to be most sensitive to the hypnotic influence of Dr. Feldman, and this was proved by his being put into a complete state of catalepsy after a few passes over the eyes and forehead having been made. Catalepsy was the disease for which the man had been under treatment. Any one with a tendency to such a disease is most easily worked upon.

When the hypnotizer had made a number of passes, he then drew his finger down over the nose of the subject and outward, and instantly the man arose and moved in the direction of the finger until it was pointed at an object, and then this object was gazed at just as intently. The man was then told that musquitoes were biting him, and he immediately began to slap his face, first on one cheek and then on the other, and then on his hand, making sure that he had the little insect each time by carefully drawing up his fingers and pinching them together with an expression of countenance which indicated the sublime satisfaction he had in putting an end to their lives. His thought was then made to change, and he was informed that he was a rooster. Immediately he began to make a clucking noise, perhaps more like a hen than a rooster, and soon he took to crowing in a manner that was irresistibly funny.

He was given the half of a lemon and told that it was a sweet apple. He took a huge bite from it and smacked his lips as if he thoroughly enjoyed it. In the twinkling of an eye his expression changed when Dr. Feldman applied a magnet to his forehead, and it became one of intense disgust, the real taste of the lemon having come back to him. The same test was made with quinine. Being told that it was sugar, he thought it was delicious and asked for more, but when he was told that it was nasty he wiped it from his mouth as if it was most distasteful. Alcohol was poured on his head and he assumed the appearance of an intoxicated man. He was made to hold himself quite rigid in a recumbent position between two chairs, only his head and his feet being supported.

There was a small audience of physicians, who regarded the exhibition from a scientific point of view, and to them it was both interesting and instructive. To the ordinary observer, however, such a subservience of the will of one person to that of another, although powerful and remarkable, is both painful and frightful. The seance was perfectly successful, but left the impression of something so uncanny that nature revolts against it. By frequent experiments it may some time be reduced to a useful science, but at present it may hardly be considered other than dangerous.—New York Press.

Story of a Lady's Reticule.

I have heard on good authority that there is an interesting relic preserved in Alnwick castle to which a romantic legend is attached. The treasured relic is a lady's reticule, such as was commonly carried seventy years ago—more or less—and which did the duty of a pocket. On the night preceding the battle of Waterloo the Duke of Wellington and his chief officers attended a ball at Brussels, given by the duchess of Richmond, and Maj. Percy, who was present, became deeply interested in a lady whom he met for the first time. When "midnight brought the signal sound of strife," and Maj. Percy and the lady had to part with mutual regret, he begged of her some souvenir of their happy meeting, and she resigned to him her reticule. Next day came the great battle, and Maj. Percy was selected to convey to Lord Bathurst the duke's famous dispatch, with its admirable description of the contest, dated Waterloo, June 19, 1815. The precious document was conveyed to the minister, in the treasured reticule. The story as told to me ended with the sad conclusion that the major searched in vain for the owner of the reticule, and they never afterward met.—Notes and Queries.

Heine and His Mother.

Visiting Heine one evening, when he was just dictating a letter to his secretary, I asked to whom he was writing. He replied: "To my mother." "Is she still alive, the old lady who lives by the Dammthurr?" "Oh, yes," said he, "it is true she is old, sick and weak, but she has still the warm heart of a mother." "And you write often to her?" "Regularly, every month." "How unhappy she must be on account of your condition!" "Oh, as regards that, there exists between us a peculiar arrangement. My mother believes me to be well and healthy. She reads no newspapers. I write often to her, as well as I can, in a merry humor, and then she is happy. That a son can be as sick and miserable as I am no mother would believe."

After this Heine became silent, and my soul was deeply moved when, from his bed of torture, where he lay for long years, I saw him seal and send off to the post his letter, which was full of consoling news and assumed serenity.—Alfred Meissner.

They Mean Business.

In New York, on the evening of the 7th inst., at a large meeting in Clarendon hall presided over by Michael Breslin, the "Irish-American Anti-Cleveland Protective League" was formed. A set of resolutions offered by John Devoy and seconded by J. P. Ryan were adopted. The resolutions denounce the democratic convention for renominating Cleveland and approving his free trade message, and declare that his re-election would inflict lasting injury on the industrial life of the nation. They state that "while reserving to ourselves entire freedom of action in local affairs, we pledge to the republican party our hearty and energetic support in the presidential contest," if its convention shall adopt a platform advocating protection to American industry and labor, and will select a candidate known to be a sound protectionist, who will furthermore aim "to make American ideas, American influence and American industry dominant on this continent, instead of, like the present administration, yielding to the intrigues and weakly imitating the methods of effete European monarchies." Not only men of Irish birth, but all democratic protectionists, will be eligible.

The Biddeford Journal tells the following story of a unique business enterprise: "About once a month a Saco dog thief, hired by Portland fanciers, steals a fine-bred bull dog owned by Amaziah Goodwin, and sends him to Portland for the fanciers' purposes. The dog is then boxed up and returned by express to the Saco thief, but as the latter never has money to pay the charges, the expressmen have to liberate the dog, who returns to his owner."

Until your hair becomes dry, thin, and gray before giving the attention needed to preserve its beauty and vitality. Keep on your toilet-table a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor—the only dressing you require for the hair—and use a little, daily, to preserve the natural color and prevent baldness.

Thomas Munday, Sharon Grove, Ky., writes: "Several months ago my hair commenced falling out, and in a few weeks my head was almost bald. Tried many remedies, but they did no good. I finally bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, after using only a part of the contents, my head was covered with a heavy growth of hair. I recommend your preparation as the best hair-restorer in the world."

"My hair was faded and dry," writes Mabel C. Hardy, of Delavan, Ill.; "but after using a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor it became black and glossy."

OFFICIAL NOTICE!

—— OF - -

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co.

—— FROM THE -

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we respectfully request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

30,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Silver-ware, Window Shades, Drapery, Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Stoves and Ranges, Feathers, Feather Pillows, Spreads, Blankers, Chamber Sets, Parlor Suits, Carpets, Lounges, Easy Chairs, Mattresses, Springs,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the

Furniture, Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET, PARLOR SUIT, Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. There are items worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time, We have invariably paid out the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We wish to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

KITCHEN RANGE, or a CHAMBER SET, or PARLOR SUIT, or CARPETS, WINDOW SHADES, DRAPERY CURTAINS,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of these Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell the same and shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. This notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store, Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

Respectfully, the Public's Ob't Servants,

THE ATKINSON HOUSE FURNISHING CO.,

Headquarters Cor. Pearl and Middle Streets, Portland, and Branches at Auburn, Rockland, Bangor and Biddeford, also Bar Harbor for a short time.

TRAGEDY ON A TRAIN.

Mail Messenger Murdered.

Mr. Jerry Sinclair, one of the three mail route agents who passed through this city on Saturday evening at nine o'clock on the eastbound train, was stabbed in the breast and killed at Bangor by one of the other occupants of the mail car, both of whom were arrested. Mr. Sinclair is said by the railroad employes here who knew him to have been a very pleasant and agreeable man, but we were unable to learn from them anything further, either as to his residence or the particulars of the tragedy, up to Sunday evening.

ATTENTION REPUBLICANS!

The members of the Republican Club and all other republicans of this city and vicinity are requested to meet in the headquarters on Congress street, on Monday evening, June 11th, Business of importance will come before the meeting. Let there be a grand rally. PER ORDER.

NOTICE TO CATERERS.

Bids will be received by the undersigned until June 12th at eight o'clock p. m., at which time they will be opened at Dr. Preston's store, for furnishing from twelve to fifteen hundred men with a collation of one meal on July 4th next at forty cents per man, this sum to include all labor, furnishing of dishes, tables (without seats,) etc. Quality of food, assortment and amount to be explicitly stated. The right to reject any or all bids is reserved.

W. J. SAMPSON, for the Committee.

BASE BALL.

At Rochester, on the 9th, the Portsmouth club presented the left fielder, Daly, as pitcher, and dropped a game to the home club, sixteen to fourteen.

The last game of the Portland club, of the New England League, was played on Saturday at Salem, Mass., when the Salems won by a score of seventeen to seven in a loosely played contest which was witnessed by only 300 persons. The Portland club does not now exist.

The Nashua base ballists do not propose to be knocked out by Portsmouth without a struggle. At a meeting of the directors of the Nashua club, Saturday evening, a new deal was consummated, and certain members of the old club released. D. W. Mahoney, late manager of the Portlands, was signed, with the following players of that club: Householder, Brady, Mullen, McAuliffe, Lyons, Koons and Webster. The new club will play their first game in Haverhill to-day.

POLICE COURT---BATCHELDER J.

SATURDAY, June 9th.

Thomas R. Gannon, charged with breaking and entering Charles H. Carr's house and stealing a gold watch, had his case continued to Tuesday, June 12th, and was lodged in jail in default of $700 bail.

John Lachey and John Mahlberg, charged with assault on Frank R. Wanhoff, were discharged. This was the case where one of a party of Boston workmen, mostly Danes, employed on the hotel Wentworth, was nearly murdered on the night of the 2d inst. at Newcastle by some of his mates, after a night's carousal in this city. The evidence indicated that most of the violence was the work of one Sullivan, of Boston, who escaped arrest, and that the two men with the unpronounceable names were engaged in the fight only to stop it. They were discharged.

HORSE RAILROAD AGAIN.

Mr. Editor: Some of the applicants for a charter for the proposed horse railroad, in an article in the Penny Post, evening of the 7th, endeavoring to ridicule the objections of C. X. R. in his communication in your morning paper of that date, speaks of Confederate Cross Roads as the name of your correspondent. He is about as near in that as he is in his other suppositions. He tells us the public want the road; the corporators named want it for an investment. We should like to see the stockholders' book, with the amount of money each has paid in. He wants to ride with my horses, while I walk from the Creek to south millbridge. When I am convinced that he is working solely for the interest of the public and our city in general in his desire for this road, then he shall ride with my horses, and I will walk. Moreover, I will do all in my power to aid him in this public-spirited enterprise. We will not call each other hard names.

Suum Cuique—in that spirit I reply:

The public never, nor the abuttors either, in the laying out of streets, ever dreamt they would be used for horse car travel—to be dug up, cut up, by such means of transit. By the way, no reference is made in the communication referred to, of how these cars are to be propelled. Surely none other than horse power, should the petition be granted, should be allowed. Let each person have his rights. If the public want this road, let them make it manifest in the proper way. We as yet have not heard of any movement outside of the incorporators that would indicate that the public took much interest in the matter. All that I have talked with are of the opinion that if our new business enterprises at the Creek require some means of reaching them on the part of the employes—other than "Shank's mare"—that the omnibus, which in the article in the P. P. is so much condemned, would answer every purpose; notwithstanding what he says, it is still used in all the large cities. Surely it might answer for us to begin with. Let us have a few of them in line; then if they prove successful we will think of horse railroads. Why not say at once, "motor," for that is what is meant, thus adding to the danger of travelling about the city as well as the suburbs, for now most of the roads outside of the city are crossed in every direction but one by the railroads.

No reference has been made to what will be done in the winter about clearing these tracks of snow; neither has any been made about the responsibility of this road to meet claims for damages. Suppose after laying their tracks and running a couple of years the whole scheme proves a failure; who will stand in the gap then, to meet claims for damages to take up the tracks and repair our streets? Let us halt here.

Go with me to the neighborhood of the Parade; look at the collection of wires, poles and all the other paraphernalia that has been erected there during the last fifteen years by the different telegraph and telephone companies that have been granted the privilege of digging up our streets, crossing our houses with wires, all under the pretence that it was for the public good; after a time they have sold out or joined the great monopolies, thus benefitting the poor public by disfiguring and obstructing our streets, and making the duties of our firemen more hazardous. Therefore, I repeat, halt, until the city knows what these public benefactors (self styled) intend; and let us secure in the strongest manner possible these rights of ours from all claims, hereafter, of ought that may bring evil to us.

C. X. R.

LUCKY MARINER.

About half-past eleven o'clock on Friday night the captains of two coasting vessels entered the police station, and one of them, whose vessel was in the lower harbor and who was very decidedly drunk, but not any more so than his companion, said that he had been robbed in some barroom or "crib" of his coat, which contained a pocket book enclosing $185. The incoherent stories of the two skippers were patiently listened to, with the result that the officials became satisfied that the man had not been robbed, but had left his coat somewhere along the wharves. The bereaved skipper was urgent in his demand that Officer Wendell, acting captain of the night watch, should at once issue an ironclad warrant for the fellow who stole the coat, but under the circumstances the warrant did not issue. On Saturday the coat, with the pocketbook and money all right, was found in an outbuilding on Sise's wharf by two men, and returned to the skipper, who gladly rewarded the finders by the present of a five-dollar bill each.

NAVY YARD ITEMS.

The small vessel now in course of construction at this navy yard, and which was supposed to be some kind of new-fangled torpedo boat, it is now announced is intended as a ferry boat for service at the apprentice training station at Newport, R. I. She is fifteen feet longer than the Emerald, for twenty-five years or so past the naval ferry boat at this station, and of correspondingly greater capacity. Her engines are to be built at this yard, the drawings for them having arrived last week.

It is a Curious Fact

That the body is now more susceptible to benefit from medicine than at any other season. Hence the importance of taking Hood's Sarsaparilla now, when it will do you the most good. It is really wonderful for purifying and enriching the blood, creating an appetite, and giving a healthy tone to the whole system. Be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla, which is peculiar to itself.

Biddeford Journal: "The president has disapproved the bill for the erection of a public building at Bar Harbor. Mr. Putnam should see about this. A public building contract well placed is worth more even than a Kittery navy yard for campaign purposes."

Delicate Children, Nursing

Mothers, overworked men and for all diseases where the tissues are wasting away from the inability to digest food, or from overwork; should take Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites. "I used the Emulsion on a lady who was delicate. It put her in such good health and flesh, that I must say it is the best Emulsion."—L. P. Waddell, M. D., Hugh's Mills, S. C.

SIGN YOUR COMMUNICATIONS.

"A Sufferer," who writes us concerning alleged misconduct of pupils of the Cabot street school in the line of depredations upon private property in that section of the city, should remember that anonymous communications go into the waste basket, "under the rule." The name of the writer is required, "not necessarily for publication, but as a guaranty of good faith." If the annoyances complained of exist, they should be abated; but we know nothing of them personally, and cannot give currency to damaging charges without knowing on what ground we stand.

MARITIME NOTES

On Tuesday night, June 5th, a sloop yacht belonging to Charles F. Ward of Biddeford was stolen from her moorings, and sailed away. The boat is about nineteen feet long, six and a half feet beam, and is valued at $300. She is supposed to have been stolen by tramps.

The yacht Gleam, owned by Harrison Garrett, banker, of Baltimore, brother of Robert Garrett, was sunk in the Patapsco river by a steamer on June 9th, and Mr. Garrett was drowned. A party of friends going from Annapolis to Baltimore with him were saved by the steamer.

The weather is now warm enough to bring light summer drinks into active demand. None better can be found than those manufactured and bottled by C. E. Boynton, now in his 18th year in the business in this city. See his advertisement in another column.

Mr. Joseph R. Holmes is excavating the cellar and putting in the foundation for the summer cottage of Prof. Parsons of Philadelphia on the former Dow farm at Rye, now owned by Prof. Parsons. It is reported that Anderson & Junkins, contractors and builders, have the contract for erecting the house.

The Eldredge Brewing Co. will put upon the market this (Monday) morning a November brewing of their celebrated bock beer. See advertisement.

The grounds of the Unitarian church were last week graded up around the curbing, depressions filled, and grass seed sown on the new made surface, by Mr. Robert King. The stone step outside of the Court place gate, which for a long time has been a snare and a delusion, causing many a dignified citizen and devout worshipper to execute an erratic and involuntary war-dance in slippery seasons, was also placed on a level.

Mrs. Joseph Hellene, child and nurse, of Jacksonville, Fla., are passing the summer with Mrs. James C. Crosby of this city, mother of Mrs. Hellene.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA
COMPOUND EXTRACT
TRADE MARK

The importance of purifying the blood cannot be overestimated, for without pure blood you cannot enjoy good health.

At this season nearly every one needs a good medicine to purify, vitalize, and enrich the blood, and we ask you to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. It strengthens and builds up the system, creates an appetite, and tones the digestion, while it eradicates disease. The peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation of the vegetable remedies used give to Hood's Sarsaparilla peculiar curative powers. No other medicine has such a record of wonderful cures. If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other instead. It is a Peculiar Medicine, and is worthy your confidence.

Peculiar To Itself

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS

$22 TO $900.

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS. Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

Pianos and Organs sold for cash or easy payments, also rented. tmy10

GLYCEROLE!

A PRESERVATIVE OF LEATHER.

For Oiling and Dressing Boots, Shoes, Etc.

Ever since the now dispensable article of Shoe Dressing came into existence, it has been the source of constant trouble to parties using it, because it hardened and cracked the leather; to the dealer, because of the complaints of his customers. Conscientious Shoe Dealers have often dissuaded their patrons from using any Shoe Dressing whatever and advised the application of oil, as it is universally known that oil is the only preservative of leather, while all other substances harden, crack and destroy it.

It was claimed for most Dressings heretofore in use that they do not crack leather, but it has never before been claimed that an Oil Dressing could be produced, the composition of which was considered to be an impossibility. After years of patient work however, we have succeeded in solving the problem of producing an oil, which in addition to its softening and preserving qualities gives also an elegant lustre to leather goods.

Glycerole is a veritable oil and the only one in existence which answers the purpose of oiling, and at the same time, dressing leather. It is perfect in its composition, does not rub off or soil dresses or skirts, and imparts to worn goods a soft, oily lustre which positively preserves the leather and protects it from water.

We do not pretend that a single application of Glycerole will improve a shoe already dried and hardened by numerous coats of common shoe dressing, crack and destroy it. But all shoes oiled and dressed only with Glycerole will be positively improved in wearing quality, as this oil by penetrating into the pores of the leather will make it more supple and add to its durability.

Price 25 cents per bottle.

STARTLING STATISTICS.

What a High Official Has to Say About the Condition of the People—Some Serious Facts and Figures.

[Herald.]

"It is wonderful what figures will show." Such was the remark of a high official in the State Department to a representative of this paper. "How many really rich men do you suppose there are in New England? Very few. But how many do you think there would be if people were physically and mentally sound and vigorous? New England people are active, restless and ambitious, and therefore neglect themselves. Not one man or woman in ten is in perfect health."

"Official figures show this, do they?"

"Precisely. There seems to be a New England disease. People do not seem to think that headaches, or tired feeling, or 'blues,' or loss of appetite, or nervousness mean anything. Then the first thing they know they are in bed and on their way to death.

"How many die of this disease?"

"Thousands. Henry Wilson, Charles Sumner, Wendell Phillips and Governor Bodwell are among the number. James G. Blaine is also on the road, and his trip abroad is in the hope of recovering health."

"But what do you find to counteract it?"

"Very little. The only reliable medicine so far discovered is Hunt's Remedy. The faculty of one of our leading medical colleges, knowing the composition of this medicine, have been recommending it for some time, and the results have been wonderful. I know three ladies and one gentleman (one of the latter a State officer), who have been entirely cured by its use. I wish everybody might know more about it and use it."

Such facts and figures, and from so high a source, should prove invaluable to thousands whose success in life would be much greater were they physically and mentally sound and vigorous.

MANDRAKE CompounD

Among the various organs of our system, none perform a more essential part than the Liver and Kidneys, and so many people are afflicted with diseases of these organs, causing the Blood to become impure, that it is our first duty to assist them in their work. A MOTHER'S SLUMBER SONG.

Sleep, my little one, sleep—
Narrow thy bed and deep;
Neither hunger, nor thirst, nor pain
Can touch or hurt thee ever again;
I, thy mother, will bend and sing
As I watch thee calmly slumbering—
Sleep, my little one, sleep.

Sleep, my little one, sleep—
Narrow thy bed and deep;
Soon in thy angel's tender arms,
Closely sheltered from earth's alarms,
Thou wilt awaken, baby mine,
Where all is mercy and love divine—
Sleep, my little one, sleep.

Sleep, my little one, sleep—
Narrow thy bed and deep;
I have wept till my heart is dry,
But now I smile as I see thee lie
With small hands crossed in death's mute prayer,
Never to reach in the wild despair
Of hunger's anguish. All is o'er!
I wept, but now I can weep no more.
Sleep, my little one, sleep.

Sleep, my little one, sleep—
Narrow thy bed and deep.
A little while I too shall rest
Close by the side of my baby blest.
Safe is my babe—earth's anguish done—
Safe, at the feet of the Holy One.
Sleep, my little one, sleep.
—Anna B. Bassel.

Cuffing an Evil Doer.

All through the east it seems to be tacitly understood that everybody has a right to strike his inferiors, and that it would be unpardonable presumption in the inferior to strike back or adopt any more self assertive measure than edging away. As a general thing in Persia blows are given and taken with the bland and childlike philosophy of Kismet. The person who knows himself to be in the wrong on some trifling occasion receives a proportionate amount of chastisement meekly, as being no more than his just desert, even though the party who assumes the role of executioner be a casual stranger, acting on the spur of prima facie evidence. What is the concern of one seems to be the concern of all; not only the party directly aggrieved, but the onlookers also are very likely to take a hand in cuffing an evil doer. The person who is thus publicly cuffed feels no sense of disgrace. The whole matter is regarded most philosophically; having meted out punishment to an offender, they hobnob with him again on equal terms at once.—Thomas Stevens in New York Sun.

Pastry as Wholesome as Toast.

People will eat hot buttered toast, and give it to children and invalids, who will tell you that they are quite careful about diet, and never think of touching pastry. The difference between the two articles is as follows: Pastry is flour and water baked after butter has been rubbed into it. Buttered toast is flour and water baked first, and then rubbed thoroughly with butter. The difference between pastry and well buttered toast is apparently the difference between the proverbial "tweedledum and tweedledee." I only mention toast as one instance of the articles of diet which people consider comparatively simple and indulge in freely.—Boston Transcript.

Rather Hard of Hearing.

"Carrie! Carrie! Carrie, come and see this pretty little ring with a stone in it Uncle George has brought you. Carrie, why didn't you come the first time I called you?"

"Mamma, I 'spects I'm kinder hard of hearing."

"But you heard quickly enough when I spoke of the stone ring?"

"Yes, mamma; I said kinder hard of hearing, but I isn't stone deaf, you know."—Boston Transcript.

Telephones for Hospital Patients.

In some English hospitals telephones have been attached near the beds, enabling the patients, without any great exertion or derangement, to receive private messages from and to talk to their friends at a distance. Some patients get their friends to read to them in this way, the reader sitting at home in his library and the patient listening through his telephone.—Boston Budget.

Scarred by Rifle Balls.

Trees long retain the scars inflicted upon them by rifle balls, and trees are standing on the old Indian battle ground near Dawson, Ga., that still bear the scars of the rifle balls fired into them during the fight of July, 1836. The pine tree that one of the soldiers ascended to spy out the movements of the Indians is still there.—Chicago Herald.

A Shining Example.

There seems to be a fascination about the newspaper business that some men cannot resist, although they may have to devote fourteen hours daily to work, and run in debt. There's The Congressional Record, for instance. It has been published at a loss ever since it was started.—Norristown Herald.

An Instructive Interpretation.

Sunday School Teacher—What does it mean, Johnny, in the prayer where it says, "Lead us not into temptation?"

Johnny—W'y, I guess it means they needn't trouble theirselves because we can go into it ourselves without leadin'.—Washington Critic.

For the Reading Room.

A motto suggested for the reading room of a popular library is: "Tolle, aperi, recita, ne lædas, claude, repone!" which, freely translated, means: "Take me down, open me, read me, don't injure me, shut me up, but put me back!"—Chicago Herald.

A Masseuse's Experience.

A masseuse who has had considerable service in wealthy families, was heard to say that in many years she had administered massage to only one woman whose ribs were not displaced by corset wearing.—New Orleans Picayune.

The past fifty-four years Great Britain has trebled her wealth, France has nearly quadrupled hers, while the United States since 1850 has multiplied in riches sixfold.

The human heart has to do as much work in twenty-four hours as a machine would to lift 125 tons of iron.

Paper treated with a mixture of camphor oil and linseed oil becomes waterproof.

The Mayflower as a Slaver.

Hawthorne in his English note book tells the following incident concerning the Mayflower, which carried the Pilgrim Fathers to America: On her trip following that which brought the Pilgrims the Mayflower skirted along the African coast and picked up a cargo of slaves for the new colonies of America.—Chicago Herald.

Sleeping Bag for Campers.

An ingenious sleeping bag which is in use by some mountain climbers consists of a mackintosh sack, one longitudinal half of which can be inflated, so that the camper can have the luxury of sleeping on an air mattress.—Boston Budget.

Ideas For Dress.

Silk flowered woollen lace looks rich and elegant as a trimming for summer challies and lustres.

Full bows of ribbon, with a stiff quill or two, are the only permissable trimming worn for travelling hats.

Gray with yellow—the bright, brassy, buttercup hue—is one of London's atrocious combinations for evening gowns.

Velvet figaros, stiff with embroidery in gold, silver and copper, will be much worn with thin watering place gowns.

A garment that is a basque at one side and upon the other a well defined polonaise is among the latest of London caprices.

A bunch of cowslips, life size, in green and yellow gold, is one of the handsomest brooches for wear withevening gowns.

About the prettiest of new rustic hats are made of fine corn husks, delicately braided and neither bleached nor colored.

A new wrinkle in the new full empire skirts is to alternate three inches of gathers with four perfectly plain all around the belt.

Brilliantine, the new summer stuff so popular for house gowns, is merely the old time alpaca in new tints and printed patterns.

And now come green kid gloves, in all shades, from which, along with envy, malice and all uncharitableness, good Lord deliver us.

Pole India silks or Bengalines are made up over dark skirts of velvet, while light wool over surah is another favorite afternoon combination.

The "wedding wrap" for swell trosseaux is of fine white cloth, with wide sleeves of white velvet, satin lined and edged with white fox fur.

It is a well respected maxim: "Accept the advice of competent instructors and be guided thereby." Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is the only rafe remedy for coughs and colds. It costs only twenty-five cents.

The Sultan of Zanzibar has refused to ratify the cession of certain islands to Italy.

The favorite washing compound of the day is James Pyle's Pearline. It cleanses fabrics without injury and without the laborious scrubbing necessary with ordinary soap. For sale by grocers.

The De Golyer Varnish company, Chicago, Ills., has confessed judgment for $121,800.

An Imperative Necessity.

Chat pure air is to an unhealthy locality, what spring cleaning is to the neat housekeeper, so is Hood's Sarsaparilla to everybody, at this season. The body needs to be thoroughly renovated, the blood purified and vitalized, the germs of disease destroyed. Scrofula, salt rheum, and all other blood disorders are cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, the most popular and successful spring medicene.

By the burning of the stables of the Montreal street railway, 134 valuable horses perished.

Don't Despair.

If you are weak and weary from some so-called chronic disease, don't give up. Sulphur Bitters have given hope to many invalids, where hitherto there was nothing but despair. It will build up and renew your whole system. — Editor Weekly American.

The republican majority in Oregon is now placed at 7000.

To cure a cough, to relieve all irritations of the throat, to restore perfect soundness and health to the lungs use Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, which is still prepared with the same care as when it was introduced to the public by Dr. Wistar, over forty years since.

There were plenty of red bandannas and one very wet blanket at the democratic convention. The wet blanket was a despatch from Oregon.

The life-giving properties of Ayer's Sarsaparilla have established its well-earned reputation, and made it the most effectual and popular blood purifier of the day. For all diseases of the stomach, liver and kidneys, this remedy has no equal. Price $1.

Some of the democratic papers have not yet heard of the Oregon election.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam for coughs and colds does, is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles are 50c. and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption. tjo23

WHY WORK FOR ANOTHER, or on small salary? Why continue working on a worn-out farm? Why try to secure a living from such high-priced or heavily mortgaged farms? Why work on rented land? Why not start for yourself? Why not secure a farm of one of the low-priced but very fertile and well located lands adjacent to railroads now to be obtained by those going to Northern Dakota and Minnesota, where you can make a larger net profit per acre than on the high-priced or worn-out land you now occupy? Why not go and look the situation over, and see for yourself, or at least obtain further information, which will be sent free, if you will address C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

DON'T SCOLD

a man for groaning when he has Rheumatism or Neuralgia. The pain is simply awful. No torture in the ancient times was more painful than these twin diseases. But—oughtn't a man to be blamed if, having Rheumatism or Neuralgia, he wont use Ath-lo-pho-ros, when it has cured thousands who have suffered in the same way? It has cured hundreds after physicians have pronounced them incurable.

"The skill of five physicians could not cure me of Rheumatism which had settled in the hips, neck and shoulders. So intense was the pain that sleep was almost impossible. The first dose of Athlophoros gave me relief, and the third enabled me to sleep for four and a half hours without waking. I continued its use, and am now well."

The Stops of an Organ.

With such important functions as the liver, are of course productive of serious bodilsly disturbance. When it relaxes its secretive and distributive activity, bile gets into the blood, and tinges the skin and white of the eyes with yellow, the bowels become constipated, the tongue coated, the breath sour. Then come headaches, vertigo and congestion of the organ, accompanied with pain in its vicinity or under the right shoulder blade. Shall blue pill be the remedy sought? No, for mercury in any form is pernicious. What then? Experience indicates Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as the true remedy for inactivity of the liver. It not only relaxes the bowels without pain, but has a direct stimulating effect upon the hepathic gland itself, the seat and origin of the trouble. All malarial complaints involves disorder of the liver, and of these the Bitters is the most popular curative. It also conquers dyspepsia, nervousness, rheumatism and kidney troubles.

The usual treatment of catarrh is very unsatisfactory, as thousands of despairing patients can testify. On this point a trustworthy medical writer says: Proper local treatment is positively necessary to success, but many, if not most of the remedies in general use by physicians afford but temporary benefit. A cure cersainly cannot be expected from snuffs, powders, douches and washes. Ely's Cream Balm is a remedy which combines the important requisites of quick action, specific curative power with perfect safety and Pleasantness to the patient.

DEATH TO PAIN.

ROOFS OF CITY HOUSES.

A Physician Recommends That the Housetops Be Turned Into Playgrounds.

Dr. Gouverneur M. Smith has contributed to a recent number of The Medical Record an interesting and suggestive paper. The main point of this article is that by neglecting to make the roofs of the houses places of safety and pleasantly habitable, New Yorkers miss the best and most readily available opportunity open to them of enjoying fresh sunshine in moderate weather and fresh and comparatively cool air during the sweltering heats of summer.

Dr. Smith describes the state of things which all New Yorkers know when he speaks of the "dark closet with precipitous ladder leading to the scuttle, rarely entered and ascended except by workmen to repair the roof." In a private dwelling of the smallest size habitually built on this island, the roof has an area as large as that of the yard, immeasurably better lighted and aired, and intrinsically a far better place as a playground for children or a resort for adults in pleasant or in oppressively hot weather. That is to say, in the houses most favorably circumstanced for light and air, one-half of the available breathing space of the city, excluding the streets, is absolutely wasted. In the more expensive and extensive dwellings the case is worse, because the yard is contracted as the house is extended, until in most cases it amounts to little more than an air shaft, and is not available at all as a place of recreation.

In the tenement houses the case is far worse. Nobody who has ever visited the back yard of one in the more populous quarters of the city would ever thereafter think of it as a playground or a breathing space or a place of resort for rest and refreshment. Yet the choice for these purposes is practically between this place, one-third the area of the house, and the street, while the housetop, three times as large as the yard and in every respect more eligible, is absolutely wasted, so far as concerns any precautions taken for its use and enjoyment by the builder, who nevertheless prides himself upon his economy of room.

It is no wonder that Dr. Smith asks whether "architectural ingenuity, coached by sanitary science," cannot "contrive some method of using the thousands of acres of housetops on this island so that roofs can be made additionally useful at certain seasons by affording outdoor recreation and protection from invalidism." Really it seems as if architectural ingenuity had been exerted in the opposite direction, for there is no difficulty in the way of achieving this result. New York is already a flat roofed city. All that is absolutely needed to convert its roofs into the pleasantest parts of the house after the sun goes down in summer, and while the sun is up during the spring and autumn, is perhaps slightly to increase their structural strength, to cover them with some material that shall be practicable as a pavement, to provide decent and commodious access to them by continuing to the roof the main stairway of the house, and to provide a parapet that will obviate any danger of falling by children or careless persons. The cost of all this is not worth counting in comparison to the benefits to be derived from it.—New York Times.

Warmth of a Living Room.

The needs common to all women are so common that few regard their importance. To say that warm rooms are essential to health and beauty sounds like a truism, but the fact is that among all well to do classes it is the rarest thing to find a really warm house. A heated house, burning up coal and vitality together, is common, but not one so soundly built that rooms do not readily cool off, and where comfort is felt with moderate heat, or where draughts do not sow rheumatic twinges, with wrinkles to match. Out of doors dress and exercise keep up the natural heat. Indoors the quieter life and shutting off the greater part of the sun's rays render the case different. The constant temperature of all occupied rooms should be enough to keep the blood at its normal heat of 98 degs. without any chilling or change—say 75 to 78 degs. by day and 15 degs. lower by night. Instead, when steam is up, or the furnace burns up, you will find the glass at 85 degs. on the north wall of rooms. Two hours or less after the heat goes down the thin walls lose their heat immediately, and it is 45 degs. in the same place. I describe what I have noted repeatedly in houses where comfort was supposed to be the first consideration.

Such variations are enough to try the strongest frames. To say nothing of neuralgia and lung troubles, it is impossible to keep a good complexion through such ruinous changes of temperature. The heat dries it into fine wrinkles, the cold sends the blood inward, leaving the face blue and features pinched. Let the husband who wishes to keep his wife in freshness be careful that she has warm rooms to live in. The injury to the circulation which destroys all bloom and elasticity strikes deeper in time, causing failure of the heart or chronic inflammations. As you value bloom and long life, never permit yourself to be chilly for five minutes. No matter what thermometers say, if you are out of order enough to feel chilly the thing to do is to raise the heat till the blood absorbs heat and grows warm again. For heat is life, and the chilly precepts of certain hygienists who seem to consider comfort as a crime have cost unsuspected victims.—Shirley Dare.

Chief Among His Fellows.

A southern woman writing of the freedmen lately said: "The field hands in the Gulf states show us the condition of a people making the first effort to rise out of ignorance and squalor to civilization. There is in every half dozen families one man of integrity, energy and industry, on whom the others live as parasites. I never failed on entering one of their villages to detect this natural chief."—Youth's Companion.

"Breathing Lessons" for Singers.

Romani began to teach his pupils by what he called "breathing" lessons, whereby he made them expand their lungs so as to strengthen them, and at the same time acquire the habit of retaining sufficient breath to finish a long sentence of cadenza without interrupting it. Once he had ascertained the register of the voice, whether it was bass, baritone or tenor, mezzo soprano or contralto, he immediately obliged his pupil to promise him on his honor not to attempt to force a single note above or below his natural register. This art of breathing is one of the first taught in the great conservatories of Europe. The pupil takes a looking glass and stands before it, throws back his chest, puts his feet together in a straight line and begins to fill his lungs gradually with air, keeping the mouth wide open, with a smiling expression. When the lungs are full he beats with his fingers generally from three up to about fifty strokes before he allows the breath to escape very slowly from the open mouth without closing the mouth at all.

These exercises, repeated for about a quarter of an hour three or four times a day, unquestionably benefit the health and imperceptibly but rapidly increase the volume of sound emitted. In about two months the pupil begins to add to these breathing exercises others, in which he draws his breath in the same manner, but pronounces each of the vowels at first pianissimo, and increasing gradually by degrees to fortissimo—almost to a shout. Singers, of course, replace these simple sounds by solfeggi and other vocalizes.—Saturday Review.

Lost from the Hotels.

An old hotel steward said yesterday that it is impossible to restrict a large proportion of the loss of portable articles in hotels. This loss is not so much due to theft as to carelessness and hurry on the part of maids and men and women, who carry off the teaspoons they have been using in their rooms, pack up the hotel towels by mistake, and break a good deal that is only missed when an inventory is taken. This steward said that a large hotel collects spoons, napkins and towels stamped with the names of almost all the large hotels in the country, and of names in Europe. The spoon packed away with the child's medicine by a maid in Paris is, perhaps, next brought to light in a New York hotel, where it is sent down to the kitchen when no longer needed.

Thus these little but costly things travel about and defy safe keeping. There is a great deal of theft, of course. Servant women wrap tablecloths and sheets around their persons, waiters pocket forks, spoons, knives and napkins, and bartenders and their helpers carry off bottles of liquors. As far as possible, large hotels board and house their help, because that makes it more difficult for theft to be practiced.

But the leakage remains very great. In one case that can be certified to, a clever waiter established his wife at the head of a boarding house and furnished her tableware, linen and a great deal of the food that was eaten from his stealings from the different places where he was employed.—New York Sun.

Death of a Favorite Hound.

An old hunter in Mexico gave to the author of "Summerland Sketches" his experience with a favorite hound, which exhibited feelings that would honor humanity:

"You have no idea," said he, "how they get used to you if you are alone with them for weeks together; the worst of it is that it comes so awful hard on a fellow to lose a creature of that kind.

"I bought a fine Scotch deerhound in Baltimore in '66. I had him nearly eight years, and I tell you, sir, I felt like shooting myself when I lost him. The Mexicans poisoned him because he wouldn't let them come near my smokehouse at night.

"No square, straightforward poison, either, for it took him a whole week to die. It just went through me like a knife to hear him whine, and perhaps I out to have put him out of his misery, but I was thinking of all the scrapes we had helped each other out of—we had frozen and starved together all over Texas and Arkansas—and I couldn't kill him while there was a ghost of a chance of his pulling through."

The voice of the old rough became inarticulate at the recollection. He had spread the dog's couch at the side of his own bed and patted his shaggy coat till he lay silent and motionless.

But late in the evening, when the logs in the fireplace had flickered almost their last, the hound raised his head and placed it upon his master's arm, looked into his eyes and sank back dead, like the last pressure of a human hand, "a farewell mutely spoken, but not easy to forget."—Youth's Companion.

Chances for Three Inventors.

I have often taken occasion to remark that the world is awaiting the appearance of three inventors, greater than any who have gone before and to whom it will accord honors and emoluments far exceeding all ever yet received by any of their predecessors. The first is he who will show us how, by the combustion of fuel, directly to produce the electric current; the second is the man who will teach us to reproduce the beautiful light of the glow worm and the firefly, a light without heat, the production of which means the utilization of energy without that still more serious waste than the thermo dynamic now met with in the attempt to produce light; while the third is the inventor who is to give us the first practically successful air ship.

The first two of these problems are set for the electrical engineer, and we may be pardoned excess of faith should it prove to be such, when, contemplating the enormous gain to humanity which must come of such inventions, we look confidently for the genius who is to multiply the wealth of the world to an extent beside which even the boon conferred by the creators of the steam engine and the telegraph will not appear overshadowing. When this inventor comes forward, and most probably not till then, it is very likely that we shall see steam superseded by a rival.—Thurston in Forum.

CURE OF

CANCER and ULCERS.

Judge T. C. McLendon writes to the Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga., under date of February 14, 1888: "About three years ago, Jerry Bradley, a colored man, had a cancerous sore on his face, near the right eye. It caused him a great deal of pain, and he lost the sight of the eye, but was finally cured of the cancer by the use of Swift's Specific. This case is well known in Wilkes Co., Ga, where he lived (near Danbury), and of this case, I, myself, had personal knowledge."

Mr. I. Cox, of Arkabutla, Tate Co., Miss. writes, February 24, 1888: "I suffered a great deal from old ulcers for six years. Your medicine was recommended to me, and after using six bottles, I was completely cured. I never saw its equal as a Blood Purifier. My neighbors will use no other. Your medicine does even more than you claim for it. I have known it to cure cases which were thought to be hopeless. It is the best medicine made."

Mrs. A. M. Goldsmith, No. 574 Warren St., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes, February 22, 1888: "I commenced using S. S. S. about three years ago. I had suffered with a sore throat for over a year, when I commenced using your remedy. I used a great many other remedies with no good results. My little girl, also, had sore fingers; it commenced from the quick, and then the nails would come off. We doctored her for over two years, and when I commenced using S. S. S. I thought I would see what it would do for her. I am thankful to say that it entirely cured her. It is the best remedy I know of for the blood. I really believe it was the means of saving my life. The doctor told me I had a throat disease similar to General Grant's. I cheerfully recommend it to all suffering from disordered blood. I use it now as a tonic whenever I think I need it."

Mr. E. F. George, Milford P. O., Ellis Co., Texas, writes: "I had a cancerous wart or mole on my eyelid, as large as the end of my thumb, which had the appearance of cancer, causing me much pain and inflammation, from which I suffered a long time. Seeing the S. S. S. advertised I commenced using it, and after the use of a few bottles the sore dropped out, my cancer was gone, and I was entirely relieved."

Mr. G. W. Pettis, of Aiken, S. C., writes: "I was a sufferer from cancer of the breast, and had been under the treatment of three physicians, but it did me no good. It was so bad that I had to stop work. After taking a course of S. S. S. I was entirely cured."

Democrats Talk Reduction, Republicans reduce.

The Albany Journal thinks it timely to remind people who declare that the republicans have no tariff-reduction policy, that the democrats have controlled the house for five years, and have not reduced the revenue a dollar, while the republicans, from July 13, 1866, to March 4, 1875, reduced the revenue $284,421,250. The democrats, who were in power the six years following, reduced the internal revenue $6,368,935, but did not touch the tariff, whereas the republicans, when in control for the two years following 1881, reduced the tariff and internal revenue $61,432,481.

MATTERS IN YORK.

YORK CORNER, ME., June 11th.

We were pleasantly surprised on Saturday last by a call, from Mrs. Elzira Grant, the beloved mother Mr. C. A. Grant, of the Sea Cottage. Mrs. Grant celebrated the 88th anniversary of her birthday yesterday (Sunday.) With the exception of a slight lameness, she is as lively as the average woman of half her years. She too has always been a hard-working woman, and has been a great help in conducting the indoor work at the famous hotel—the Sea Cottage.

Mrs. Ruth Parsons, of whom you had quite an extended notice some time ago, passed quietly to the silent throng on Thursday, June 7th. Her age was ninety-four years, nine months and nine days. She had been a hard-working woman, and owed nothing to the world.

On Sunday a fourteen-year old son of Edward Pinisted, of the Agamenticus district, while scuffing with some other boys broke his left arm between the elbow and wrist. The father came for Dr. Hazen, who went over and placed the broken limb in position, and gives the boy

At Vinalhaven, Me., on Sunday, a boat containing five young Englishmen, stone cutters, was capsized, and four of them were drowned. One was rescued by the schooner Harvester, after clinging for an hour to the boat's bottom. The ages of the drowned men ranged from twenty-two to thirty-six, years and two of them were married.

His mother and sister reside at Bar Mills.

George Gleason and Fred Jones, two young men, were arrested in Salem, Mass., Saturday, for stealing Ward's yacht from her moorings in Biddeford, and were arraigned in the municipal court at Biddeford on Monday morning. They pleaded guilty, and were bound over to the September term of the supreme court. They belong in New Bedford. They are wanted in Saco and in Rockport, Mass., for breaking and entering.

The annual conference of the Unitarian churches of Maine is to be held this week in the Unitarian church at Kennebunk, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, the programme being as follows: Tuesday evening at 7:45, preaching by Rev. A. P. Putnam, D. D., of Concord, Mass.; Wednesday, during the day, essays and discussion; evening, at 7:45, preaching by Rev. E. A. Judge Caleb Burbank, who died recently in Stockton, Cal., was a native of Alfred, York county, Maine. He graduated from Waterville college, where, for a time, he was the instructor of Hon. Lot M. Morrill; and he was a member of the senate of Maine during the session of 1841. On the death of President Harrison he was selected to deliver the eulogy before both houses of the legislature, though the youngest member. In 1854 he went to California, where he was one of the organizers of the republican party in that state, and was elected one of the judges of the fourth judicial district; later he was elected to the assembly, and then to the state senate.

NEW HAMPSHIRE FIRE INSURANCE.

From the report of Insurance Commissioner Henry H. Huse for the year 1887, we learn that the total amount of fire risks in force Dec. 31st was $125,308,488.22, an increase during the year of $26,618,808.75 over 1886; the fire losses paid during the year were $809,568.09, an increase of $416,091.51 over 1876.

The risks written by the Granite State Fire Ins. Co. of this city during 1887 amounted to $10,647,254, on which premiums of $125,106.83 were received, and $40,898.22 of losses paid. Only one company in the state exceeded this, the New Hampshire Co., of Manchester, writing $12,700,463 of risks, receiving $140,196.64 in premiums, and paying $74,964.44 in losses. The Portsmouth Fire Association, which commenced business late in the year, wrote risks amounting to $276,578, and received $3,717.13 in premiums; it sustained no losses.

The graduating class of the Newmarket high school is composed of ten young women and three young men. The graduating exercises will be held in the Methodist church on the afternoon of June 22d, as the noise of the machinery in the mills makes it almost impossible to hear the exercises when given in the town hall. The usual reception will be held in the evening in the town hall. Chandler's orchestra of Portland will furnish the music both afternoon and evening.

PORTSMOUTH, June 11th.

JOHN O'BRIEN has just put up a division fence between the Cunningham Block, now owned by him, and the Hough property, now owned by Mrs. Cole; the fence is a substantial one, and is to be supported by both parties—one-half of the fence to belong to John O'Brien, and one-half to belong to Mrs. Cole.

Mr. O'Brien wishes it to be understood that he does not want any disreputable characters harbored or encouraged about his block, and any person or persons found harboring the same will be forthwith notified to leave the premises.

N. B. O'Brien wants all ashes and rubbish put into barrels and rolled out to the front on Tuesdays and Fridays, so that it can be taken away by the City Teams. JOHN O'BRIEN,

BABY CARRIAGE FOR SALE

Disastrous Fire in Lowell.

Shortly before midnight Sunday night fire broke out in a two-tenement block in Lowell, and the structure was destroyed. It was occupied by two families, of nine persons in all, and of these three were burned to death, namely, Eugenia Vallerand, aged eighteen, Peter Vallerand, aged eight, and Delia Vallerand, aged five. Alfred Vallerand, aged fourteen, was fatally burned; the mother, Mrs. Thomas Vallerand, was quite badly burned, and had a leg broken by jumping from a window, but will live. The family in the other tenement was named Boisvert. Mrs. Boisvert escaped, carrying her year-old baby, but will probably die from breathing hot smoke. One of her children were missing after the fire, but it was thought had been taken away by some neighbor. The house was a wooden rattletrap, with but one stairway.

OFFICIAL NOTICE!

— OF —

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co.

— FROM THE —

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we respectfully request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

30,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Silver-ware, Window Shades, Drapery, Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Stoves and Ranges, Feathers, Feather Pillows, Spreads, Blankers, Chamber Sets, Parlor Suits, Carpets, Lounges, Easy Chairs, Mattresses, Springs,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the

Furniture, Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET, PARLOR SUIT, Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and, taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. There are items worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time, We have invariably paid out the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We wish to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

KITCHEN RANGE, or a CHAMBER SET, or PARLOR SUIT, or CARPETS, WINDOW SHADES, DRAPERY CURTAINS,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of these Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell the same and shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. This notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store, Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

Respectfully, the Public's Ob't Servants,

THE ATKINSON HOUSE FURNISHING CO.,

Headquarters Cor. Pearl and Middle Streets,

The right to reject any or all bids is reserved.

W. J. SAMPSON, for the Committee.

TREMENDOUS ENTHUSIASM FOR CLEVELAND.

A democratic friend on Monday evening informed us that the only Cleveland campaign flag flying in the city was the one put up by Hon. Daniel Marcy on the day of Cleveland's renomination. Councilman Ryan did run out a Cleveland flag soon after Capt. Marcy's was displayed, but it was soon hauled in, and has not again been displayed. No national nomination, by any party, within our memory, has ever fallen so flat in this city as that of Cleveland. In the campaign of 1884 there were nineteen Cleveland & Hendricks flags stretched across the streets of the city within five days of the nominations being made.

REPUBLICAN MEETING.

There was a large and enthusiastic meeting of the Republican club in the headquarters on Congress street, Monday evening. The brilliant victory won in Oregon by the republicans, on the distinct issue of protection to American labor, as opposed to free trade, which was the democratic issue, was commented on also the straddle of the democratic national platform on the tariff question, and its silence concerning civil service reform.

The meeting was called to order shortly after eight o'clock by Vice Prest. Frank E. H. Marden.

William H. Sise, John Knowlton and Joseph R. Curtis were appointed a committee to procure a campaign flag, to be run out from the headquarters upon the receipt of news of the republican national nominations having been made. The same committee were empowered to provide music on the occasion.

After some routine business, the meeting adjourned to Wednesday evening, June 20th.

ACCIDENTS.

Mr. William S. Willey, of Lafayette road, had his right leg broken just above the ankle on Monday morning by the caving in of a lot of rocks and earth, while he was at work on the Sagamore road improvements. He was taken to the Cottage Hospital, and attended by Dr. Parsons. He is an elderly man, which makes the accident a serious one.

As Mr. A. Brackett Trefethen was driving on Deer street, Monday forenoon, a wheel of his wagon dropped into a depression, and Mr. Trefethen and the seat were thrown rom the wagon. Mr. Trefethen was taken up insensible, his head and left shoulder being considerably injured, and was taken into the house of Postmaster Gerrish; after recovering consciousness he was taken home by Street Commissioner Marshall. Mr. Trefethen's horse ran as far as Vaughan street, where he was stopped without any harm having been done.

THE MAIL-CAR TRAGEDY.

Jeremiah G. Sinclair, the mail route agent who was killed in a mail car at Bangor on Saturday night, belonged in Ossipee. He was well known in this city, having boarded at the Kearsarge house several years, before being put on the through train between Boston and Bangor. The other two clerks in the car at the time of the homicide were O. tween Sellen and Sinclair, and that the latter was stabbed with a knife which Sellen was using to cut strings with. All the men had excellent reputations, as individuals and route agents.

BASE BALL.

The Rochester club, which defeated the Portsmouth club Saturday, played a game in this city on Monday afternoon, with the following result:

MUSIC HALL.

To-morrow evening, in Music hall, will be presented "Zozo, the Magic Queen," the most pleasing and brilliant spectacular extravaganza put on the stage in recent years. The stage pictures are magnificent. Tickets at Goodrich's.

AN OUTRAGE.

On Sunday afternoon Mr. Leonard Evans, who lives near the Plains, while driving his cow towards home was struck on one ankle by a large leaden ball with which a number of men were playing "bowls" in the road. He was so much hurt that he could not walk home, and was left by the fellows lying in the road nearly insensible until a team came along, the driver of which assisted him home. Mr. Evans has been confined to his bed ever since. It is to be hoped the heartless ruffians can be made to feel the force of the law.

Mr. Phinehas J. Goodrich, who died on Saturday at the home of his mother, Mrs. Almira T. Goodrich, on Cabot street, at the age of twenty-three years, was Mrs. Goodrich's last surviving child, she having lost her entire family, three daughters and one son, within three years, all from the same disease, consumption.

The Monument Bronze Co., of Bridgeport, Conn., (the builders of our soldiers' monument,) are making a white bronze monument to be erected on the summit of Mount Mitchell, 6,688 feet above the sea level, the highest point of land east of the Mississippi river. Prof. Mitchell lost his life ou this mountain thirty years ago, while engaged in scientific research.

An exchange says: "Hon. Frank Jones, of New Hampshire, is one of the men who did a great deal to elect Mr. Cleveland who have not found any cause to complain of a lack of consideration. He has never kicked to any immoderate extent. Not long ago he had a set-to with a Washington bureau chief. The president heard of it, and said: 'Jones, I hear you have had a quarrel with Blank?' 'Oh, no. Mr. President,' said the New Hampshire leader, in a characteristic manner, 'I never quarrel with a liar; I just simply call a liar a liar, and go no further.'"

The editor of a paper in another part of the state says the people would be astonished at the sums paid to newspapers for legislative influence last summer. He might go a step further and give the quotations, as he affirms that he knows all about. It would be "mighty interestin' readin'" for the general public.

The democratic New York Sun says there is evidence that 2000 votes in New York were changed from Butler to Cleveland after the election of 1884, pending the official count by the secretary of state. That, with Burchard, was sufficient to secure the triumph of "reform."

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

$22 TO $900.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors.

PIANOS.

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all GRAND & UPRIGHT pianos. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

GLYCEROLE!

A PRESERVATIVE OF LEATHER.

For Oiling and Dressing Boots, Shoes, Etc.

Ever since the now dispensable article of Shoe Dressing came into existence, it has been the source of constant trouble to parties using it, because it hardened and cracked the leather; to the dealer, because of the complaints of his customers. Conscientious Shoe Dealers have often dissuaded their patrons from using any Shoe Dressing whatever and advised the application of oil, as it is universally known that oil is the only preservative of leather, while all other substances harden, crack and destroy it.

It was claimed for most Dressings heretofore in use that they do not crack leather, but it has never before been claimed that an Oil Dressing could be produced, the composition of which was considered to be an impossibility. After years of patient work however, we have succeeded in solving the problem of producing an oil, which in addition to its softening and preserving qualities gives also an elegant lustre to leather goods.

Glycerole is a veritable oil and the only one in existence which answers the purpose of oiling, and at the same time, dressing leather. It is perfect in its composition, does not rub off or soil dresses or skirts, and imparts to worn goods a soft, oily lustre which positively preserves the leather and protects it from water.

We do not pretend that a single application of Glycerole will improve a shoe already dried and hardened by numerous coats of common shoe dressing, but we do warrant that all shoes oiled and dressed only with Glycerole will be positively improved in wearing quality, as this oil by penetrating into the pores of the leather will make it more supple and add to its durability.

STARTLING STATISTICS.

What a High Official Has to Say About the Condition of the People—Some Serious Facts and Figures.

[Herald.]

"It is wonderful what figures will show." Such was the remark of a high official in the State Department to a representative of this paper. "How many really rich men do you suppose there are in New England? Very few. But how many do you think there would be if people were physically and mentally sound and vigorous? New England people are active, restless and ambitious, and therefore neglect themselves. Not one man or woman in ten is in perfect health."

"Official figures show this, do they?"

"Precisely. There seems to be a New England disease. People do not seem to think that headaches, or tired feeling, or 'blues,' or loss of appetite, or nervousness mean anything. Then, the first thing they know they are in bed and on their backs to death.

"Do many die of this disease?"

"Thousands. Henry Wilson, Charles Sumner, Wendell Phillips and Governor Bodwell are among the number. James G. Blaine is also on the road, and his trip abroad is in the hope of recovering health."

"But what do you find to counteract it?"

"Very little. The only reliable medicine so far discovered is Hunt's Remedy. The faculty of one of our leading medical colleges, knowing the composition of this medicine, have been recommending it for some time, and the results have been wonderful. I know three ladies and one gentleman (one of the latter a State officer), who have been entirely cured by its use. I wish everybody might know more about it and use it."

Such facts and figures, and from so high a source, should prove invaluable to thousands whose success in life would be much greater were they physically and mentally sound and vigorous.

Army Mortality by Disease.

In connection with the subject of regimental losses there is the important one of losses by disease. In our army there were twice as many deaths from disease as from bullets. In the Confederate army the loss from disease was, for obvious reasons, much less, being smaller than their loss in battle. This loss by disease was, in our northern regiments, very unevenly distributed, running as low as thirty in some and exceeding 500 in others, while in some of the colored regiments it was still greater. There seems to be an impression that the regiments which suffered most in battle lost also the most from disease. This is an error, the direct opposite being the truth. The report of the war department for 1866 says, regarding this subject, that "it is to be noted that those states which show large mortality on the battlefield likewise show large mortality by disease." This may be true of the state totals, but is wholly incorrect as to the regiments themselves; for, with but few exceptions, the regiments which sustained the heaviest loss in battle show the smallest number of deaths from disease.

The inference is a fair one that the fighting regiments owed their exemption from disease to the same pluck which made them famous, and which enabled them to withstand its encroachments without tamely giving up and lying down under its attack. It was a question of mental as well as bodily stamina, and hence there is found in certain black regiments a mortality from disease exceeding by far that of any white troops, a fact which cannot be accounted for by climatic reasons, because the particular regiments referred to were recruited from blacks who were born and raised along the Mississippi, where these troops were stationed, and where the loss occurred.—Col. William F. Fox in The Century.

Restaurant Life in London.

Americans engaged in making the grand European tour can never understand one feature of restaurant life in London. If you happen to be a bachelor, and therefore dependent on chop houses for meals, as the hotels rarely provide for the inner man, you will probably look around for a comfortable place where you can get acquainted and take all your meals. That is the great error into which all travelers fall.

In London you want to select three different chop houses, one for breakfast, dinner and supper, or is you wish to be English sans reproche, you must have another for the evening lunch about 11 o'clock. These houses all make a specialty of one meal, and while you may be supplied with enough to dull your appetite at other houses, you will only get perfect service at the one table for which the house has made a reputation. Then, for example, take a dinner chop house: You take a seat, order a piece of roast beef and have the whole roast wheeled out in front of your table while the waiter slices off a juicy morsel that would tempt an anchorite in Lent. When you come to understand these things you can live with greater satisfaction on $5 a day than an American could on double that amount at home. Tips are nothing, as a penny apiece is enough to satisfy ordinary waiters.—Globe Democrat.

The Women of Morocco.

In the cities throughout Morocco I found it impossible to get more than a passing view of a woman's face, so jealously are they veiled and guarded, and especially among the higher classes, where the women, possessing no more intelligence than a child, are taught that all men but their lords and owners are fiends. Occasionally, however, by accident or design, the face covering would be dropped for an instant just as a woman passed me, and at the same time an arm and shoulder would be presented to my gaze. The women of Morocco are of all shades and colors, and I must say that some of the handsomest women I ever saw, both in feature and form, were full blooded negresses.

Another surprise was to notice that many of the Moorish beauties would show a snowy rounded arm and a clear pink and white skin that the most beautiful woman in Boston would have been glad to possess, but where they got this skin and complexion I could never find out, for the men, perhaps, from their constant exposure to the sun, are tanned and blackened almost to the color of the negroes. In the country all is different, and little attempt is made by the women to be stingy with their charms, unless from some religious motives, and to this freedom of the country many a poor simple girl owes her position as prime favorite in the harem of some Moorish dignitary, who saw her perfections while traveling by her father's tent or hut.—Cor. Boston Transcript.

Ceylon's Palms and Cocoanut Trees.

This low land up at the northern neck of the island is largely planted in Palmyra palms. For 120 miles along the western and southwestern shore it is a fringe from one to seven miles deep of cocoanut trees. These two kinds of trees support the bulk of the native population. They furnish the material from which they build and roof their huts. The sap gives them their sugar and their intoxicants. The green nut is their milk and the ripe nut much of their solid food. From the bark and leaves they make sheds, fans and matting; from the fiber, sails, cordage, fishing nets, etc. The young leaves are their salads. The ripe fruit gives them oil for their lamps, for their hair and for cooking purposes. They wear for clothing the net woven by nature about the foot stalks of the leaves; plait hats, and sunshades, and baskets from the fronds, and drink from the cup; sail in boats constructed of the hard, old wood, and when sick make medicine from the flowers. The uses of the palm are said to run into several hundreds, and are the themes of innumerable native poems.—Carter Harrison in Chicago Times.

The Mediterranean Sponge Fishery.

Science has claimed the sponge fishery of the Mediterranean. The native divers who could stay under water not more than two minutes are being driven out by men in regular diving armor, who can work by the hour. A German professor has originated a method of planting cuttings from sponges, and it is being prosecuted with success.—New York Sun.

To Cut a Bottle.

A simple method of accurately cutting a bottle is to place it upon some level foundation and fill it with linseed oil to the point at which you desire the line of separation to occur. Then take an iron rod of as great a diameter as will pass into the bottle, make it almost white hot and dip it into the oil. After the lapse of a few moments a sharp crack is heard, and the bottle is found to be as neatly cut as if with a diamond. If the bottle be very thick, and the cracking sound

Garnet Ledges in Alaska.

The extensive garnet ledges at Fort Wrangell are an inexhaustible source of beautiful and ornamental curiosities. The cropping of the ledge is about ten feet wide, standing perpendicularly and running northeast and southwest several miles in length; the depth of it no man has ever found out. The rock is of a mica slate formation, and contains from two to four dozen garnets to the cubic foot. The gems are regular polygons, beautiful in color, and when fresh from the mines have a dashing and brilliant luster; but when exposed for a time they become dull and opaque. The crystal varies in dimensions from the size of a pea to that of a hen's egg, and to the novice are quite fascinating and have the appearance of much value for ornamental and other purposes.

The lapidaries, however, have failed to utilize them for any purpose whatever, except as a curio and to demonstrate the certainty of the unerring law of nature which governs every phenomenon. Every plane of the polygon is of the same form; every angle of the same degree, and every gem is the equal and like of its fellow. The mining and shipment of this rock has become quite a business. It is worth $20 per ton on the wharf at Fort Wrangell, and is shipped to all parts of the country to fill the cabinets of the wealthy and the collections in public institutions.—Detroit Free Press.

A Safety Envelope Invented.

To secure the flap of an envelope so that it may not be readily opened without betraying the fact that it had been tampered with, has been the ambition of a good many inventors. An envelope constructed as follows is the subject of a recent English patent: The flap is so cut and shaped as to bring the point of it to the top right hand corner of the front side of the envelope, where the gummed surface of the flap secures it to the front of the envelope. The postage stamp is then fixed over the flap so that the envelope cannot possibly be unfastened without destroying the stamp.—Scientific American.

It is a well respected maxim: "Accept the advice of competent instructors and be guided thereby." Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is the only rafe remedy for coughs and colds. It costs only twenty-five cents.

James Ward of Sutton, Mass., committed suicide in his barn by cutting his throat one day last week.

The favorite washing compound of the day is James Pyle's Pearline. It cleanses fabrics without injury and without the laborious scrubbing necessary with ordinary soap. For sale by grocers.

If you are weak and weary from some so-called chronic disease, don't give up. Sulphur Bitters have given hope to many invalids, where hitherto there was nothing but despair. It will build up and renew your whole system. — Editor Weekly American.

Progress could never take place if custom was strictly followed.

To cure a cough, to relieve all irritations of the throat, to restore perfect soundness and health to the lungs use Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, which is still prepared with the same care as when it was introduced to the public by Dr. Wistar, over forty years since.

Patient plodding often accomplishes more than inactive genius.

The life-giving properties of Ayer's Sarsaparilla have established its well-earned reputation, and made it the most effectual and popular blood purifier of the day. For all diseases of the stomach, liver and kidneys, this remedy has no equal. Price $1.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam for coughs and colds does, is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles are 50c. and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption. tje23

a man for groaning when he has Rheumatism or Neuralgia. The pain is simply awful. No torture in the ancient times was more painful than these twin diseases. But—oughtn't a man to be blamed if, having Rheumatism or Neuralgia, he wont use Ath-lo-pho-ros, when it has cured thousands who have suffered in the same way? It has cured hundreds after physicians have pronounced them incurable.

"The skill of five physicians could not cure me of Rheumatism which had settled in the hips, neck and shoulders. So intense was the pain that sleep was almost impossible. The first dose of Athlophoros gave me relief, and the third enabled me to sleep for four and a half hours without waking. I continued its use, and am now well."

The Stops of an Organ,

With such important functions as the liver, are of course productive of serious bodially disturbance. When it relaxes its secretive and distributive activity, bile gets into the blood, and tinges the skin and white of the eyes with yellow, the bowels become constipated, the tongue coated, the breath sour. Then come headaches, vertigo and congestion of the organ, accompanied with pain in its vircinity or under the right shoulder blade. Shall blue pill be the remedy sought? No, for mercury in any form is pernicious. What then? Experience indicates Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as the true remedy for inactivity of the liver. It not only relaxes the bowels without pain, but has a direct stimulating effect upon the hepathic gland itself, the seat and origin of the trouble. All malarial complaints involves disorder of the liver, and of these the Bitters is the most popular curative. It also conquers dyspepsia, nervousness, rheumatism and kidney troubles.

But wait, there is no need of this; one or two bottles of Sulphur Bitters will remove all such disfigurations, and make your face fair and rosy.—Fannie Bell, Editress.

The usual treatment of catarrh is very unsatisfactory, as thousands of despairing patients can testify. On this point a trustworthy medical writer says: Proper local treatment is positively necessary to success, but many, if not most of the remedies in general use by physcians afford but temporary benefit. A cure certainly cannot be expected from snuffs, powders, douches and washes. Ely's Cream Balm is a remedy which combines the important requisites of quick action, specific curative power with perfect safety and Pleasantness to the patient.

Proprieties.

Mrs. Parvenu prided herself upon her attention to the proprieties; so, when she asked the druggist's head clerk what he considered the most efficient remedy attainable for Williamousness, and he handed her a bottle of Ingalls' Mandrake Compound, she noted with manifest pleasure that the wrapper on the bottle exactly matched the color of her morning neglige, and as she always kept her medicine on her dressing case, she was glad to have it harmonize with its surroundings.
